SUMMARY.

It is stated that if the Allies were satisfied regarding President Castro's desire to loyally fulfil his obligations, coupled with the Customs guarantee, the blockade would be raised at the earliest opportunity.

Mr. Chamberlain has been welcomed at Krugersdorp. He received an address from all classes, and had also a splendid reception at Potchefstroom.

In a speech Mr. Chamberlain said that the losses on both sides had been aggregated by the prolongation of the war when the issue was beyond doubt.

He hoped that those who had been great in war would be great in peace.

Herr Krupp's fortune has been assessed at £9,250,000.

The Paris correspondent of the "Times" says that France and Italy withheld their support from the protest made by Great Britain respecting the Dardanelles.

At the trial of A. Lynch for alleged treason the Judges overruled some intricate points raised by counsel for the defence. Evidence was then given that accused went to South Africa as a war correspondent.

The German cruisers, Gazelle, Panther, and Vineta were engaged in bombarding Fort San Carlos at Lake Maracaibo on Wednesday.

The Panther from 500 yards of the fort fired once a minute, and the fort replied rapidly and effectively.

The village of San Carlos was ablaze. An explosion occurred within the fort.

Officials at Berlin suggest that the allied commanders decided upon the bombardment with a view to an effective blockade, leaving the Germans to execute it on account of the locality being within their sphere.

The bombardment was renewed on Thursday.

The Japanese Trade Commissioners had an interview with the Minister for Agriculture yesterday, and were afforded facilities for collecting statistical information.

The Commissioners intend to visit some of the experimental farms and principal agricultural centres of the State.

The day labourers employed by the Public Works Department requested Mr. Perry yesterday to set aside February 21 as a holiday for them to enable their annual picnic to be held.

Mr. Perry said that had it not been for the promise given by Mr. O'Sullivan that the holiday would be granted he would have refused the request.

The half-yearly report of the Railway Commissioners shows a decrease of approximately £136,000 in the revenue, and an increase in the working expenses of £37,000.

The loss of revenue is attributed to the drought and the falling off of the receipts from wool, and the increased expenditure was caused by the conveyance of food for starving stock.

The Royal Commission appointed to inquire into certain grievances respecting the management of Fitzroy Dock met yesterday, and expects to conclude its deliberations next week.

The Public Works Committee had under consideration yesterday its report based on the evidence given as to the best method of mitigating floods in the Hunter River District.

A section of the Public Works Committee is to proceed south to take evidence as to the desirability of constructing a railway from Eden to Bega, and the making of a breakwater at Bermagui.

The State Treasurer said yesterday that there was no truth in the statements that the Government had made arrangements with certain local banks to sell £1,000,000 worth of Treasury bills.

Sir John See says it is hoped the report regarding the cessation of the transportation of convicts to New Caledonia is correct, as it is highly desirable that all the countries in this part of the globe should be developed by free labour.

The Postmaster-General and Mr. Thallon, Queensland Commissioner for Railways, visited Ballina yesterday, and afterwards left for Brisbane.

At a luncheon Mr. Thallon said it was disgraceful that Ballina was not connected with the railway system of the State.

Since 1894 there has been a decrease in the number of sheep in the Wilcannia district of 1,394,000.

The Lloyd Smelting Works, at Lithgow, restarted work on Thursday, after an interval of four months' idleness; and the mine at Burraga is "in full swing."

It is believed that the recent conference of Western miners and mineowners has failed to effect a settlement of the existing dispute, and that the matter will be referred to the Arbitration Court.

The Federal Capital Site Commissioners arrived at Tumut yesterday, and will remain there for seven days.

The Wollongong Council and ratepayers are protesting against the proposal to hand over the control of the local waterworks to the Water and Sewerage Board.

The members of the Daily-paid Railway Employees' Society in Victoria have expressed their determination to uphold their right to be affiliated with the Trades Hall.

They have suggested that a conference of the railway employees' societies in Victoria be held, the decision to be submitted to a council comprising representatives of the various States' services.

The annual meeting of the Royal Agricultural Society was held yesterday.

The revenue of the society for the year was reported to have been £14,642 9s 2d, and the expenditure (including an overdraft of £9020 10s 8d) was £23,662 19s 10d.

Sir William M'Millan intends to leave Sydney in a few days upon a trip to England.

In an interview yesterday Sir William M'Millan said that all the hopes of federation's friends had been shipwrecked and all the prophetic sneers of its enemies had been realised by two years of blundering and disastrous administration.

He also expressed the opinion that the financial administration of this State could not continue as at present.

The members of the labour party met yesterday and discussed the business paper which is to be submitted to the Political Labour League at its annual meeting on Monday next.

At the annual conference of the Political Labour League on Monday questions relating to the Taff Vale decision, the reorganisation of the party, and the placing of the municipal platform within the State pledge will be discussed.

The results of the recent examinations at the Sydney Technical College and the branch schools in the suburban and country districts are published to-day.

The inter-State cricket match New South Wales v. Victoria commences to-day.

The Friendly Societies' Association, at a meeting last night, took exception to the view of the Registrar of Friendly Societies that expenses in respect of property should be charged to the management fund.

The managing director of the Government Savings Bank has intimated that interest for the past year on friendly societies' deposits up to £1000 will be paid at the rate of 3 per cent., and interest upon deposits over £1000 will be paid 2 per cent.

The A.W.U. conference delegates continued their deliberations in camera yesterday without arriving at any definite decisions.

The annual meeting of the Railway Institute was held last night. It was stated that the institute was in a flourishing condition.

A public meeting was held in the Town Hall last night to initiate a fund in aid of distressed settlers. There was not a large attendance, but subscriptions were announced to the amount of £430.

In Carlton (Vic.) early yesterday morning a constable fired at a burglar who was in a grocer's shop, and wounded him.

In connection with the ceremonies for opening the Coolgardie water scheme, Lady Forrest formally turned on the water at Mundaring on Thursday.

The Federal Premier was interviewed at Moss Vale yesterday by a special reporter of the "Herald."

Sir Edmund Barton expressed the opinion that the election of the Hon. R. Reid to the Senate was valid, but he explained that he had not looked into the question.

At a conference of suburban municipalities last night it was decided to refer the question of the increased Fire Brigades' Board levy to a sub-committee to report to a future meeting.

The Wellington (N.Z.) Cup has been won by Advance, with Hinetaura and Cannie Chiel in the second and third positions respectively.

The largest shipment of butter which has ever left New Zealand has been sent to London by the Papanui, the amount totalling 1113 tons.

On the Stock Exchange yesterday transactions in investment securities were moderate in extent, prices showing a somewhat downward tendency.

In the Mining market sales were restricted, and prices were without movement.

In the Import market there was very little business in general merchandise. Californian wheat hardened, and flour was unchanged.

WISE WAYS OF WOMEN.

Common Soaps, because of their adulteration, will not long tempt the wise woman. She soon sees that she has to pay dearly for the adulterated soaps in the damage they do to her clothes and hands. The wise woman considers her health—so soon ruined if she were to continue breathing the steam of adulterated soaps. The wise woman recognises the difference between such soaps and SUNLIGHT SOAP. If you do not use Sunlight Soap one trial will convince you.

A PROFESSIONAL OPINION.

"At the invitation of Mr. MARK BLOW, our representative called at the Crown Studios for the purpose of inspecting a fresh show of miniature paintings, and also a fine collection of newly imported miniature rims and cases. These miniatures, painted on real ivory, depict well the artists skill; also in the beautiful work of the Crown Studios, THE HIGHEST AMBITION OF THE ARTIST OPERATOR IS TO BE FOUND. We recommend those interested in the now popular miniature portraits to examine this display at the Crown Studios." The above is a reprint from the Australian Photographic Journal for this month.

STOTT AND HOARE'S
BUSINESS COLLEGE
THE LEADING AND REPRESENTATIVE AUSTRALIAN BUSINESS TRAINING INSTITUTION.

EVERY YEAR

since its foundation in 1885 the College has ADDED IMPROVEMENTS to its Organisation and Equipment, its Systems and Methods of instruction; Every Year it has EXTENDED the SCOPE of its CURRICULUM and the sphere of USEFULNESS to the PUBLIC; Every Year it it has grown in popular favour and has increased in the number of its Students.

FAMOUS
SYSTEM
of BOOKKEEPING and OFFICE ROUTINE

is the only system in use in Australia which combines with the instruction in BOOKKEEPING, CORRESPONDENCE, ARITHMETIC, INVOICING, &c., the actual performance by the Student of the transactions exemplified. By its use the Student learns more in an interesting and entertaining way than he would in years of study by the usual textbook methods.

STATION
BOOKKEEPING.

We have just added to the system "The Station Bookkeeping Budget," compiled by Mr. C. HUNGERFORD, A.S.I.A.,
Head Instructor of the Commercial Department.

"TOUCH"
TYPEWRITING.

The system taught at the College enables the operator to keep his eyes on the copy while manipulating the keyboard, and its use involves a gain in speed of from 25 to 40 per cent. The successful candidate at the latest Government Examination for Lady Typists was a Student of the College, and employed the "Touch Method."

PITMAN'S
SHORTHAND.

The original method of instruction adopted at the College produces proficiency in a remarkably rapid and thorough manner. Ample evidence of its merit and efficacy is afforded in the results of the recent Incorporated Phonographic Society's Shorthand Speed Examination, in which all the passes at the maximum rate of speed were gained by the College, 47 out of 53 successful candidates being students of the College.

In the
DEPARTMENT

the individual system of preparation is adopted. Fourteen passes in five different scholastic and commercial examinations have been obtained by College Students since December, 1901. The DUX PRIZE of £3 3s, awarded by the Chamber of Commerce, was gained by a candidate prepared at the College.

NEW SHORTHAND

THIS IS THE KIND OF LETTER WE ARE RECEIVING DAILY.

WHAT MORE can you want to convince you it will pay you to learn THE NEW SHORTHAND?

WHERE is the sense or reason in spending valuable months and years studying tedious and complicated systems.

The 20th CENTURY demands rapidity in everything. Here is your chance to learn Shorthand rapidly and easily.

Brown-street, Armidale,
19th January, 1903.

W. Charlton Hubble, Esq.,
Gibbs-Chambers,
Moore-street, Sydney.

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in testifying to the merits and advantages of your "New Shorthand." As a writer of Pitman's shorthand for eight years I am in a position to compare and contrast these two systems.

I have no hesitation in saying emphatically that I consider your system far superior to Pitman's for the following reasons:—
1. It is much more easily learned.
2. It is incomparably easier to read.
3. There are less abbreviations, grammalogues, &c., to remember.

In the fortnight I took lessons from you I have attained a speed of 45 words a minute, and this alone is a great point in favour of your system, viz.: that speed follows quickly.

I naturally was prejudiced, or at least sceptical towards the merits of your new method, but now I am more than pleased with the results and can heartily recommend it.

Yours faithfully,
(Signed) ALEC DOYLE.

OWING TO STRONG representation on the part of pupils, and a considerable number of intending pupils, we have decided to abandon the great SPEED competition lately advertised in these columns.

The FEES for the full course are now REDUCED to the old basis, viz.: 21 lessons for £1s, payable 2s 6d first lesson, 2s 6d second lesson, 1s each for the next 10, last three free. All pupils who have paid more than this amount will receive a REFUND on application to

CHAPTER VI.

THOMAS MAKES A PREMATURE PROPOSAL.

The Benefit gave that evening to the broad road agitation for a space of 50 yards. The hour being 7.30 and the time evening, the tide of traffic flowed East, but those who walked Bow way and those of greater opulence who went by penny tram, talked of the Benefit, and became as they neared the theatre more alert and observant. Quite a thick line of men and women stood away on the opposite side of the road, looking across with an air of anticipation at the announcement on a transparency, hopeful (with no grounds) of something further to happen, for which there would be nothing to pay. Near the entrances it was all that three policemen could do to assure new arrivals that the theatre was full; "Chock-full!" added the constables and that not love and certainly not money would enable them to go in.

"But," said two matrons in blue satin, argumentatively, "we must go in. We've come all the way from West 'Am."

"You might have come from Eaven, ladies," retorted the constable with polite regret, "and then you couldn't a gone in."

Thomas within, walked restlessly up and down the white-washed passage, where elegant, but slightly incomplete statues stood, holding aloft nothing with great distinction, and affecting to ignore the fact that they were in some instances short of a nose or an ear, or in one case the better half of a head. Wire-protected gas jets illumined the passage, lighting up minatory announcements as "No whistling" and "No Re-admission" and "No Babies," and enabling him to see by his watch that Margaret was at least two minutes late. Proof here of Thomas's want of experience in such matters, in that he deduced from this fact that Margaret Rollins had changed her mind, and would not come from Park-crescent that evening to accord him the conspicuous favour of her company. As the faded red baize doors, with a single glass eye opened and closed he could tell that the evening's entertainments inside had already commenced; that what the bills called "A Laughable Farce," was being played, wherein, as he knew, a haughty mother-in-law was being mistaken for the new cook by a trumpet-voiced son-in-law, and all the accumulated jokes of centuries were being made at her expense.

Thomas had just decided that he should never see Margaret again, that love for him had nothing but a phantom existence, that the world generally was taking infinite pains to snub him and to treat him with contumely, that he had been placed here only to act as butt and easy target for the winged shafts of contempt, when the young woman rustled down the passage from the entrance, dressed with charming importance, and in her brightest mood.

"You're early," she said in a definite way that admitted of no discussion.

"Yes," replied Thomas, untruthfully, "I was fearful of missing you."

"Can we go in now? Is there any necessity to stand here any longer?"

"We'll go in at once," said Thomas, accepting the reproof.

"I like your cousin," she said briskly, as they walked up the stone stairs. "We became excellent friends the other evening. At first I thought she seemed a little—"

"Florence is not effusive."

"But I think I talked her over."

"I can quite understand that. Do you mind," Thomas blushed in the dim light, "do you mind taking my arm? It's rather dark."

A card being presented to a scarlet-faced official in what looked like a third-hand French military uniform, he called out, "Henery, two boxes!" and Henery, who appeared from his uniform to have drawn an unlucky number in conscription of the same foreign power, put down his crust of bread and cheese with a sigh, and coming forward leisurely, declared that he led a dog's life, and that he should presently begin to wonder whether he were justified in calling his soul his own. Henery, still grumbling at his lot, piloted the two young people through a perilous channel at the back of the dress circle, with steps occurring at every point where you did not expect them, but Thomas did not greatly object to this, because it resulted in Margaret's holding his arm the tighter. Almost like leading her to the altar.

At the end of the dress circle they went down some narrow steps and up more narrow steps, and then Henery, opening a door with a key, concluded his soliloquy with the more hopeful remark, "Well, I s'pose we shall all keep alive till we die!" and accepting a shilling from Thomas, showed them into a small private box decorated with wall paper of three distinct patterns (as though the furnisher had not been able to make up his mind), and draped at the front with muslin curtains, which might have been pin cushions from the number of fastened rents which they possessed. Henery, softened by the gift, asked whether he should bring refreshments later on, remarking that it was dry work sitting a performance through, and venturing to suggest a glass of sherry wine and a seedy biscuit for the lady, but Margaret declined, and Henery, with fatherly admonition to enjoy themselves whilst they were young, left them. Margaret, taking the cane chair, sat facing the stage; she looked around the pinned-up muslin curtains at the densely-packed audience, and begged at once to be allowed to take the opposite seat.

Below, on the stage, the son-in-law in the tartan suit and white hat, still worn in laughable farces when played at minor theatres, had placed his mother-in-law's head in a cardboard oven, and was blowing hard at a red paper fire; the audience from the footlights, where they leaned elbows on the stage itself, right up to the topmost seat of the gallery, almost touching the roof, rocked with delight.

"It is a great pleasure," said Thomas in a low voice, commencing a well-thought-out remark, "to be here——"

"Hush!" she said, "I want to watch them."

A sight indeed worth attention. Emotions swept over the thousands of faces as a breeze alters the appearance of a lake; by looking at them one could guess what was happening on the stage. Thomas, checked in his set speech, followed her example. The sight was not new to him, but he found himself taking, from sympathy with her, a new interest in it. What a fine thing it would be to influence the pleasures of this good-tempered set of people! How proud a man might be who could write something that would excite in them delight or interest! Even the poor stuff to which they were listening gave joy. But for the fact that his time was fully occupied—he always regretted that there were but 24 hours to a day—he would feel inclined to put other things aside and have a try at it himself.

Sir Robert, in a box opposite, giving his patronage partly at Thomas's request, and partly because it was a wise and politic thing to do—the orchestra had played "Rule Britannia": on his entrance, and the house had stood up, screaming approval—Sir Robert appeared to be startled out of his usual self-control, and now almost smiling at the absurd rough and tumble business had had to remove his eyeglass. Thomas wondered how it would feel to sit in a theatre and listen to words which one had written. A quaint experience surely; it had, he understood, the additional virtue of bringing in a good deal of money.

"That's finished then!" said Margaret as the curtain went down on a confused rally of wife, husband, mother-in-law, and the real cook. "I'm afraid my sense of humour is imperfectly developed. This sort of thing does not amuse me." She watched the immense audience; row upon row wiped their eyes, exhausted with laughter. White capped, white aproned men went around with baskets of thick sandwiches.

"That is not a defect," said Thomas earnestly.

"I am anxious to see your cousin play," she remarked, with her superior air of directing the world. "I know one or two West End managers; perhaps we might do something for her."

"Florence is old-fashioned," he said, excusingly. "She has a preference for getting on without influence."

"I will make a note of it at once."

"You have dropped a letter."

"Thank you," she said, writing in her notebook and without accepting the letter. "It's only from—from Mr. Brett Pawson," she added, snapping the elastic when she had completed the entry.

"Brett Pawson honours you with a good deal of attention," said Thomas, sharply.

"Yes," she said. "It is an honour from such a notable man."

ACROSS COVETED LANDS.

Under this attractive title Mr. A. Henry Savage Landor describes his journey from Flushing to Calcutta overland. "Across Coveted Lands" (Macmillan and Co.) will be read with interest from cover to cover of each of the well-illustrated volumes of which the work consists. The author has a quick eye for matters of passing moment, as well as for those which concern the welfare of nations. Nothing that happens is beneath the dignity of record, and at the same time due proportion is maintained, and questions of large interests receive the deeper study which their importance requires. All the same, many readers of this fascinating book will number amongst their most pleasant recollections of its perusal the graphic details of varied life and custom which came under the traveller's notice. Much attention is now being devoted to the relations of Persia with Russia on the one hand and with Great Britain on the other, not so much on account of the intrinsic importance of Persia as on account of the advantages which would accrue to the Power which obtained most influence. Mr. Savage Landor throws light on some of the questions connected with this important political problem. He shows us how Russia—especially since the acquisition in 1893 of the right to construct a carriage-road from Piri-Bazaar via Resht to Kasvin, and the purchase of the road from the last named place to Teheran—has been zealous in furthering her interests in Persia, and in emphasising her power and her good-will to Persia. On the other hand, through various reasons, the influence of Great Britain has been weakened. Mention of the various places concerned in this concession reminds us that Mr. Savage Landor's work is amply supplied with maps and with all information necessary to the due understanding of the position of the "coveted lands" which he visited.

HIGHWAYS AND BYWAYS IN LONDON.

Mrs. E. T. Cook writes in a charmingly discursive manner on "Highways and Byways in London" (Macmillan and Co.), and the book is rendered all the more interesting by copious illustrations by Hugh Thomson and F. L. Griggs. Now that Mrs. Cook has done the work to admiration, there is evidently no better way than that which she has adopted to give an idea of the great capital of the world, the city with its four or five millions of inhabitants, the city that stretches out in constantly increasing dimensions over lanes and fields and suburbs. The average Londoner is notoriously the last person to know anything about what others consider to be the main points of interest in the great city, but a lover of London who resides in the metropolis of the world, and who has the eye to see the wonders that surround him and the hand to write about them is after all the best sort of guide we at a distance can have. The late Sir Walter Besant had much that was of moment to say about London, and it is not to rashly indulge in prophecy to say that when his novels are forgotten his works on London will be remembered with interest. Mrs. Cook goes leisurely through the highways and byways of London, an accomplished cicerone, who has the art of giving an air of novelty to her pleasing talks. The air is thick with memories of the famous dead. Dr. Johnson, the wise people assure us, never said, "Sir, let us talk a walk down Fleet-street," but nevertheless he did take this walk many a time, succeeding and preceding many a great man on the pilgrimage. "Lord Tennyson," says his son, the Governor-General of Australia, "always delighted in the 'central roar' of London. Whenever he and I went to London, one of the first things he did was to walk to the Strand and Fleet-street. 'Instead of the stuccoed houses in the West End, this is the place where I should like to live,' he used to say." This is an example of the way in which Mrs. Cook treats her subject. She brings to bear upon it a wealth of varied illustration. Her book is not only a description of highways and byways in London, but also a series of pleasant chats by the way in which the guide tells us things which we never knew, or things which we have forgotten, and are glad to have brought back to our memory.

INDUSTRIAL ARBITRATION REPORTS.

We receive from the Government Printer copy of the first issue, volume I., of the "Reports and Records of the Court of Industrial Arbitration of New South Wales," edited by Mr. G. C. Addison, Registrar of the Court. The proposal is to issue these reports and records in parts every second month, the parts published in each year to form a volume. As it was not until recently that authority was given for the official publication, the volume for 1902 does not contain all the cases decided in the year; but those which were unavoidably held over will be included in subsequent issues. The present volume contains the reports of 12 cases, amongst which will be found the important cases of the Australian Workers' Union v. Machine Shearers and Shed Employees' Union, the Newcastle Wharf Labourers' Union v. Newcastle and Hunter River Steamship Company, the Breadcarters' Union v. Langer, and the Professional Musicians' Association of Australia v. Williamson. The arrangement followed is a statement of the case in dispute, the names of counsel employed, the judgment of the Court, and the award as drawn up and approved by the President. The book is prefaced by a short memorandum, in which the history of the Court is set forth, and the records supply complete lists of the registrations granted to date, of industrial agreements filed with the Registrar, and of proceedings in the Court of Arbitration under the following headings:—Judgments, Industrial Disputes, Chamber Orders, Cases Disposed of, and Orders other than Awards. The publication will be found of great interest and use.

ROME AND REFORM.

Mr. T. L. Kington Oliphant sets forth in two handsome volumes his historical account of "Rome and Reform" (Macmillan and Co.). It must be said of this work that it is evidently the fruit of much scholarly research and of an unbiassed mind. Mr. Oliphant is no enthusiast who moulds facts to his theory, no mere dabbler in the eccentricities of extremists on either side or any side. A searcher after truth, he has found a sphere of work; and this work consists in the bringing up to date, as it were, of Ranke's monumental work, and in the publishing of facts which were not known perhaps in Ranke's days. Further, he can remember the pontificate of Pius IX. from beginning to end, and this connotes that he can remember also what Leo XIII. has done in his remarkable reign. It is not claimed for this work that it is written in the Roman Catholic or in the Reform interest. What is claimed for it is that it advances facts which have to be considered by the historian; facts now in favour of Rome, and again in favour of Reform; facts, too, in which both Rome and Reform, as the author understands the latter term, are closely joined on the same platform. Whatever else may be said about Mr. Oliphant's attempt to supplement Ranke, it cannot be said that he is prejudiced. "I have striven," he says, "to hold the balance fair, to amass a vast number of facts, and upon these alone to build my theories." The work is admirably arranged and fully and concisely indexed, and amongst its chief values to the unprejudiced student is the fact that the religious movements concerned are carefully recorded under the countries in which they had their origin or their chief development.

CAPTAIN DONAT O'BRIEN.

It is not often that a man who has published a history—an interesting history—of his own adventures, only to find that the public takes little notice of the book, lives to read the same adventures, related by a story-writer in a supposed work of fiction, passing through edition after edition. Yet this was the experience of Captain Donat Henchy O'Brien, R.N. In "My Adventures During the late War: A Narrative of Shipwreck, Captivity, Escapes from French Prisons, and Sea Service in 1804-14," Captain O'Brien set forth the true story of his life, describing with minuteness the actions in which he was engaged, his capture on sundry occasions and confinement in French prisons, his escapes in the face of great privations and difficulties. Though the narrative was thrilling, and was authenticated in every particular, the public left it severely alone, but when Captain Marryat took it without the author's leave and built upon it his story of "Peter Simple," the novel had to be reprinted some thirty times in Captain O'Brien's lifetime before the public was satisfied. Mr. Charles Oman now comes to the vindication of the captain's memory with a new edition of his book, published by Mr. Edward Arnold. It will well repay perusal for the graphic power of its narration, and the humour with which O'Brien met his adventures.

SOME STORIES.

"The Plague of the Heart," by Francis Prevost (Ward, Lock, and Co., through Mr. W. Dymock), is the title given to three short stories which have to do with love. In the first, "The Siege of Sar," we have the wife of a soldier on service in India, who from pique persuades the head of a political mission to take a certain step which had been directly opposed by the only man in the party who knew the country. The result was what the experienced man anticipated, and it was only by his good judgment, helped by courage and luck, that the survivors escaped. In "Her Reputation," a man has it in his power to put himself right with the girl he loved by forwarding to her the letters he had received from a married woman, now his enemy, with whom he had enjoyed a platonic friendship.

"The Adventures of Romney Pringle," by Clifford Ashdown (Ward, Lock, and Co.), is the title of a series of short stories of detective interest. Romney Pringle is a man who can assume a variety of disguises at will. Generally, he is an inoffensive looking middle-aged gentleman, clean-shaven, with a fair complexion only accentuated by a small port wine mark on his right cheek. But upon occasion this mark comes off, and he can become a black-avised military man or a mild-mannered minister. In all his ingenious adventures Mr. Pringle has a refreshing regard for his own interests.

"Glengarry Days," by Ralph Connor, describes, in the manner which would be expected of the author of "The Sky Pilot" and "The Man from Glengarry," incidents in the school life of a Scotch community established in Canada. The various characters are well drawn, and the humour of certain situations quaintly brought out. Copies reach us from Messrs. Angus and Robertson and Mr. E. W. Cole.

"On the Promenade Deck," by Torin Blair (R. A. Everett and Co.), is a collection of short stories. Passengers of various walks of life and from all parts of the world congregated together at night-time on the "good ship Nerbudda," on her voyage from Bombay to London, and exchanged many remarkable yarns. They are collected in this little volume, and are well calculated to fill in spare time agreeably.

This month's number of the "Pall Mall Magazine" opens with the first of a series of articles by Field-Marshal Lord Wolseley on "The Young Napoleon." Lord Wolseley has long been a student of the career of Napoleon I., whom he regards as the greatest man that ever lived. The present article is mainly introductory, but it contains the admission—remarkable in view of the writer's estimate of his hero—that the scheme of the Italian campaign, on which Napoleon's fame was founded, belonged not to Napoleon, but to the Marshal de Maillebois, from whom the future Emperor deliberately stole the plan without acknowledgment. Other articles worthy of note are contributed by Edith Nesbit (Mrs. Bland), by Judge O'Connor Morris, who writes on "Social Life in Ireland," by Ernest A. Vizetelly, with his "Some Recollections of Emile Zola," by Sir F. C. Burnand, W. H. Mallock, and H. B. Marriott Watson.

We receive the first number of "The East and the West: a Quarterly Study of Missions," issued under the auspices of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts. It contains some remarks on "The Australian Aborigines," by Bishop Stone-Wigg of Carpentaria, which has for its main defect the omission of any history of old-time efforts to convey to the aborigines the teachings of religion and civilisation. Bishop Montgomery, late of Tasmania, discourses on "The Attitude of the White Man towards Darker Races," and there are informing articles about Japan, China, and Jamaica, and about foreign missions generally.

The December number of "The Century Magazine" opens with four striking pictures in colour by Howard Pyle: "The Wicket of Paradise," "In the Meadows of Youth," "In the Valley of the Shadows," and "At the Gates of Life." The day nurseries of New York are described under the title "While the Mother Works," by Lillie Hamilton French, and Henry Loomis Nelson writes on "The So-called Steel Trust," his second paper about "The Great Business Combinations." Amongst other contributions of interest are "The Making of the Universe," by John Henry Freese, "Lovey Mary," by Alice Caldwell Hegan, "The Canada Sable," by Francis Sterne Palmer, and "Frederick W. Robertson," by W. T. Hewett.

"Dymock's Book of Bible Stories," with its useful illustrations, will be much appreciated by the children for whose use it is intended.

"The Doll-man's Gift," by Henry A. James (a copy of which reaches us from the author through Mr. W. Dymock), is a delightful fairy tale, remarkable alike for its originality and for the charm of its narration.

The editorial secretary of the Church Missionary Society forwards "Sea-girt Yezo," by the Rev. John Batchelor, a well-illustrated little book which is intended to interest young people in missionary work in North Japan. The book is agreeably written, and contains much information about social habits and customs.

The latest addition to "The English Theological Library" (Macmillan and Co.) is "Of the Laws of Ecclesiastical Polity, the Fifth Book," by Richard Hooker, edited by Ronald Bayne. Possibly the fifth book of the "Ecclesiastical Polity" is the most characteristic of Hooker's style—a style on which has been practically moulded the writing of classic English. Thus, as mere prose, the "Polity" will be read and studied apart altogether from its theological value.

"The Art Journal" for last month has a fine etching by Fred. Ruth of Edwin Abbey's "O Mistress Mine, where are you roaming?" Lovers of Turner's work will find their account in "Turner's Last Swiss Drawings," by Edward Dillon, the second paper being as profusely illustrated as the first, to which we drew attention last month. There are interesting articles by F. Miller, M. E. Reeks, A. Melani, Mrs. Bruce Clarke, and others.

"Letters of an Actress" (Edward Arnold) is a book which possesses the charm of not fulfilling the suggestion of its title. The author, who writes as Miss Gladys Luttrell, an actress, simply details the events of her every-day life in letters to her mother, and there are other letters describing her adventures and troubles and worries. The book is agreeably and pleasantly written.

American men and women of letters have a wholesome admiration for their predecessors and contemporaries. Mr. E. W. Cole sends us "Boston Days, the City of Beautiful Ideals: Concord, and its Famous Authors; the Golden Age of Genius; Dawn of the Twentieth Century," by Lilian Whiting. Boston, it would appear from this interesting book, is the centre of the world's progress in literature; Athens is a back number. Whipple is a great name, a name to conjure with; poor old Homer, who has been dead a long time, if he ever lived, is an inconsiderable quantity of verse. We have also much about Longfellow, and more about Emerson, written as one would write about the gods. Wisdom was born in Boston and is flourishing there like the green bay tree of Holy Writ.

Messrs. Macmillan and Co. forward Jane Austen's "Mansfield Park," with an introduction by Austin Dobson, and illustrated by Hugh Thomson. It is recorded by Professor Goldwin Smith that of a group of literary men assembled at a country house seven gave their votes for "Mansfield Park" as the novel which had given them the greatest pleasure. This, apart even from Sydney Smith's warm approval, is sufficient proof of the hold which the novel has taken. People of our day have other tastes, perhaps, but all will be glad to have the book placed within reach in this excellent edition.

We receive from the University Tutorial Press the new edition of the "Matriculation English Course," by W. H. Low and John Briggs. The book, which is primarily intended for the use of students preparing for the London matriculation examination, will be found of use also by persons who need a guide for their private studies in this branch of learning.

"Children's Gardens," by the Hon. Mrs. Evelyn Cecil (Macmillan and Co.), is a delightful guide to gardening, for children and beginners of all ages. The author, who is perhaps better known to the reading world as Alicia Amherst, is an enthusiast on her subject, and her book will be warmly welcomed by all who desire to see a bright garden, large or small, adorning their homes.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC NOTES.

The first great musical event of 1903 will be the first appearance in Australia of Mr. Edward Lloyd, England's one great representative tenor will sail from London by the China on February 16, and will open his Australian season in Melbourne with concerts on April 13, 15, and 18, whilst his Sydney dates will be April 21, 23, and 25. Amateurs of music all over the world know the name of Edward Lloyd, but to the mass of the public here his reputation, which stands beside that of the greatest singers who have visited this country, is less familiar. Mr. Lloyd, though he belongs to a younger generation, was the one great rival of the late Sims Reeves when that artist was still in his prime. For about 20 years Mr. Lloyd has practically reigned alone as the first of English tenors in oratorio and concert-room music. His successes at the Handel, Birmingham, and other great festivals have been innumerable, and he has also paid one visit to the United States, where he sang at the Cincinnati Festival and elsewhere. The coming of this great singer has been the subject of fruitless negotiation for years past, the late Mr. Poole, who was his personal friend, having endeavoured to secure him after Mme. Patey's visit here about 13 years ago. Mr. Lloyd, who is a wealthy man, retired from the platform about two years ago, but reappeared for Miss Clara Butt at the Royal Albert Hall last October. Mr. J. C. Williamson's London agents then heard the great tenor, and reported him in full voice. Ultimately Mr. Williamson was joined by Mr. George Musgrove in this costly enterprise, and it is under their management that Mr. Lloyd will appear. This famous artist's voice is a pure light tenor of the richest and sweetest quality. He is a great "stylist," and is equally successful in such languishing music as "Love in her Eyes Sits Playing" or the declamatory passages of "Sound an Alarm" and "Lend Me Your Aid." Two or three English artists will probably support the newcomer, but their names have not yet been cabled from London.

A tendency to override the recognised musical season here, which should be limited between early April and late October, was noticeable last year, and is likely to be still further accentuated during 1903. Mme. Melba and Mlle. Antonia Dolores were both drawing crowded audiences as late as mid-December, and now, owing to a rearrangement of her dates, the Australian diva will appear at the Sydney Town Hall on March 14, whilst the French soprano will probably reappear a little before that date. Mr. T. P. Hudson, who has mapped out Mme. Melba's New Zealand tour for Mr. George Musgrove, states that the star is due from Perth by the Omrah, arriving at Adelaide probably to-morrow. Mme. Melba will sing at a matinee in Adelaide on Tuesday next, and will then leave for her beautiful home at Toorak. The singer will enjoy a fortnight's rest in Melbourne before starting upon her rapid tour of New Zealand and has also arranged to spend 24 hours in Tasmania, in order to give one concert at Launceston on February 12. Tasmania was nearly missed by the diva in her race across the Antipodes, until local amateurs cabled an offer of 1000 guineas in order that the star might not shoot altogether beyond their sphere. This transaction will remind classicists of Hippomenes, the wily suitor who stayed the flying Atalanta by throwing in her course the golden apples of the Hesperides. Mme. Melba's New Zealand debut will be at Dunedin on February 18, and her tour will close at Auckland March 9. Mme. Melba will endeavour to visit the Rotorua Lakes before her return to the Commonwealth.

As already noted, the first new attraction after Mme. Melba will be Mr. Edward Lloyd, and he will be succeeded by another star artist in the person of Mark Hambourg. It is five years since this brilliant pianist carried all before him in this part of the world, and he has since appeared with more than half the philharmonic societies of Europe, with the Lamoureux and Colonne orchestras both in Paris and London, and at concerts of his own throughout the United States and the United Kingdom. Mr. John Lemmone, who is again directing the Hambourg tour, is also bringing out Boris Hambourg, a young 'cellist, who has played with his brother for two years past. The Hambourgs' tour will open in Sydney on May 2, when amateurs here are sure to warmly welcome back the Russian pianist.

Mr. Maurice Grau inaugurated the New York opera season on November 24 with Verdi's "Otello," with Alvarez in the name-part, and Mme. Eames as Desdemona. This opera was followed by "Il Barbiere," with Mme. Sembrich—who is singing all the Melba roles—as Rosina, Salignac as the tenor, and Edouard De Reszke as basso. De Marchi, the famous Italian tenor, made his rentree in "Aida," and also sang both in "La Traviata" and in "La Boheme." Signor Mancinelli conducted the Italian operas, but for "Lohengrin," in which Mmes. Gadski and Schumann-Heink were the principal artists, Herr Hertz was musical director. The new conductor was highly approved of. The new German tenor, Herr Anthes, is described as possessing a manly voice, ample experience as an actor, and just intonation—praise which is tempered by a great deal of adverse criticism as to the want of romance in his Lohengrin. Australians will be interested in hearing of the debut of Carlo Dani, who appeared before an exceptionally brilliant audience on Friday, December 5, in "Rigoletto." Signor Scotti appeared in the name part, and M. Journet as Sparafucile. The New York "Daily Tribune" thus describes the event:—"The fourth Verdi opera for this season was performed at the Metropolitan Opera House last night. It was 'Rigoletto,' and its chief mission, after the introduction of Mme. Sembrich in a character in which she is known to be adorable the world over, was to bring forward a new tenor. Carlo Dani is his name, and sweetly gentle, not to say infantile, is his nature. He bears himself gracefully, if not with complete assurance, looks well, and sings like an Italian gentleman. His relationship to his German colleagues at the Metropolitan Opera House is antipodal. They have large voices; his voice is small. They sing badly, but declaim more or less dramatically. He sings well, and concerns himself not at all about dramatic declamation. They torture the ears of their listeners in their efforts to put significance into their words. He woos and soothes them, thinking Verdi's tunes all sufficient. He has a place at the Metropolitan Opera House, and deserved the hearty welcome which he received. He helps to sweeten the charm of Mme. Sembrich's voice. If that voice must be heard in Verdi's music it is a good thing to have worthy voices associated with it. Signor Dani proved to be worthy last night, and so did Signor Scotti, who warmed all hearts capable of feeling warmth for such an old-fashioned marionette as the Hugo-Piave-Verdi operatic hunchback." After the mail left Dani appeared in "La Traviata."

Miss Amy Castles will open her short farewell tour of the Commonwealth in Sydney, taking up the date at the Town Hall, Wednesday, February 4, originally proposed for Madame Melba. Mr. J. C. Williamson will direct this farewell season, during which, within the space of 14 days, the sweet-voiced soprano will visit Brisbane (February 7), Melbourne, and Adelaide. Miss Dolly Castles, of the fine quality of whose voice a favourable opinion was expressed in these columns last month, will at the same time be introduced to the concert-room. The chief instrumental soloist will be Miss Freida Miller, whose progress as a pianist and her established popularity in the city of her birth have induced Mr. Williamson to open a wider field for her admitted talents. The entrepreneur anticipates that this youthful player will win a somewhat similar place in the public favour to that recently held by Miss Nora M'Kay, the Queensland violinist he, so to speak, "discovered" for the last Castles tour. Miss Amy Castles and her sister will sail by the Polynesien for Europe on February 19, so that this tour will form the absolute farewell of the young singer. It may be added that Miss Amy Castles is already engaged by Messrs. Boosey and Co., of London, for the next season of ballad concerts. The Castles tour will be managed by Mr. G. M. Tallis, who, after securing Sousa's band in America, journeyed on to London and arranged several matters of importance for his chief. Mr. Tallis is returning by the Omrah, and will, therefore, have Madame Melba as a fellow passenger from Fremantle.

The chief event in Melbourne this evening will be Messrs. Williamson and Musgrove's production of "Za-Za," the piece in which Mrs. Leslie Carter made such a hit, first in New York and then in London. Mr. Williamson saw Mrs. Carter give her powerful impersonation of the character whilst he was in California, and he then purchased the antipodean rights from Mr. Charles Frohman. Miss Nellie Stewart witnessed a performance in London, and felt attracted by the possibilities of the central character, but at that time had not proved her mettle outside comic opera. Ultimately, events so shaped themselves that the two managers, the one possessing the play and the other controlling the star, were able to join forces, and Miss Nellie Stewart will accordingly create Za-Za for Australia this evening. The French drama is by Messrs. Berton and Simon, and has been adapted for the English stage by David Belasco. The Sydney production will take place in March next.

Mr. Wilson Barrett produced "The Christian King," which first saw the light in this part of the world, at the London Adelphi Theatre on December 17. The London "Daily Telegraph" devotes a column and a quarter to the actor-author's drama. The review, the general tone of which is favourable, concludes:—"Upon an actor of Mr. Barrett's calibre the role of Alfred sits easily enough. Complex as the part is, varying as are its aspects, Mr. Barrett passes from one phase of the King's character to another with notable ease. The sincerity of his passion is as marked as the earnestness of his religious fervour is deeply felt. With singular dexterity Mr. Barrett contrives, further, to bring to the surface the humorous qualities which were a distinguishing feature of Alfred's nature. A popular hero, a devoted lover, a true friend, and a generous enemy, it is in such guise that Mr. Barrett presents the man he impersonates in 'The Christian King.' From the members of a company trained by long service to attain to unity of expression he receives excellent support. Forcible and impressive, Mr. James Carter-Edwards lends character and colour to the part of sturdy John the Saxon, while Mr. T. Wigney Percyval's sketch of the malignant spy, Cedroc, stands boldly out by reason of its amazing intensity. Of the Princess Zebuda Miss Lillah M'Carthy, sinuous and graceful in all her movements, furnishes a study touched with a fine air of passionate sensuousness, and as the gentle Elswitha Miss Edyth Latimer acted with a pretty sense of pathos and of feeling. Two young actresses, Miss Gertrude Boswell and Miss Alice Crawford, at once succeeded by their clever work in establishing their right to the favour of the audience; the first in an emotional, the second in a broadly comic part. A good word must also be said for Mr. Horace Hodges and Mr. George Barrett, as a couple of churls." It will be noted that Mr. Percyval has rejoined the company since it left Australia, but that otherwise the cast is unchanged.

POLITICAL LABOUR LEAGUE.

THE ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

The annual conference of the Political Labour League, which opens on Monday at the Trades Hall, will as usual be full of interest to all supporters of the labour movement. Proceedings will be opened by the retiring president, Mr. H. Lamond, and almost the first business will be the election of office-bearers for the ensuing year. The business proposals have already been published.

There will doubtless be keen debate upon the lines to be followed in running candidates for the next Senate elections. It will be remembered that upon the last occasion the party supported Messrs. S. Smith and Donald M'Donell, M.L.A., and that both were defeated. A strenuous effort will be made to gain at least one seat at the end of the year, although it is recognised that there are very few men in the ranks not already in politics who would have much chance of success. Propositions for further organisation and consideration of the Taff Vale decision, the placing of the municipal platform within the State pledge, State iron works, and the necessity of educating women upon the use of the franchise, will be among the most important matters to receive notice.

If the report of the Executive may be taken to indicate the temper of delegates it is probable that the State Government will not escape criticism and censure. The frequency with which trades unions, particularly those meeting in the city and suburbs, have of late condemned the present administration, has been one of the most pronounced features of the labour movement.

The last conference was noted for the strained feeling between delegates which prevailed throughout upon the question of the South African war. This year, however, proceedings promise to be quiet and business-like.

KINDNESS TO ANIMALS.

The first annual meeting of the Church Society for Promotion of Kindness to Animals was held in the Town Hall on Thursday. The hon. secretary (the Rev. J. W. Gillett, B.A.) stated that the Primate was unable to attend. Apologies were received from Archdeacon Gunther, the Revs. W. Mort, M.A., G. C. Beck, E. Hargrave, C. Blacket, W. A. Charlton, B.A., J. Byng, and other members. Among those present were Lady Harris, Mrs. John Marks, Mrs. A. J. Gould, Mrs. Gillett, Mrs. C. Mansfield, Miss Levvy, Mrs. J. Marks presided. The report showed that the society was steadily working. Sermons and addresses had been given by the reverend members on the duty of humanity to animals, and most encouraging letters had been received from Archdeacon Gunther (Parramatta), Canons Martin, Kingsmill (Goulburn), Spencer (Albury), Faunce (Yass), and others. A letter had been written to the President of the Royal Agricultural Society entreating that "docked horses" might be disqualified from prizes at the shows. A letter had also been sent to the Gun Club protesting against the use of living birds, and entreating that the clay target might be used. It had been unanimously decided by the executive that the clergy of non-Anglican churches should be invited to membership and that the matter should be placed before the general committee. The report was adopted. The committee regretted the loss of their President, the late Dean of Sydney. The following officers were elected:—President, Archdeacon Gunther; vice-presidents, the Archdeacon of Cumberland, the Dean of Goulburn, Sir John See, Miss Snowdon Smith, Lady Harris, Mrs. John Marks, Mrs. A. J. Gould; hon. secretary, the Rev. J. W. Gillett, B.A.; hon. corresponding secretary and treasurer, Miss Levvy; the general and executive committees were re-elected. Congratulations were received from the Church S.P.K.A. (England), on the successful formation of the society in N.S.W. It was represented that many young clergymen, shortly after ordination, were appointed to country parishes where they were chiefly dependent on their horses when travelling and that it would be advisable that the "nature and requirements of the horse" should be studied by them, thereby saving possible suffering to the animal and inconvenience to themselves. It was decided that this matter should be brought under the notice of the principal of Moore College.

POULTRY.

All questions relative to fancy or commercial poultry keeping, diseases, &c., should be addressed to "Ancona," "Herald" Office.

Inquirer.—It cannot be said that poultry are much larger now than formerly. In England 60 years ago at a show the then Earl Spencer won the highest prize for a turkey, which weighed 20lb. 4oz.; one pair of ducks, 11lb.; one pullet weighed 7lb. 8oz.; a goose 18lb. 2oz. Two turkeys were sent to Cork, one weighing 33lb., and the other 34lb. In December, 1833, three turkeys were sold in London which weighed 91lb., and a fourth one 18 months old made 34lb. Brahmas, Cochins, and other breeds were just as heavy 40 years ago as now.

W.W.—It is not extraordinary for a few feathers to appear on the legs of a Wyandotte. The bird may be as pure bred and from the same stock as those you speak favourably of. It is not the fault of the seller of the eggs, but is what is called a "throw-back."

The present week has witnessed a downward tendency of fully two pence per dozen in eggs, a considerable item to the egg farmer, bearing in mind the continued increase in the feed bill. The lower prices are not the result of any increase in local supply, but in sympathy with the Adelaide markets, from which place some thousands of dozens now almost weekly arrive in Sydney. Added to this is the fact of a weaker demand, largely attributable to the unsatisfactory condition of those arriving from the northern rivers, the heat wave prejudicially affecting this product. The excess of supply over demand has caused considerable quantities to be placed in cold stores during the past few weeks. Otherwise the slump in prices would have been more marked still. However, despite this, those associated with the trade predict that very high prices will obtain during the months of April, May, and June, and in view of this, those holding quantities in storage have determined not to release them until the months mentioned.

Good chickens excepted, all other classes of poultry within the past fortnight have been procurable at prices much in favour of buyers. Old hens are now plentiful, many being put in the market at the close of their laying period. Ducks of the several sorts show a great reduction, geese also sharing in the downward tendency. The very few turkeys offered are sufficient to meet the present limited demand, the presence of the frozen goods from Canada contributing to lower prices for the live birds. Altogether poultry breeders who have to go to market for all their food supplies are having a hard time of it, the proportionate higher figure ruling for both eggs and poultry over that of this time last year falling short as a compensation to the 100 per cent. and more excess in all sorts of cereal foods. Many in consequence are limiting their breeding operations, the prospect of cheaper wheat and maize, being, it is thought, at a considerable distance.

In accordance with rule 29 of the Poultry Club, the committee has issued voting papers, inviting members to recommend persons who, in their opinion, are best fitted to judge the various breeds of fowls annually catalogued. Consideration will only be given to those recommendations for breeds which the members exhibit. The list has to be filled in and returned to the hon. secretary, Mr. L. L. Ramsay, at an early date.

When late in 1899, the first Jubilee Orpingtons were imported by Messrs. Hayes and Bradshaw, and later by Mr. Gilliam, of Riverstone, few thought the then new breed would, in the course of three years, attain its present proportions, as many as 16 entries in a class appearing at some shows during the past year. This growth of the variety was the more surprising seeing that they have been fought shy of in England, the first classes provided for them there at a few shows only being inserted on the guarantee of Mr. Cook to pay any deficiency between the entry fee and prize money, thus securing the show against loss in this variety. This action of Mr. Cook has evidently had the desired effect, the appearance of the birds in the shows prompting so many fanciers to give them a trial that already a meeting is called to form a club for this and the other new varieties of this popular breed. Standards are to be adopted whereby the fowls are to be judged, and this will be welcomed in Australia, seeing that hitherto, in the absence of some English guidance, the making of awards here had to be done in a haphazard manner. Once the new standard arrives, more uniformity will result, and the breed necessarily benefited. Mr. John Horn, of Epping, Essex, is to be the first secretary, and as this gentleman was the secretary of the first Black Orpington Club, and afterwards secretary for the English Poultry Club, there is little fear for the success of the new venture.

Many of the theories of poultry experts are taken for granted, but when put to the test, there has been surprise at the result. We are told that the hens must have lime in some form or they will have nothing to make shells of, and will consequently lay soft eggs. Despite this there are those who can testify that they have kept poultry on limestone land, and where all water was charged with lime, and have had as many soft-shelled eggs as when the fowls were kept on a soil destitute of lime and water as well. Chickens have been successfully reared and fattened on land, which, as far as human eye could see, was destitute of grit or gravel, and none was supplied artificially. They were fed on wheat and maize. It may seem hard to understand how they digested the grain, still they did it, and prospered; the conclusion being that what is necessary for best results is to feed well with sound food, provide comfortable houses, clean water, and some green or succulent food, and a little meat, all nostrums to be avoided.

There appears to be a growing inclination in England to discard the Indian Game as a cross with Dorking, in favour of the Old English Game to produce the best quality of table fowls. The offspring of the Old English Game will be finer fleshed, whiter skinned, and smaller boned than from the Indian. The birds, too, will be ready for the table earlier, and carry an equal amount of flesh in front and less offal, for young table fowls, the cross cannot be excelled. The Indian Game—Dorking—makes a bigger looking fowl when fully developed, but when dressed for the table it is liable to be yellow skinned. There is no particular variety of the Old English Game preferable, any colour will do provided they are fully grown. During last year's shows a few of the best Old English Game seen in the Sydney shows were exhibited by Dr. Fiaschi, and Messrs. Lurcock and Fraser.

At this season of the year, with many chickens gradually increasing in size, and consequently requiring more breathing space, there is no point of more importance, and yet so frequently overlooked by poultry keepers, than the proper ventilation of the sleeping quarters. It is a common occurrence for a couple of broods of chickens, just beginning to go to perch, to be roosted in a house, already sufficiently full of old birds. Perhaps at first no great harm is done, but in a week or two, the chickens growing well, heat increases, the air supply becomes less in proportion to the lung surface to be supplied, the atmosphere in the house becomes stuffy and hot, and the chickens leave their house early in the morning and coming into the cool air take a chill. As a consequence, it will be seen by an observant keeper, that the bird's nostrils begin to run; but more often than not the matter is overlooked, and a neglected cold, together with the foul air of an over-crowded house, brings on roup. It is much better to keep the chickens in houses by themselves as long as it is possible. A roomy coop, fitted with a well-ventilated front, or even left open altogether in front, and placed in a position protected from the wind, is much more beneficial than a share of an overcrowded house.

Irregular feeding or overfeeding with hard, dry corn, is very liable to cause crop trouble. Over-distension, by giving too large a feed of grain after a long fast, or mechanical obstruction, on account of some indigestible substance blocking the passage from the crop to the gizzard, are common causes. Where no regard is paid to the hours of feeding, and large quantities of grain, such as maize, poor oats, and barley, are thrown down, some fowls will be sure to gorge themselves greedily. As soon as the grain is put down they rush eagerly at it, and eat all they can, a mouthful at a time. This is unnatural, a fowl should pick up a grain and not a mouthful at a time. The fowl stimulated by the presence of the others, gobbles down as much as possible, overfills the crop, and then has what in the human being would be called "pain in the chest." By instinct the bird has recourse to water, but it can only pass to the gizzard as that organ empties itself of the food previously in it. In the meantime it swells, and causes distension of the crop. From the daily occurrence of this there is a loss of digestive powers. The gizzard has become large, weak, and flaccid, unable to dispose of the food daily put in it. Appetite ceases, and thirst increases, the fowl drinks to the last and dies. A careful poultry keeper will, however, notice any bird with distended crop, and a simple operation may be performed which will save the life of the fowl. Take a sharp knife or lance, and having picked the feathers from the front of the breast in a straight line downwards, cut it open. The opening should be made over the most dependant part of the crop, and from 1½ to 2 inches in length. Next make a small incision in the crop, clear out its contents and well wash it. Close the opening in the crop by sewing it, and then the outer skin. Be sure to sew them separately, and let each stitch be independent of the other, by knotting the ends, and be careful that the lips of the wound are drawn together evenly. About four stitches in the crop and three in the outer skin will be sufficient. Horse-hair or silk may be used, but rub the suture thoroughly with vaseline or glycerine. After the operation keep the bird in a small place for a few days, and feed her on well-prepared soft food, allowing a few hours' rest before food is given.

A laying hen will consume considerably more food than one that is idle. The amount of grain that a heavy layer will consume varies with the individual, no matter of what breed it may be. The secret of feeding laying hens for maximum profits lies in close observation by the feeder and intelligent application of the same.

OLD AGE PENSION ACT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I beg to call attention to a grave obstacle to carrying out the policy of the Old Age Pension Act, which provides that in consideration of 25 years' continuous reputable residence in New South Wales the aged poor citizen of 65 years shall be eligible for a pension for services rendered in developing the resources of the country and contributing to the expense of government.

Many aged citizens who have resided continuously 25 and more years in New South Wales are denied a pension on the ground that the period of residence is not that "immediately preceding the date of applying for the pension."

Thus, though the substantial conditions of the Act are met entitling the aged citizen to a pension in accordance with the policy of the Act, he is denied a pension on the grounds that the period of his 25 years' residence is not that "immediately preceding the date of his application" for a pension.

He may have resided a year in Queensland and finally returned to New South Wales and applied but finds that his year's residence in Queensland has cancelled his 25 or 35 years' residence in New South Wales.

A Government regulation would remove this anomaly and wrong in administering the Act.

I am, &c.,
ALEXANDER BLACK.

KUTNOW'S POWDER.

A PERFECT REMEDY FOR CONSTIPATION, DERANGEMENTS OF THE STOMACH,
LIVER, AND KIDNEYS, INFLUENZA, RHEUMATISM,
GOUT, LUMBAGO, AND URIC ACID TROUBLES.

IRRESISTIBLE EVIDENCE.

"THE MEDICAL JOURNAL," Dec., 1901, says:

"Lithemic or uric acid storms manifest themselves very disagreeably in severe nose and throat affections and colds in the winter seasons. Most of these troubles can be traced to disorders of digestion, assimilation, secretion, excretion, and elimination.

If our food be properly digested and the adipose matter promptly eliminated, there would be by far fewer cases of colds and coughs. The kidneys, the liver, and in fact all organs of the abdominal cavity have to be kept in good working order, like the mechanism of a good clock, therefore the main object of the physician is to keep the inner organs free from all toxicants produced by faulty metabolism.

Nothing is so highly recommended for that purpose and unanimously endorsed and prescribed by the medical authorities of the present age as Kutnow's Powder, of which the late Sir Morell Mackenzie, in his decisive and positive mode of expressing his opinions, wrote: "I have tried it, and find that it answers particularly well.'"

DOCTORS PRESCRIBE IT.

An aged clergyman to whom I recommended Kutnow's Powder tells me 'he finds it both effective and agreeable.'—Yours faithfully,

"J. BOND SULLIVAN, M.D., M.R.C.S., Eng., &c."

"Holm, Kirkwall, Nov. 2, 1901.

"Addingham Vicarage, Langwathby, Cumberland, April 3, 1901.

"Dear Sirs,—I am much obliged for the bottle of Kutnow's Powder. I consider it an excellent remedy for the liver and kidneys. It has the best advantage of being pleasant to take.—Yours faithfully,

"(Rev.) T. W. STEPHENSON, Vicar."

ALL MANKIND BENEFIT BY IT.

"Lynton Dene, Liphook, Hants.

"I have to thank you for kindly sending me bottle of your Kutnow's Powder, which I have used and am glad to say have certainly derived benefit from it, and shall continue its use, as it is by far the best gentle aperient and anti-acid I have ever used.—Yours truly,

"A. H. McNAB (Major)."

"Anglesey Abbey, Lode, Cambridge, Jan. 6, 1902.

"Sirs,—I have no objection to you using my name in saying my parlourmaid was suffering from indigestion, and I gave her your Kutnow's Powder, which at once relieved her, and she says did her much good; so that now I am sending for another bottle of the same to keep by me for any member of my family's use. Enclosed Postal Order, as requested, to include postage.—Faithfully yours,

(CHRONICLED BY HENRY W. LUCY.)

The Bishop's Friends—How Acts of Parliament are Made—Letter Postage to Australia—Crisis in the War—De Wet's Tactics—Disappearing Ireland—The Gulf Stream.

WESTMINSTER, Dec. 19.

By bitter irony of fate the Bishops of the Protestant Church of England have this week triumphed in the House of Commons through the agency of the Irish members, driven into the division lobby by the Roman Catholic priests. This was only one incident in an episode of which good churchmen are not especially proud. There is no question—indeed Mr. Balfour frankly admitted it in almost the last speech on the Education Bill he made in the Commons—that that measure was a matter of bargain between the Bishops and his Majesty's Ministers. The right reverend fathers set out on the homely principle, not unknown in Holland in Canning's time, of asking everything and giving nothing. In the end, after much wrangling, we have the Education Bill as it was introduced in the Commons. As Mr. Balfour said in the speech alluded to, in this earlier form not only did the measure excite the bitterest resentment on the Opposition benches, it created a dangerous fissure in Ministerial ranks, many influential and enlightened friends of denominational education believing that its cause was damaged by submission to the greediness of Convocation.

When the bill reached the Lords, the Bishops, assured of possession of advantages to the Church conceded by the bill, went outside their bargain, and demanded as an additional burden laid on the back of the long-suffering ratepayer that he should bear the cost of damage due to wear and tear of the furniture and fixtures in church schools. This proposal was tried in the House of Commons by Lord Hugh Cecil, and utterly defeated. In the Lords it was carried by what in that place is regarded as a small majority, marshalled against the popular will. The amendment came before the Commons on Wednesday, and it might have been regarded as a matter of course that it would be struck out of the bill. So it would but for the pressure put by the priests upon the Irish members, compelling them to abandon the tactics of their leader, Mr. John Redmond, and return to the House of Commons. With 65 Irish Home Rulers voting with Unionists the Bishops' supplementary demand on the purse of the ratepayer was approved by a majority of 38. Had the Irish members continued to remain absent it would have been negatived by 27.

The session brought to an end this week beats the record alike in the matter of working days and of dullness. A session that has seen the passing of an Education Bill, a London Water Bill, and the reform of Parliamentary procedure cannot be called barren. But the manner in which the work has been effected is not calculated to increase respect for the legislative machine. Through the first seven months the House dallied with its work. In the two months of the autumn session it drove it through after the fashion of a steam roller.

The stranger in the Gallery, reverentially entering the fane of the Mother of Parliaments, must have been amazed, not to say shocked, to see how laws are made. During the two nights' debate on the Lords' amendment to the Education Bill, when the finishing touches were put to a momentous measure, nothing was more common than to see the Prime Minister standing at the table hurriedly scribbling an amendment. The House sat waiting to catch the final form, which, orally suggested, was perhaps varied three or four times before the Minister and the House were satisfied that he and they had expressed exactly what they meant. A business man would not like to write an ordinary letter in such circumstances. Yet here was the House of Commons settling on the spur of the moment, in phraseology members had not seen in manuscript, much less in print, some delicate turn of an Act of Parliament. The situation was made more deplorable when, as happened more than once, on putting the question the Speaker was not able to read the hurried scrawl, and had to be prompted by the Premier.

Early in the year positive announcement was made of completion of arrangements for bringing Australasia within the penny postal ring. The minimum fee for letters is still twopence halfpenny, but unless the Postmaster-General takes a too sanguine view of the situation the reduction will not be postponed far through the new year. I learn, on the highest authority, that Mr. Austen Chamberlain has just sent to the Colonial Office, for transmission to the Federal Government, a communication on the subject calculated to bring about what is regarded as a popular boon. The difficulty with the Federal Government is that the inter-state postage on the Australian continent is twopence, and it would be an anomaly whilst that regulation is in force to establish an ocean penny postage. That somehow or other, at no distant date, this will be done is a belief confidently entertained at St. Martins-de-Grand.

A member of the Natal Government, on a visit to this country, tells me a fact that illustrates more sharply than pages of description the critical state of things in South Africa in those dark December days that marked the close of the year 1899. Three years ago, the week which closes with this very day (from December 10 to 17), marked the ebb tide of British fortune in the field. Within its space three separate actions had been lost, involving the capture of 12 guns, the killing or catching of 2000 men. With Ladysmith beleaguered, Colenso stormed, the Boers poured two armies into Southern Natal, their objective being the capital of the State. The Minister tells me that at Durban the situation was regarded as so hopeless that all the Government property, its treasures and its archives, were packed up ready for flight by sea as soon as the Boers should arrive. A few half battalions of infantry and a few companies of local volunteers were all the force that stood between them and Durban. Fortunately the Boers dallied on the way, and before they were in full march the eagerly-awaited transports steamed into the harbour of Durban, and 10,000 men stood between the town and the invaders.

A development of De Wet's tactics in the field that specially caught public fancy at home and on the continent was described in picturesque telegrams from the front, showing how, when the Boer General seemed to be cornered by Lord Kitchener's blockhouse scheme, he broke through the encircling ranks by driving in front of his men a mob of cattle. These, breaking down the wire fences, and throwing the troops into disorder, enabled the slim Boer and his men to get through. Sir Conan Doyle tells me that when writing the final chapters of his history of the war he, accepting this narrative as accurate, embodied it in his book. Having occasion to communicate with De Wet on some point, he received from the General emphatic contradiction of the report, and this passage of the true history, already in type, was in consequence deleted.

During his so-called holiday in Ireland Mr. George Wyndham will take into consideration a quite new Irish grievance. *Contaminated by example on certain in*land districts the Atlantic Ocean is steadily, apparently with increasing effort, engaged upon land-grabbing. Along the western coast the sea makes constant inroads, the actual area of the island becoming appreciably decreased. A proposal submitted to the Irish Office recommends the appointment of a survey of the coast line, fixing points as was long ago done on the coast of Scandinavia. These will show how the land lay at the commencement of the twentieth century, and will enable savants to determine at what rate the island is being wasted at particular points, and whether the loss is made up by accretion in other quarters. On the northern and eastern coasts of England this double process steadily goes on. At Cromer, for example, the sea has within the last century so far encroached as to bury a church, whilst at Winchelsea long stretches of sand now lie dry where once the ocean flowed.

At Southampton the area of Great Britain has been appreciably extended by engineering art. The sea has been slowly but firmly driven back, and some acres of valuable land have been created. This is one of the comparatively minor works undertaken by Sir John Aird, concurrently with his construction of the Great Dam at Assouan, and a trifle like the many-acred reservoir up the river for the supply of water to London. The millions required for the work have been supplied partly by the corporation of Southampton and partly by the London and South-western Railway Company, with far-seeing policy to increase the trade of a town in which they have so large an interest. The other day I visited the works, personally conducted by one of Sir John's lieutenants, and have rarely seen such interesting enterprise on the part of indomitable man. Inch by inch and foot by foot the astonished sea has been driven back till the deepwater line has been reached, and ocean steamers will shortly be able to run alongside and discharge their cargo without going into dock. On the rescued land are built spacious warehouses. The work of construction is made possible only by the offices of divers, who go down to the sea, not in ships but in water-tight air-supplied helmets, and boots with heavy lead soles.

Ireland's grievance against the Atlantic is, as the Irish members say is the invariable case, England's opportunity. According to geological research the North of Ireland in the distant ages formed part of a plateau including Iceland, Greenland, and the Hebrides. The British Islands were at that time scarcely less arctic in temperature than is Iceland at this day. Upheaval of the troubled earth rent this barrier, and through it came tumbling the Gulf Stream, which caused Great Britain and Ireland to blossom as a rose. Ireland, receiving the first embraces of the stream is, on its western coast, less winterly than the sister isle. But for the same reason it is literally losing ground.

Visiting the south-west of Ireland some years ago I made the acquaintance of a parson of the then lately disestablished Church, whose life was saddened by apprehension of a great calamity. He could hardly sleep of nights wondering what would become of Ireland and his personal flock if the Gulf Stream ceased to flow around the island. He had made minute study of its history. He was able to trace its eastward course across the Atlantic. It was decidedly erratic, evidently designed by divine Providence for the comfort and delectation of Great Britain and Ireland. But a deflection say of 500 miles to the southward would leave us outside its beneficent influence, and M'Gillicuddy's Reeks would be even as Greenland's icy mountains. No wonder the good man, in the dead unhappy night, tossed on his lonely bed.

ASSOCIATION FOR ASSISTING DISCHARGED PRISONERS.

The monthly meeting of the above association was held at the office, Elizabeth-street, on the 22nd instant. There were present Messrs. Milner Stephen (in the chair), F. S. Boyce, R. Windeyer, A. Collis, and the Revs. Collier, Amos, and Philippstein. A number of letters were read from persons who had been assisted expressing thanks for what had been done on their behalf, and in several instances the whole or an instalment of the money spent was refunded to the association. The work for the month was as follows:—Employment found, 10; meals provided, 5; lodgings, 5; tools lent, 4; clothing supplied, 5; fares paid, 3; swags, 3; assisted in other ways, 3; applications refused, 5.

THE N.S.W. ALLIANCE AND THE LIQUOR BILL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Judging from Canon Boyce's letter in your issue of the 17th instant, it is evident that both he and the N.S.W. Alliance have agreed to accept the Liquor Bill without making any effort to have the main object of the alliance incorporated in that bill. What position the alliance hopes to stand in, in relation to the liquor question, after this ignominious surrender, it is for Canon Boyce and the alliance to say. Personally I have never been an extremist, but I have stood for consistency. I have believed in local option, and full local option, as a democratic principle; and the principles I believe in I am prepared to advocate and contend for. But for the constituted public guardians of that principle to haul down their flag, and to be consenting parties to the liquor interest becoming entrenched under a system of practically perpetual license, is a catastrophe to our cause that may well make the liquor interest to rejoice, and at the same time fill the hearts of social reformers with dismay. That this is the case is abundantly evident on Canon Boyce's own showing in his letter referred to.

Canon Boyce relies on clause 50, which is the clause governing the conditions under which licenses are to be renewed. The process of securing a renewal is, under the bill, purely a formal one, unless there be police objections on the score of bad character or conduct of the house on the part of the licensee, or failure to keep up the required accommodation. Sub-section (d) gives the licensing bench discretion with regard to "any other objection which appears to the licensing court to be sufficient." But in the "objections" formally expressed, the "reasonable requirements of the neighborhood" are not mentioned in the clause (50), governing renewals. That objection is definitely stated in clauses 48 and 49 as one to be taken as against the original grant of a license or its removal to another neighbourhood; but it is expressly omitted from consideration in regard to the question of a renewal. The inference is obvious, and it would scarcely be possible to express more definitely that when once a license is granted, it is to remain intact, unless the licensee shall forfeit the same by some laches of his own. This being the case, a vested interest is set up in the license. It becomes a valuable asset, and not even the Parliament can subsequently dispossess the licensee of that asset unless upon the commercial considerations usually obtaining in such cases, viz., by honourable compensation.

But the alliance hopes to get presently "a short and separate bill" to embody the principle of full local option, without compensation. Let us look at this matter as reasonable and practical people. Is the Parliament likely to spend months in dealing with a bill "to amend, consolidate, and extend" the liquor laws, and then, almost before the ink on the printed copies of the Act is dry, proceed to amend that Act in a most vital particular? We are afraid or ashamed to ask Parliament to trust the people fully in the main Act; but we become consenting parties to the settling up of perpetual licenses, and the creation of a valuable asset, and then immediately this has been done we ask Parliament to proceed to undo what we have consented shall be done, and to provide machinery for discontinuing these licenses if the people should desire it to be done. Is there any statesmanship in this course? Is it a course that indicates seriousness of purpose on our part? Is it a course that Parliament is likely to be a party to?

The present is undoubtedly a critical juncture in the history of temperance legislation in this State. The bill now before us contains several provisions that social reformers are glad to welcome. But those provisions are embedded in a measure that gives the traffic, once established, a practically indefeasible tenure. It sets up an interest that under it can boldly and successfully challenge the alliance in its "main object," which is as stated by itself:—"To obtain a law that would give the electors power by direct voting in every electorate, and all over the colony, to reduce the number of licenses to sell intoxicating liquors, or to have prohibition, as they might desire." And yet, singular to relate, this very alliance and its president are now found supporting a bill which provides for the renewal in perpetuity of all licenses now held or to be granted, and entirely omits to provide for any reduction in the number of those licenses except by the personal default of the licensee!

Canon Boyce mentions with approval New Zealand and Canada. Why does he not lead us in an earnest effort to get similar principles to those obtaining there included in our legislation? The Transvaal may now be added to the list. A liquor ordinance has recently been established there, giving the power to a majority of the ratepayers to diminish the number of licensed houses at any licensing time, and that without compensation. Why should these things be commended to us and no practical effort be put forth to secure similar powers, when a comprehensive liquor bill is under consideration? The alliance may seek to justify its present inglorious position on grounds of expediency. But in assisting to entrench the liquor traffic the alliance will perform the happy despatch upon itself and put back for many years to come the cause it has ostensibly stood for as the champion of popular rights in relation to liquor suppression.

I am, &c.,
January 24. J. E. CARRUTHERS.

THE DINNER HOUR.

The dinner hour should be the most pleasurable of the whole twenty-four, alike to the working-man who fares plainly at midday, and the gentleman who banquets sumptuously in the evening. The man who eats just because it is a necessary performance, without which he cannot live, is in a bad way, and the man who cannot eat without the fear of painful consequences is in a worse way. Only the man who desires to eat, and derives pleasure and strength from the act, is in the right way. Someone having asked Diogenes at what hour it was proper to dine, he replied: "If you are rich, when you please; if you are poor, when you are able;" but he could not state what a man afflicted as Mr. Frederick J. Pauley, of Arthur-street, Croydon, N.S.W., formerly was ought to do.

Mr. Pauley, writing on 6th July, 1902, says: "Before taking Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup I used to dread to eat a small slice of dry toast, but now I can digest a beefsteak with ease. From 1887 to 1892 indigestion and liver complaint made my life a burden to me. I was then residing at Burwood, and everybody in that locality was acquainted with my illness. My stomach was unable to tolerate food of any sort, the little that I forced myself to eat producing dreadful pains in the chest and abdomen, bilious attacks, and fits of vomiting. My sleep was scanty, broken, and unrefreshing, and I felt completely worn out. I tried doctor after doctor, and numerous patent medicines; but gained no permanent relief. On the contrary, I continued to go steadily downhill. In the hot days of summer I would often collapse when engaged in work, and have to lie down in the shade of some tree or wall, where I would remain for hours in a kind of stupor, powerless to lift a hand or raise my head. One day, when I had begun to regard my case as hopeless, a small pamphlet was left at my house. I have good reason to remember the date. It was on the 10th of November, 1893, that that 'messenger of glad tidings' came to hand. I read it through, and found that it contained a number of testimonials from persons who had been cured of indigestion and other diseases by Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup. Hoping there might still be a chance for me, I obtained a bottle of that medicine, and began to mend with my first dose of it. I never once looked back, and a course of thirteen bottles worked my complete and permanent cure, and I have had no recurrence of my complaint."—Advt.

A WORK FOR CATHOLIC HOMES.
SEND FOR A COPY.
"HIS EMINENCE," AN ILLUSTRATED MONOGRAPH.
A SOUVENIR for CARDINAL MORAN'S SACERDOTAL GOLDEN JUBILEE.
IN APPRECIATION OF HIS WORK AS PRELATE AND PHILANTHROPIST, SCHOLAR AND STATESMAN.
Edited by P. R. QUINN, Esq., M.L.A.

Over Twenty Superb Illustrations, and a large folio picture of his Eminence (size 19 x 14) in Cardinal's robes, executed in natural colours, by D. H. SOUTER (Art Editor).

A CHORUS OF PRAISE.—Extracts from Letters and Reviews.

THE BISHOP OF WILCANNIA:—"Your firm deserves great praise for the manner in which the work has been brought out. . . It is a fitting souvenir of the Sacerdotal Golden Jubilee of his Eminence. . . . I wish the work the success it deserves."

THE BISHOP OF BATHURST:—". . . A valuable work containing a well-written account of the great labours of his Eminence Cardinal Moran. It should receive a large patronage."

THE BISHOP OF SALE:—"Accept my thanks for your highly artistic work."

THE BISHOP OF SANDHURST:—"The book is a timely and welcome record of Australia's foremost citizen. . . . It is saying much when I state my conviction that it is worthy of its subject. . . . I hope that your monograph may find a place in every Catholic home."

BISHOP OF PORT AUGUSTA:—"I admire the artistic taste displayed, and the manner in which the work is presented to the public, and wish it all success."

THE BISHOP OF AUCKLAND:—"I am delighted at this mark of esteem as shown to one of our greatest representatives in your beautiful brochure."

THE BISHOP OF CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z.:—"It is a valuable work, and I assure you I have perused it with the utmost pleasure."

"AUSTRALASIAN CATHOLIC RECORD."—"It is a triumph of the art of printing. . . . It is undoubtedly a work of great merit."

"THE FREEMAN'S JOURNAL":—"Those who expected something choice will not be disappointed in the monograph, . . . The illustrations are numerous and beautiful."

"THE CATHOLIC PRESS":—"It is a vigorous production, and a valuable record of some of the most picturesque and striking incidents in the career of the Cardinal Archbishop, and should be seen in every Catholic home."

"SYDNEY MORNING HERALD":—"The manner of the presentation of the Monograph is a distinct credit to Messrs. William Brooks and Co., Ltd. The illustrations are admirable, and the printing is excellent. It is a useful contribution to the recent history of the State."

"THE DAILY TELEGRAPH":—"The Monograph is a signal feature of the Cardinal's Sacerdotal Golden Jubilee. . . . It cannot be said that the matter appeals to the Cardinal's fellow-churchmen only. . . . From the hands of William Brooks and Co., Ltd., it issues with an excellence that marks a stage in Australian printing."

"THE EVENING NEWS":—"One of the handsomest publications ever issued in Australia."

"THE AUSTRALIAN STAR":—"It will be a valuable memorial of an interesting occasion, and of one who is decidedly to be considered as an interesting man."

"THE SUNDAY TIMES":—"An ambitiously conceived life of Cardinal Moran. The work is in very large folio, the cover and title page richly illuminated, written in good readable style, and handsomely printed."

"THE ORANGE LEADER":—"A valuable work, not only for the crispness and brightness of its literary style, and the highly artistic nature of the illustrations, but also because it is probably the most superbly gotten up publication ever issued in Australia."

BISHOP OF LISMORE:—"'HIS EMINENCE' is an admirable production, and is highly creditable to your establishment."

THE BISHOP OF GOULBURN:—"The more I read of it and the closer the attention I bestow upon it, the more admirable in every way does it appear to me to be. In richness of historical and biographical matter, in elegance of style, in beauty of illustration, in that judicious arrangement of materials and literary finish which imparts an unflagging interest to every page, it seems to me to be worthy of its illustrious subject and of those stirring times in which he has taken such a leading part. Let me add my hope that the sympathy of an appreciative public will amply reward the courage and enterprise and ability which have enriched our infant Catholic literature with a work which, so far as it goes, would be worthy, both in its subject matter and its treatment of that matter, of the best days of the Church in any age or in any land."

NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

A DREADFUL PERIOD OF SUFFERING.

"CLEMENTS TONIC SAVED ME."

THE CASE OF MRS. E. WEEDEN.

(By a Special Reporter.)

As great interest was manifested in all circles respecting the following subject, a representative waited on Mrs. Elizabeth Weeden, of No. 67 Cleveland-street, Redfern, who is well known in the locality in which she lives.

"I am pleased that you have called," said Mrs. Weeden, "as it gives me an opportunity to let the public know what was my real position at the time you refer to, and also to remove any misapprehensions which might exist in the minds of some of my neighbours. It appears that the general assumption was that I had profited in health by following a certain course of treatment recommended by my doctor. Nothing of the sort was the case, for after carrying out his instructions for a long time my prospects were no brighter, so I gave him up and tried to get relief through the aid of several medicines which I had seen advertised in the papers. They were no less effective, and as they all failed to reach the base of my afflictions I thought I was never going to have my health back again."

"What was the nature of your complaint?" inquired the reporter.

"The doctor said it was nervous prostration from which I was suffering, and I think he was right, for I used to tremble as if an electric battery was at work all through my body, while the fearsome state of my mind was most distressing, as I was always fancying that some terrible trouble was hanging over me. If the children were not home from school to time I worried myself with the belief that something had happened to them, and such anxiety seemed to make me very irritable and short-tempered. I was always tired and extremely drowsy, feeling at 9 o'clock in the morning as if I could go to bed and sleep all day, such a thing as a desire to get my work done seldom entering my head. Careless and indifferent to everything around me, my life was one continual misery. There was a depressing pain in my head as if a band had been drawn tightly over my eyes, before which little dark specks frequently floated, and sometimes I could scarcely see for a haziness which appeared in front of me. I used to imagine I had a touch of ear-ache, owing to a peculiar sensation like the sound of a bell ringing in my ears, while the shocking headaches I had to endure I shall never forget. You have no idea how wretched I felt when I had eaten a few mouthfuls of food. My stomach became filled with wind, from which I suffered great pain until sour belchings came on, when I felt a little easier; but in the meantime my chest was proving very troublesome, with a feeling as if a load of some kind was going to smother me. Then I commenced to feel sick, and before long my food was retched up again. I had the most awful pains in my side and shoulders; but the manner in which my heart palpitated caused me many a fright. If I walked a few yards my heart fluttered dreadfully, so you may depend I exerted myself as little as possible, more especially as I felt faint and giddy when I moved about. After the least effort to do a little work I used to collapse, my feebleness being so marked that if I tried to sweep a room my strength failed so completely that I felt powerless, even to the tips of my fingers."

"You spoke about feeling so drowsy all day. How did you pass your nights?"

"Well, I was in such a sluggish condition that I could always sleep, but the strange part about it was that I never felt rested or refreshed. This was due, no doubt, to the fact that I had horrible dreams and nightmares, which made me scream out whilst asleep. The children have often come to me in the middle of the night to wake me up so that my screaming would cease; and how terrified I was when I awakened! My mouth was in a nasty state, too, as if I had been tasting copper, my tongue also being covered with fur. I thought my skin would never get white again, it was that yellow, and I was just about as thin as I could possibly be. Nobody but those who have had a similar experience to mine can form the slightest conception of what mental torture is involved when pain is endured and all hope is lost. There was no pleasure in being alive, but still I clung to what little life was left, and now you see a different woman altogether. I am quite well again."

"You are very fortunate. But what made you so?"

"It was a medicine called Clements Tonic which helped me out of my difficulties, and but for that remedy I do not know what I would have done. As the doctor's and other medicines could do me no good, it is only right to say that Clements Tonic saved me, and I shall always deem it my duty to make this fact clear to other people. Yes, it was when I had taken nearly a bottle of Clements Tonic that I felt warmed and strengthened, with a good healthy glow running right through my body, and my spirits brighter than they had been ever since my illness began. Getting some more Clements Tonic, that miserable drowsiness commenced to leave me, and as I was already taking a little food I began to pick up strength. I thought this was splendid progress, and I was highly elated with the great success which attended my use of Clements Tonic—a fact that was borne out by the abatement of my tortures. My headaches became so insignificant that I hardly noticed them; then they died out altogether, and I can say the same about the pains in my side and shoulders. I was so thankful to be thus relieved, and still more encouragement to persevere with Clements Tonic came when flatulence was remedied and the heaviness was lifted from my chest. The anxiety which my heart had caused by palpitating at every turn was readily set aside by Clements Tonic, which seemed to find its way to every nook and corner of my internal organs, and root out every particle of disease which had been left untouched by previous medicines. The sleep which then came was calm and refreshing, and when I got up it was with a clean mouth and a good appetite for my morning meal, and also with a feeling of energy which made it a pleasure to have some work to do. All this time my nervousness was becoming less apparent in every way. I could soon tolerate any noise without trembling, and my mind was free from all fears. I recognised how different my life was, and my grateful thoughts were all centred on Clements Tonic, which I continued taking for another week or so, when I found myself as well as ever, with my complexion clear and my weight regained."

THE WOOL TRADE.

Friday Evening.

A very satisfactory week's business has been done both as to quantity disposed of and rates paid. Of the 25,807 bales catalogued, 20,387 bales found buyers under the hammer, the private sale of 3500 bales bringing up the total clearances to 23,887 bales. Competitions from all sections of the trade was good, and, as a consequence, rates were upheld on a high level, as high as at any time during the current season, many lots which had previously been passed in finding buyers at an advance commensurate with the improved condition of the market. The only sorts which have experienced any slackness of demand or irregularity of sale have been unskirted and slovenly got-up parcels, and these have suffered as they always will do at the hands of buyers. To get the wool bundled into bales somehow and anyhow seems, with many small growers, especially those who shear late, to be all that is necessary. Some growers indeed have gone so far as to state that they have got as much for their unclassified and unskirted wools as their more careful neighbours do who go to the trouble of getting their produce up according to up-to-date methods. This can only have been possible—supposing the respective wools to have been equal in quality and condition—through careless buying. A busy buyer in the rush of the season may once in a way give as much for unskirted as for skirted wool, and a careless one may more often do so; but it may be taken as gospel that neither will so act if they know it. The idea of any man well up in his business knowingly giving as much for fleece, pieces, bellies, and locks all rolled up and packed together as he would for the fleece denuded of the lower descriptions is so absurd as to render discussion or argument on the point impossible. Whilst well-got-up parcels irrespective almost of fine quality will command practically universal competition, mixed and carelessly-put-together lots only receive the attention of the dealers or scourers, who, of course, will only pay a price low enough to enable them to sort into the classes the grower should have done at the shearing-shed table, and get a profit on the resale—a profit, be it emphasised, that the grower with a little trouble might have netted for himself.

Quotations were at their best point, for though in the greasy division no previous records were broken, quality and condition considered, all good wools sold rather better than ever they have done during the present selling season. Scoureds being specially well represented on Wednesday, touched a very high level, up to 25d being paid. This exceeds the previous record of 22¾d by 2¼d per lb., and though apparently an outside figure, was not really so when the high-class, special quality, and superb condition of the line for which this price was paid, are taken into account.

In greasy (white) the top figure was 13½d, obtained by the Pastoral Finance Association for 6 bales super wethers and ewes, and 7 bales wethers marked MHM conjoined over New England, from Armidale, being wool of very fine quality in light condition. Scoured, as mentioned above, sold to 25d, this extreme price being secured by Dalgety and Co., Limited, for 9 bales first clothing, marked M&L over Corona, from Longreach (Q.), other portions of the fleece selling from 24½d to 22½d, whilst the rams' wool brought 21½d, first lambs to 19½d, necks and first pieces 21½d, second pieces 19¾d, bellies 18d, and locks 15½d. Several fresh records have thus been established, and any wool to alter them for the better will have to be of super-excellent merit.

If the opening of the first series of London sales on the 20th instant has not quite fulfilled the expectations of operators on this side the movement of the market has been in the right direction, merino wools and fine crossbreds being par to 5 per cent better than in December and medium to coarse crossbreds 10 per cent. higher. Sales have since been interrupted by fog; but when further business becomes possible, and better wools are submitted, it is not improbable that values will show further enhancement and bring the home market into closer line with the higher relative values which have been ruling locally.

THE PASTURES PROTECTION ACT.

Concerning the arrangements being made to proclaim the new districts under the Pastures Protection Act, we learn that the Lands Department intends to keep to the boundaries of the sheep districts wherever possible. In some instances the present rabbit districts include two or more sheep districts, but there will be a separate district for each sheep district. A difficulty is felt with regard to those sheep districts which are partly in the Western and Central Divisions. The operations of the Pastures Protection Act do not extend to the Western Division, so far as rabbits are concerned, and it is thought in the department that it might be inconvenient if a district were allowed to extend from the Central to the Western Division, seeing that the functions of the board would be restricted so far as a part of the district was concerned.

It seems probable the following alterations will be made:—That part of Balranald sheep district within the Central Division will be included in the Moulamein district; part of the Hay district in the Western Division will be added to the Balranald or Hillston district; part of the Hillston district within the Central Division will be added to the Hay district; part of the Condobolin sheep district within the Western Division will be added to the Hillston district; part of the Cobar district within the Central Division will be added to the Canonba district; part of the Brewarrina district within the Central Division will be added to the Coonamble district; and that part of the Walgett district within the Central Division will be added to the Coonamble or Pilliga districts. A small portion of the Canonba district which extends into the Western Division will be added to the Bourke or Brewarrina districts.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The gross earnings show a decrease of £136,559 over the corresponding quarter of last year, and the expenditure an increase of £37,134.

The falling off in earnings is due to the prolonged drought, which has so disastrously affected the pastoral and agricultural industries. Wool shows a decrease of £64,294; grain, £32,794; general merchandise, £21,236; hay, straw, and chaff, £9,822; live stock, £6,740; minerals (other than coal and coke), £4,882; total decrease, £139,768. Coal and coke show an increase of £3060, and general miscellaneous £3012, the net decrease in goods traffic being £133,696. Coaching traffic shows a decrease in first-class passengers of £331: second-class, £4096. Parcels and other miscellaneous services an increase of £1564—net decrease, £2863. The increase in the percentage of working expenses to earnings is mainly due to the serious decline of remunerative traffic and the conveyance of a much larger volume of traffic at exceptionally low rates. On starving stock and fodder for starving stock alone the concessions amount to about £40,000 for the quarter, while there is an increased expenditure over the corresponding quarter of last year of £23,000 for renewals of locomotive boilers. The extension of the eight-hour system to the running staff has involved an additional expenditure of about £10,000 for the quarter, an additional expenditure was also incurred in running water trains for locomotive purposes. General merchandise shows a decrease of 15,291 tons; grain, flour, &c., 55,639 tons; wool, 26,080 tons; minerals (other than coal and coke), 8237 tons. Hay, straw, and chaff, an increase of 10,095 tons, largely obtained from Victoria for the purpose of feeding starving stock; coal and coke, 90,950 tons; and live stock (principally starving stock), 18,158 tons. 362,039 additional passengers were carried.

CONDITION OF THE LINES AND ACCOMMODATION FOR THE TRAFFIC.

The permanent way and works generally have been efficiently maintained. Very good progress has been made with relaying and re-sleepering operations, 55m. 58¾ chains of urgent work having been completed. The grade improvements on the Newbridge and Blayney line, and those on the North Coast line, will, it is expected, be completed and opened for traffic during the present quarter.

TRAMWAYS.

The gross earnings show an increase of £32,783, and the expenditure (including about £6000 for the eight-hour system) an increase of £30,411. 6,004,677 additional passengers were carried. The following steam lines have been converted to electric, and commenced working under the new system as under:—October 7: Waverley Junction to Randwick. October 20: Bondi Junction to Bondi. November 16: Coogee line; November 24: Crown-street line.

The following extensions were handed over by the construction branch and opened for traffic, viz.:—November 3: Extension of the Newcastle-Merewether Beach line, from the intersection of Darley and Hunter streets to Patrick-street, 1 m., 14 ch. November 24: Extension, Gladstone Park to Nicholson-street, Balmain; Easton-street to Nicholson-street, 48 ch. December 22: Bridge-street to Circular Quay:—(a) From the intersection of Phillip-street and Bridge-street, via Young-street to Circular Quay, and returning to starting point, via Phillip-street, 25ch; (b) Albert-street to the intersection of Macquarie-street with Circular Quay, 23ch. December 22: From the junction of New-street and Elizabeth-street to the junction of Bourke and Elizabeth streets, Waterloo, 1m. 45ch. December 29: Balmain to Drummoyne, from the junction of Darling-street and Weston-road, Balmain, and terminating at the Parramatta River Bridge, Drummoyne, 2m. 12ch. December 24: Broken Hill Tramway (a) from the intersection of Oxide and Argent streets to Murton-street, 1m. 45½ch; (b) from the junction of Paton and South streets, and terminating in Eyre-street, at its intersection by Whittaker-street, 61ch. November 3: Deviation from Belmore Park to the new line, Pitt-street to Hay-street, via Elizabeth-street and Belmore Park, 10ch.

OFFICIAL REPORT ON PERMANENT WAY.

Included in the document is the following report to the secretary to the Railway Commissioners on the condition of the permanent way:—

"Sir,—I have the honour to report, for the information of the Commissioners, that the permanent way and works have been effectively maintained during the past quarter. Very good progress has been made with relaying and resleepering operations, a considerable mileage of urgent work having been completed. The recent heavy local rains affected the permanent way in several places, especially on the Cobar line, where a length of 35 chains was closed for traffic for a period of five days. The grade improvements between Newbridge and Blayney, and those on the North Coast line, will be completed and opened for traffic during the present quarter.

THE ZETLAND TRAMWAY.

At a meeting of the Waterloo Council, held on Thursday evening, and presided over by the Mayor (Alderman J. Navin), a communication was read from the secretary to the Railway Commissioners, in regard to the dust nuisance created by the Zetland tram. The letter stated that as much as possible was being done with the water available by the Commissioners. They would, however, do more if the Council could assist them by supplying the water.

The council clerk (Mr. W. Allen) pointed out that there was a site off Botany-road where a quantity of water was available.

It was decided to obtain a report from the foreman of works as to the best means of obtaining a supply for watering the roads, and the cost of the scheme. It was also decided to ask the Commissioners (if the scheme were approved of) if they would erect a pumping plant for obtaining the water.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Will you be good enough to allow me space in your columns to suggest to our senators and statesmen the desirability of instituting a day of thanksgiving and prayer and humiliation, throughout the Commonwealth of Australia, thus acknowledging and confessing our allegiance to the King of Kings. In the United States of America Thanksgiving Day has been an institution for more than a century, and is designated and honored by a Presidential proclamation. During the past few years we as a people have suffered much: war and pestilence and threatened famine, and drought and mine explosions, and tragedies, and all sorts of judgments have been around and through our borders, and the sufferers thereby have longed and asked for a day of national humiliation and prayer. Could we not have one day appointed by our Commonwealth for humiliation and thanksgiving, that our children may grow up with the knowledge that our nation is a Christian nation? The fourth Thursday in November is usually Thanksgiving Day in America, so November 27th last was specially proclaimed by President Roosevelt, who concluded his proclamation thus: "We now abundantly enjoy material well-being, and under the favour of the Most High we are striving earnestly to achieve moral and spiritual uplifting. The year that has just closed has been one of peace and overflowing plenty. Rarely has any people enjoyed greater prosperity than we are now enjoying. For this we render heartfelt and solemn thanks to the Giver of Good, and we seek to praise Him, not by words only, but by deeds—by the way in which we do our duty to ourselves and to our fellowmen. Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, do hereby designate as a day of general thanksgiving, Thursday, the 27th of November, and do recommend that throughout the land the people cease from their ordinary occupations, and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks to Almighty God for the manifold blessings of the past year." A day so appointed near the close of each year, when the mercies of the passing year could be recorded and its errors deplored, and national thanksgiving be observed, prior to the social reunions that Christmas brings, as the old year passes into eternity, would be an object lesson for our growing youth, and a time never to be forgotten by old or young. Such a proclamation would be an honour to our young Commonwealth, and bring a blessing upon our people. We would thus "give unto the Lord the glory due unto His name." I am, &c.,

Edmund Hugh Rycroft, rector of Highclere, Hants, son of the late Sir Nelson Rycroft and of the Dowager Lady Rycroft, with Miss Winifred Fanshawe, elder daughter of Vice-Admiral Fanshawe, of Adbury Holt, Newbury. The bride, who was accompanied by her father, was attired in a gown of ivory satin duchesse, the skirt trimmed with ruches of silk tulle, while the bodice had drawn yoke and sleeves of the latter, quite transparent, and was draped with a deep frill of beautiful old Brussels lace, held in place with festoons of seed pearls and sprigs of white heather. The train was entirely of Brussels lace. Her ornaments were pearls and turquoises, and white heather was worn in the hair with a net veil. The four bridesmaids wore picturesque gowns of white satin, the skirts frilled with chiffon, and the swathed bodices with transparent vests and sleeves of tucked chiffon. They wore also frilled fichus knotted in front, and forming sash ends at the back, and white beaver hats trimmed with red berries and foliage. The bridegroom gave each an enamel pencil-case and a large bouquet of red chrysanthemums. The Bishop of Guildford performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Canon Blunt, vicar of the parish. The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Gilbert Ogilvy as best man. A reception was afterwards held at Adbury Holt, and in the course of the afternoon the newly wedded pair departed on their way to Italy. The bride went away in a coat and skirt of palest blue frieze over a blouse of soft satin, trimmed with ecru lace; the coat had a large collar of white cloth and lace applique, trimmed with dark fur, and the box-pleated skirt was adorned with lace to correspond. Her travelling attire was completed by a becoming black hat.

MARRICKVILLE COTTAGE HOSPITAL.

The eighth annual meeting of the Marrickville Cottage Hospital was held in the Marrickville Town Hall on Thursday evening. There was a good attendance. Mr. F. E. M'Lean, M.P. (president) occupied the chair.

The hon. secretary (Mr. Percy W. Berne) read the annual report, which showed that substantial progress had been made from a financial standpoint. Early in the year the committee had set seriously to work to consider the recommendation of the medical staff with reference to an isolation ward, and decided to extend the old operating theatre and convert same into a dining and committee room, build a new operating theatre, making allowance for a badly needed extra cupboard, and erect an isolation ward well away from the hospital with accommodation for two patients and one nurse, with offices, &c. These works were duly carried out under the superintendence of Mr. T. Smith (honorary architect) at a total cost of £693 19s, and were furnished at a cost of £60 8s 8d, and form handsome and useful additions, the room formerly used as a dining-room being now available as a nurse's bedroom. The medical staff spoke highly of these additions. The medical officer's report was satisfactory, showing a gratifying increase in the work done by the staff with excellent results. The average daily number of patients resident was 10.7 (as against 10.4), the rate of mortality 4.3 (as against 9.8), the average residence of discharged patients in days 19.8, and the total cost of maintenance and treatment of patients (including outdoor relief and treatment for 126 persons in connection with which no special account was kept) was £560 0s 5d, the average cost of patients per annum being £50 4s 8d, as against £51 0s 2d in 1901. Mention was made in the report of the severe illness of Lieutenant-Colonel Longfield, the honorary treasurer of the hospital.

The president moved the adoption of the report and balance-sheet. He referred to the excellent work done by the committee and officers during the year, and paid a special tribute to the efforts of the honorary secretary (Mr. Berne).

Mr. R. W. W. M'Coy, M.L.A., seconded the adoption of the report, which was supported by Mr. Vicars and others and agreed to.

The following were elected as officers for the ensuing year:—President, Mr. F. E. M'Lean, M.P.; vice-presidents, Messrs. R. W. W. M'Coy, M.L.A., A. R. Ducker, William Vicars, and George Holland; trustees, Messrs. Robert Anderson, William Vicars, and Alderman James Gould; auditors, Messrs. T. W. W. Garde and E. W. Boake. The following nominations were received for a position on the committee. Twelve of these are to be elected. A ballot will take place at the Marrickville Town Hall on Wednesday, February 4:—Messrs. Charles Herbert Barnes (treasurer), P. W. Berne (secretary), Samuel Cook, Thomas Daley, Alderman James Gould, Alderman Thomas Henson, H. R. Linthorn, George Moore, F. R. Turner, W. H. Warstitt, G. B. Whitelaw, Mrs. T. W. W. Garde, and Mrs. Trivett.

CYCLING.

The approaching holiday will be spent by the Waratah Rowing Club touring the mountains, making Blackheath the headquarters till Monday. A compartment has been reserved on the 2.25 p.m. western train to-morrow afternoon, so those intending to take part are advised to proceed by this train. Various places of interest will be visited during the holiday, and the tour will be brought to a finish at Penrith, where the evening train will be taken for Sydney.

Mr. Percy Hordern has landed his new motor tricycle, which is a thoroughly up-to-date machine, and capable of any amount of hard work. The engine is a 3¼ horse power De Dion, and in the few preliminary trials he has given the machine, Mr. Hordern found everything to work satisfactorily. As soon as he is well accustomed to his new mount, Mr. Hordern hopes to accompany the Waratah Rovers Club on many future runs and tours. This afternoon the ladies' auxiliary will hold a run to the Domain.

The Sydney Bicycle Club will spend the holidays at Woy Woy, leaving Sydney to-day and returning home on Monday evening.

Entries close on the 27th instant for the Annandale Club's road-race, to be held on the 31st instant.

The Singleton Club will hold a race meeting on January 26. The principal events are half-mile handicap, one-mile handicap, and two miles handicap.

J. J. Curley, who won £110 at the recent carnival, is the old New England footballer of that name. He has frequently figured in the country week and has played for New South Wales against New Zealand and Queensland.

T. Robl, at the Melbourne Exhibition last week, took on each A. C. Forbes, F. Beauchamp, and P. Dickentmann, over ten miles each, with an interval of 5m. between each race. The German champion gave each rider half a lap start (176 yards), and accounted for all three. Beauchamp had to give up owing to the bottom bracket of his machine coming to pieces. Dickentmann showed improved form by giving Robl a good run, the ten miles being covered by the winner in 16m. 45s.

The Melbourne Bicycle Club, which has the Victorian control of the foreign cracks, Robl and Dickentmann, and has been running a series of paced matches at the Melbourne Exhibition track, held another meeting on Saturday night last. It was very evident that the sameness of the menu is palling on the Melbourne public, for the attendance was sparse, and interest practically dead. The racing on Saturday night was practically robbed of its main interest through F. Beauchamp's tyre rolling off the rim in his match with Dickentmann over ten miles. Beauchamp was severely shaken, and unable to again ride during the evening.

Robl gave a finished performance by conceding A. C. Forbes 3 laps start in 10 miles, the German crack winning easily by over half a lap in 16m. 38 1-5s. Robl rode his fifth mile in 1m. 36 3-5s. A 10-miles motor race resulted in a win for Dickentmann's pacing tandem, which cut out the distance in 16m. 50 2-5s. The racing concluded with a 10-miles contest between Forbes and Dickentmann, the latter rider being substituted for Beauchamp. The Dutchman had an easy task winning by nearly 2 laps in 16m. 49 2-5s.

Thaddeus Robl, now in Melbourne, headed the list of winnings of German riders on home tracks during the season just closed with the substantial sum of 27,825 marks, or about £1391. There is no appearance money or bonuses included in this, nor are foreign winnings taken into consideration. Arend ranks next with 9570 marks, and Ruett is third with 8750 marks. There has been a considerable falling off in the prizes of short-distance men in Germany, as the stayers have been catered for to a previously unheard of extent. Walter Ruett tops the German riders' prize list as he won no less than 28 firsts, 23 seconds, and nine thirds during his successful career both in and out of Germany. Arend occupies the second position here as well, with 25 firsts, 11 seconds, 12 thirds, and four fourths; and Robl is third with 23 firsts, five seconds, five thirds, and two fourths; while Kaeser takes fourth place. The latter is, however, first in the list of prizes taken by German professionals on foreign tracks only, with 13 firsts, six seconds, and three thirds; whilst Ruett and Mayer run him close.

The Archbishop will sail for England on Saturday next by the Orient liner Ophir. During his absence Archdeacon Gunther, M.A., vicar-general, will administer the diocese. The Archbishop hopes to return to Sydney about the end of July or the beginning of August next.

The Archbishop, on the nomination of the Rev. Dixon Hudson, has licensed the Rev. Francis James Harris to the charge of St. Marys, Western line, during the absence of Mr. Hudson, who intends visiting England. On the nomination of the Rev. The Bishop of North Queensland will preach at St. Andrew's Cathedral to-morrow.

The Archbishop has appointed the Rev. Thomas Hillhouse Taylor to work under his direction in the mission district of Ultimo.

Several important changes are taking place in the diocese of Newcastle. In addition to the resignation of Archdeacon Tyrrell, which has been already announced, the Rev. Canon John Shaw, B.A., of Paterson, and the Rev. E. Huband-Smith, of Jerry's Plains, are retiring from active duty. The many friends of the Rev. S. Taylor, B.A., who, it will be remembered, met with an accident on the cricket field upwards of two years ago in the parish of Gresford, and was compelled to visit England for medical advice, will be glad to know that he has recovered, and is on his way from England to resume work in the diocese of Newcastle.

The contract price is £2878, to which there will be added cost of a new fence and other works, making £3044 in all. The indebtedness of the mission hall stands at £180, on St. John's Villa £160, the extension of the mission hall to accommodate the school during the erection of the new buildings, £150. The consolidated debt will, therefore, be £3534. Towards this amount £2050 has been collected.

Clarke, Messrs. J. P. Fitzhardinge, E. R. Holmes, H. W. Kendall, and Dr. E. O. Pockley; treasurer, Rev. D. Davies; secretary, Mr. H. P. Harriott; committee, Messrs. F. C. Adams, W. A. Ball, W. B. Clarke, N. Y. Deane, A. D. Fisher, R. N. Hickson, C. H. Linton, R. S. Reid, and C. W. Rundle.

The Rev. W. R. Mounsey, the organising secretary of the New Guinea Mission, is proceeding to Tasmania, where he will spend about two months in visiting parishes and advocating the claims of the mission.

A successful effort was made at All Saints' Church of England, Petersham, on Sunday last to complete the fund for the extinction of the debt on the building of the church and the rectory by means of golden offertories at the services of the day. At the close of Evensong the rector announced that the amount received was nearly £100 in excess of the amount required, and that the balance would be devoted to the renovation of the church in preparation for the consecration. The total amounted to £314, including an offering of £150. During the past few years the worshippers at this church have raised £1000 for the payment of the building debt, and in the same period about £500 has been paid off the debt on the mission church in the same parish.

Divine service was conducted according to the authorised form on the anniversary of the King's accession in St. John's, Parramatta, by Archdeacon Gunther, assisted by the Rev. J. A. Cooper, on Thursday morning. The National Anthem was sung after the service. At the evening service the Rev. H. Pigott preached on the "Expansion of the British Empire."

The Rev. H. B. Pigott is leaving Parramatta, having accepted a curacy in the parish of Springwood and Lawson.

Moore, presented the prizes, 114 books, which were given for regularity of attendance and good behaviour. There were 290 scholars enrolled. The Rev. E. Moore, Missionary Smith, and Messrs. Lever, P. Smith, and Pope took part in the proceedings. Presentations of sundry tools were made to several members of the carpentry class for proficiency, and a handsome enamel flower stand was presented to Miss Goddard, late of the Mission School, who had shown practical sympathy with the class in its early days.

During the week the members of the Hunter-Baillie Presbyterian Band of Hope, Annandale, entertained about 50 poor children, who were gathered by Missionary James Mathers.

Their years of service read as follow:—Brigadier Bruntnell, 17 years; Majors Albiston and Bennett, 21 years; Major Gallant, 20 years; Staff-captains Hoare and Bishop, 21 and 11 years respectively.

PEOPLE'S REFORM LEAGUE.

A well attended meeting of the People's Reform League was held on Thursday night at the rooms of the League, Post Office-chambers, Mr. Critchley Parker being in the chair. The secretary reported from the country having formed new branches at Hay, Narrandera, and Nundle. Arrangements were made for holding a meeting during the coming week at Tamworth, when Mr. John Garland will address the residents of the district.

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATRE ROYAL.

"The Fortune-Teller" is beginning to "catch on" strongly at the Theatre Royal," where the spirit-stirring ensemble at the end of the second act is twice encored nightly. This scene in which Madame Slapoffski's tuneful voice rises high above chorus and orchestra in the captivating strains of one of the several Czech themes that characterise the work forms a brilliant spectacle. It is but rarely that Mr. George Musgrove has staged a comic opera with such elegance, richness, and solidity of effect. Mr. Lempriere Pringle sings admirably "My Little Gipsy Sweetheart," with unseen chorus, and this serenade forms the popular number of the opera. Miss May Beatty, Mr. J. C. Piddock, and Mr. Edward Lauri are all well placed in the general scheme. There will be a holiday matinee on Monday.

PALACE THEATRE.

After an interval of five years "The Mikado" will be revived at the Palace Theatre to-night. Mr. J. C. Williamson has composed a cast of especial interest, as its newness applies even to the character of Ko-Ko, which has heretofore been invariably played by Mr. Howard Vernon. Gilbert and Sullivan's tuneful and witty opera will be richly staged, and will be performed by the following artists:—The Mikado, Mr. Harold Thorley; Nanki Poo, Mr. Reginald Roberts; Pooh Bah, Mr. P. Bathurst; Pish Tush, Mr. Fred. England; Ko-Ko, Mr George Lauri; Yum Yum, Miss Carrie Moore; Pitti Sing, Miss Maud Chetwynd; Peep-Bo, Miss Lily Everett; and Katisha (for this occasion), Miss Florence Young. The only matinee of "The Mikado" will be next Wednesday, as on Saturday Mr. Williamson will elaborately reproduce the romantic and comic opera, "Robin Hood."

Mr. Williamson has received a cablegram from Mr. Fred. H. Graham announcing the brilliant success of "The Circus Girl," now running at His Majesty's Theatre, Auckland, where it was produced last Saturday.

LYCEUM THEATRE.

"The Breaking of the Drought" is believed to have settled down into a strong run at the Lyceum Theatre, where the success of a drama sustained by a picturesque setting of purely local scenes opens up new possibilities for Australian managers. Mr. Bland Holt has staged the new play with all his accustomed liberality, and Mr. John Brunton's many scenes, in addition to the realistic effects connected with a bush fire and the destruction of a back-blocks station, include beautiful views of Mosman Bay, Little Coogee, and other familiar places.

CRITERION THEATRE.

All through Mr. J. F. Sheridan's pantomime season at the Criterion Theatre the matinees for children have proved a popular feature. The last nights of "Cinderella" are now announced, however, and the last afternoon performances are accordingly fixed for to-day, Monday, and Wednesday next. After the amusing fairy burlesque has run its course, with Miss Celia Mavis as the heroine, and Mr. Sheridan as Baron Bounder, there will be a production of "The Lady Barmaid." Mr. John Crook is the composer of this bright musical comedy, which will be staged next Saturday with full chorus and ballet.

TIVOLI THEATRE.

This afternoon and evening, and again on Monday afternoon, when Mr. Harry Rickards will give a special holiday matinee, the new Tivoli programme will be marked by the return of Mr. Wallace Brownlow in new songs. Professor Maccann, the "English Concertina King," will make his first appearance in this city. M. Jacques Inaudi, the Swiss lightning calculator, the Gracie Emmett Company, Mr. Fred. Poplar, Miss Kitty Wager, and other favourite artists will appear.

Mr. J. C. Leete is now again installed as manager for Mr. Rickards at the Tivoli Theatre after conducting the Sandow tour of New Zealand. This company, which included Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew and other artists, successfully visited all the chief cities, closing at Invercargill after a tour which extended over a period of eight weeks. Herr Sandow sailed from Auckland for San Francisco yesterday.

TOWN HALL ORGAN RECITALS.

This evening the city organist will give a recital of popular and romantic music at the Town Hall. Mr. Arthur Mason's programme will include the overture to "Tannhauser," the captivating intermezzo from Giordano's "Fedora," Schubert's "Ave Maria," and other pieces. The assisting artists will be as named in another column.

THE AMY CASTLES FAREWELL.

Farewell concerts throughout the Commonwealth have been arranged by Mr. J. C. Williamson for Miss Amy Castles, who will initiate her brief tour by a final appearance at the Town Hall on Wednesday, February 4. This concert will also mark the debut of Miss Dolly Castles, a young soprano with a remarkable voice, which amateurs will be glad to hear before it is taken in hand for technical training from next Easter in Paris. Mr. Williamson will bring forward a youthful Australian pianist of remarkable gifts in the person of Miss Freida Miller, who, although already a favourite with the audiences who attend her annual concerts, now for the first time makes her professional debut. Miss Amy Castles is sure to be warmly supported by the Sydney public as a cordial send-off to Europe, for which she sails on the 19th February.

BURNS MEMORIAL CONCERT.

The Burns Anniversary Club forego their Haggis Supper, the Sydney Scottish Association their concert, and the Highland Society their usual celebration of Burns's birthday this year, in order that all the Scottish associations in the metropolis may combine to have a Scots Musical Festival in the Town Hall on Monday evening worthy of the 144th anniversary of the birth of the Scottish poet, Robert Burns. The Scottish choir of 300 voices will render a number of choruses as arranged by Mr. N. J. Gehde, and the Meistersingers, Miss Bessie Fraser, Mr. Alec. Edward, Mr. Montgomery, the City Organist, Mr. Stephenson, Mr. Walsh, and a number of young Australian artistes will render a programme of Burns's choicest love-songs. The concert is under distinguished patronage, and the whole of the proceeds will go to swell the Burns Memorial Fund, which now amounts to £800. Melbourne Scotsmen have already given a commission to a Scottish sculptor for a statue to grace the Victorian capital city, and the Sydney committee hope to see their monument erected within the year.

FISK JUBILEE SINGERS.

The Fisk Jubilee Singers, who open a season of popular concerts at the Town Hall next Saturday, will continue their successful tour of the suburbs until that date. These melodious choristers will appear this evening at Newtown, on Monday at Waverley, on Tuesday at Balmain, on Wednesday at Summer Hill, on Thursday at Manly, and on Friday at Rockdale.

SYDNEY CONSERVATORIUM.

The registrar of the Sydney Conservatorium notifies musical students and others interested in the institution that the next term opens on Monday, February 2. Information as to the course of studies and method of entrance will be supplied on application to the acting registrar.

CYCLORAMA.

The popularity of the Cyclorama is steadily maintained. The picture of the Battle of Gettysburg is the chief centre of interest. It deals with that famous struggle with a degree of detail that appeals to old and young. The illusions "Daphne" and the "Magic Cave" are both entertaining and puzzling, while the series of cinematograph pictures form an attractive item.

PARRAMATTA DISTRICT.

ORCHARD NOTES.

During the past week the weather has been very hot and muggy, and this has had the effect of bringing on the fruit very rapidly, for the fruit would have been much improved by a few showers and some cool weather. The midseason fruit is now being sent away by rail with as much expedition as possible, and the quality, though very fair, is not up to what was expected, owing to the long spell of dry weather. If rain does not soon fall, the orange crop will be even shorter than it was last season, for the young oranges, which were maturing well, are now beginning to feel the effects of the dry weather, and in some places the fruit has already started to wilt and fall to the ground. There were a couple of showers in the fruit districts this week, about 30 points falling. This had the effect of bringing up the trees a bit, but what is now wanted is a good soaking rain. The grape crop is now being cut, and the table varieties are being sent to market as expeditiously as possible. The growers are in hopes yet that the embargo placed by the New Zealand Government on grapes will shortly be removed, and correspondence received from Wellington indicates that pressure is now being brought to bear from inside, it being claimed by experts that phylloxera cannot be introduced by means of the fruit. As regards protecting a local industry, it seems that grape culture is not largely taken up, and the New Zealand article is being retailed at 2s per lb., showing that, after many years of actual prohibition, the industry has failed to take a hold. The consumer has now got tired of waiting for cheap locally grown grapes, and clamours for a share of the grapes that are being retailed in Sydney at 3d per lb.; grapes even superior to the article for which they are now charged 2s per lb.

At the Parramatta Police Court yesterday, before Mr. T. E. MacNevin, S.M., a man named George Wierty, aged 53, described as a labourer, was charged with breaking and entering the shop of David Craddock, of Parramatta, on or about November 28, 1902, and stealing two gold medals and a quantity of jewellery. Evidence was given by Senior-constable M'Donald, of North Sydney, to the effect that in accused's room he had found concealed in a mustard tin, with other jewellery, a brooch which had been identified by Mr. Craddock as part of the property stolen. A chisel was also found on accused's person, and it fitted exactly in two marks made on Mr. Craddock's window frame. Accused, who reserved his defence, was committed to take his trial at the next Court of Quarter Sessions, to be held in Sydney on the 29th instant.

NEW MUSIC.

Messrs. W. H. Paling and Co. publish "Women of the West," a new song composed by Edwina Edkins, and dedicated to "Women Hemmed in Drought." The verses, by George Essex Evans, are distinctly good.

A TRUISM.
The independent testimony of scientific experts and the most eminent skin specialists awards PEARS' SOAP the first position among toilet soaps.—Advt.

INTER-STATE CRICKET.

NEW SOUTH WALES v. VICTORIA.

COMMENCES TO-DAY.

The closing match of the inter-state season, as it affects New South Wales, will begin to-day at the Sydney Cricket Ground, and will be continued on Monday, and until finished. Should this State happen to win, the Sheffield Shield Competition as far as the holdership of the trophy is concerned will be over for this season. There is after this one more match to be played—Victoria v. South Australia. In the event of Victoria defeating New South Wales and then winning against South Australia, New South Wales and Victoria will run a dead heat for the trophy in the matter of victories, in which case the shield will go to the State having the bigger difference between the batting and the bowling averages for the season. At present the figures are very much in favour of New South Wales, showing a credit of 10·75 to New South Wales, 1·08 to Victoria, and a debit of 12·22 against South Australia.

On paper the match beginning to-day looks to be in favour of New South Wales; the capability of Victoria to play an uphill game is, however, traditional—in fact that State has always been known to play the best game when apparently weakest. Ever since their inception, in March, 1856, matches between Victoria and New South Wales have been played with a keenness equalled by engagements between Australia and England only. With the exception of the season 1864-5, when no match took place owing to a dispute at Sydney in 1863, matches have gone on uninterruptedly, and the present is the seventieth that will have taken place. Victoria has won 36, and New South Wales 33. The first two were won by New South Wales, Victoria secured the next two, and the southern State kept in front in results until 1889, when New South Wales gained the lead after 30 years. The New South Wales advantage, was, however short-lived. Victoria went to the front and is still there.

It is worthy of mention that one of the leading players of Victoria for the past 16 years, H. Trumble, has been unable to play in inter-state cricket this season. A match against Victoria with the tall bowler absent hardly looks like inter-state cricket. We may, however, have the pleasure of seeing in W. Bruce one who first played against New South Wales as far back as 1882, though he has not opposed this State since 1899. His batting, always wristy, was brilliant, and so was his work in the field. The spectators will also see Ellis and Hastings, who were responsible for the last wicket Australian record against South Australia, and other new men to Sydney crowds in Noonan, Mailer, and Tuckwell, the lastmentioned making his debut. The Victorians will not decide upon their team until this morning. The twelve are given below. The New South Wales side is a remarkably strong one. If the spectators could be guaranteed such another exhibition as was witnessed when Trumper and Duff were together against South Australia it is safe to say that there would be an enormous crowd present. The teams are:—

VICTORIA.	NEW SOUTH WALES.
W. Bruce	R. A. Duff
F. Laver	V. Trumper
W. W. Armstrong	M. A. Noble
H. Graham	J. J. Kelly
P. M'Alister	R. N. Hickson
F. Collins	W. P. Howell
D. Noonan	A. M'Beth
T. Hastings	A. C. K. Mackenzie
J. V. Saunders	C. Gregory
M. Ellis	L. W. Pye
R. Mailer	A. J. Hopkins
B. Tuckwell	W. S. Duff (12).

Umpires: Messrs. R. Callaway and R. Crockett.

The arrangements are:—Commence at noon; luncheon adjournment, 1.30 to 2.15; afternoon tea at 4 o'clock, and stumps drawn at 6 o'clock. Trams will run from the railway station and Bent-street at frequent intervals.

We are requested to say that members must produce their tickets.

POLICE COURTS.

Committed for Trial.—Collins Fletcher, 14, on remand, was charged at the Central Police Court yesterday, before Mr. G. H. Smithers, S.M., with burglariously entering the dwelling of Elizabeth Clarke with intent to commit a felony. It was stated the animal was attached to a dray with a load weighing about a ton. The horse fell down in the street, and was so weak that it was scarcely able to drag the empty dray. ALLEGED FORTUNE TELLING.

ACCUSED COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

At the summons division of the Central Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Donaldson, S.M., Senior-sergeant Sawtell proceeded against Madame Josephine, or Emily Barker, of Elizabeth-street, city, on an information alleging that on December 29 she unlawfully undertook to one Emma Lyons to tell her fortune.

Emma Lyons, caretaker of the Redfern Police Court, stated on oath that she saw defendant in a room in Elizabeth-street. Defendant took hold of her hand and talked of what had happened to witness. She also said that a better time was coming for witness, and that she would receive a letter that would benefit her. Witness paid defendant 2s 6d.

Constable Joseph Hamilton stated that on December 30, he called at defendant's place of business. Defendant examined his hand through a reading glass, and said, "Your health line is very much broken, but you will live to a good old age." She asked if he had anything to do with fire or horses, and said he would have to be very careful, as she could foresee accidents to him from both. She said he would go a water journey, and would be shipwrecked, but would not be drowned. Defendant also said he was in monetary difficulties, and that any money he had lost in mining shares would not be regained.

Defendant reserved her defence and was committed for trial.

Madame Lailah Singh was proceeded against on a charge of having unlawfully undertaken to Joseph Hamilton to tell his fortune, and Mary Dorean was charged with aiding and abetting.

Emma Lyons deposed that on December 29 she went to a place in Pitt-street and saw defendant, Dorean, who said "Madame is engaged." After a time she was shown into a room and defendant Singh came in and took her hand. She said to witness, "Who suffers with a pain between the shoulders in your surroundings?" Witness answered that she did not know, and defendant Singh said, "I can see a girl from 13 to 14 years old. She gives you a lot of trouble. She is very cranky, but that is through ill health. She will die in 18 months from this. You are going to get some money; it is coming across the water. It a long way off. You won't get it for five years."

Constable Joseph Hamilton also gave evidence. Accused told him he was not strong physically, and advised him not to lift any weight, to go upstairs, or ride in a tram. He paid her 2s 6d.

Both defendants reserved their defence, and were committed for trial.

Madame Emily St. George was proceeded against, on a charge of unlawfully undertaking, to Joseph Hamilton, to tell his fortune.

Emma Lyons deposed that she went to a place in Elizabeth-street and saw defendant. She paid 1s, and was told of certain things that would happen to her.

Constable Joseph Hamilton stated that he had called at defendant's place of business, and she stated to him she was a clairvoyante. She said she had the power of communicating with spiritual bodies. Defendant said witness's wife would shortly suffer from a cold and a pain in the back. She said he would live till 65, and would have an easy life.

Defendant reserved her defence, and was committed for trial.

THE SOCIAL WORK OF LARGE CITIES.

The life of large cities throws open many fields for philanthropic and altruistic work, and it is not easy, even if it were desirable, to assess their respective claims to preeminence. But among all the organisations working together for the common good it is quite safe to say that such an institution as the Young Men's Christian Association yields the palm to none for common sense and practical usefulness. The young men of any city are the most important section of its population and the backbone of the community, and whatever can influence them for good is certainly deserving of all the credit and encouragement that can be given it. We have such an institution flourishing in this city, and the occasion of a presentation during the week to Mr. David Walker, its secretary for twenty-five years, forcibly suggests how much depends on the personality of leaders to make such an association fulfil the function it was formed to discharge. Two things, it is unnecessary to say, are essential to the success of any enterprise of the kind. There must be first a thorough and effective system, and then the men qualified to work it out. We may borrow the former from elsewhere by imitating and where possible adapting or even judiciously improving on it as local conditions and circumstances may be found to suggest. In this respect we are fortunate in having good models to work from. Sir George Williams set a splendid example in London, which has been imitated in other parts of England and in America. The noble life-work of the late Mr. Quintin Hogg, whose death was announced to us by cable the other day, is at once a guide and an incentive. We have but to follow intelligently on the lines thus laid down to be sure of our system, but the providing of the suitable man is another matter. To zeal must be added local knowledge, the peculiar gift of sympathy with the aims and difficulties of young men, a power to participate in their interests and concerns, and at the same time a workable and businesslike type of character which subscribers and well-wishers may have every confidence in trusting. Mr. Walker certainly earned for himself the maximum of credit for the possession of these sterling qualities, not only from those he worked with but from those he worked for and among, and to that the valedictory proceedings during the week bore ample testimony.

But of course the best evidence on such a point is that supplied by results, and no one who knows the local Young Men's Christian Association and its popularity among those whom it is intended primarily to serve will need further information on that subject. In so far as it is an evangelical institution it is unsectarian, its doors being open to all. Its work in that direction was testified to by the presence of so many representative clergymen to bid farewell to the retiring secretary. But it has a secular side, and in regard to this it can be said without reserve that it has fulfilled in the best possible way the functions of a young men's social, educational, and recreational club. Its gymnasium, its reading-room, its classes and lectures, the aid and society it offers our young men and strangers, give it a strong claim on the esteem both of members and the public. It is the success of the working of such institutions that recommends them to the philanthropist and the social observer, and it may be said that this class of work has always exercised a considerable fascination over minds it once attracts. To set a safeguard round inexperienced youth at its time of most peril and impressionableness is a valuable social service. Writers and thinkers on social and educational subjects are never tired of pointing out, with abundant reason as all experience shows, how dangerous is the period between the age at which a youth leaves school and that when he begins to understand something of the responsibilities of manhood. Suddenly set free from the accustomed school control, breaking with equal suddenness his habits of study, and with parental influence checked and weakened for the first time, it is natural that healthy youth should assert itself. It is desirable also, so long as that first sense of individuality is directed along lines safe for the individual. Here the benefit of experience comes in. In the form of advice it is accessible to everyone, no doubt, but then youth is proverbially impatient of advice.

It is far better to recognise this and set about meeting it, than for men and women of goodwill to spend their time in bewailing it. Young men's polytechnics and Christian Associations are the means invented by good men, who like Abou Ben Adhem in the poem love their fellow men, to set up a fence between youth and temptation, and to use the tastes and amusements of youth as well as its ambitions intelligently for that purpose. It is a cheerful form of philanthropy, and one gratifying in its results. So much so is it, indeed, that such a man as the founder of the London Polytechnic no doubt thought himself amply repaid for his princely outlay of £200,000 in the contemplation of the results it bought, and perhaps not less, though in another way, by the pleasant means through which these results were secured. Young men require companionship of their own class. They find it in these institutions before the habit of bad company is formed. The stranger in a great city finds himself among friends who can help him. Youth seeks exercise and recreation. The gymnasia gratify the one taste and the club-room and sports the other at the minimum of cost. The reading taste requires books to help it, the studious want aid and direction in their studies, and so on. In well-organised institutions of this character these things are made available, and the atmosphere and surroundings are helpful and wholesome. Thus it is found that the wants of youth are met at its most critical stage, the term between school and the beginning of manhood is safely bridged, and a great peril obviated. Under conditions like those ruling in Australian cities institutions which do all this, and supply the place and influence of the family when that begins to wane, are even more valuable and effective than in other places. It too often happens that many a promising young life is spoiled at the start because of the want of these aids and safeguards, and the influence and wise counsel of the experienced men who direct them. But where they are, and where their work is felt, they do a noble work in endeavouring with an encouraging measure of success to ensure that every youth shall at least be given his chance.

SUBSIDISING MERCANTILE CRUISERS.

When what appeared at first to be a systematic attempt to abalienate the British mercantile fleet from British control, transferring it to a trust regulated by a foreign, though friendly, Power, the Admiralty took definite action. Inasmuch as the fastest ships in the British mercantile marine were not registered as British vessels, it seemed to the Admiralty that the time had come to reconsider the principles on which subsidies were then being given to British steamship companies. Great Britain, it will be borne in mind, is not the only Power which grants subsidies with the object of encouraging companies to build steamships which, whilst they serve the commercial purposes for which they are intended, might be converted into cruisers in time of war. France, Germany, Italy, and the United States also follow this practice, with its obvious advantages,—such as relieving the nation concerned of the expense involved in the construction of cruisers and giving steamship companies direct and regular encouragement in the building of vessels of large size and good speed. The new development of activity has taught the Admiralty the necessity of reconsidering its programme in this respect and of providing that vessels to be entitled to the annual subvention should be of greater horse-power, and therefore of greater speed. Further, it was advisable to secure that merchant steamers once subsidised shall not be transferred to a foreign flag without the consent of the Board of Admiralty. The common-sense of these requirements is evident. The cruisers belonging to the six or seven companies which are now annually subsidised by the Admiralty in regard to certain members of their fleets might otherwise be transferred to a foreign flag to the possible detriment of Great Britain at the time when their services were most urgently required, and the Admiralty as guardian of the national interests in this regard has not moved too soon in the matter.

A committee was appointed to examine into and report upon the whole question of granting subsidies to the mercantile marine. This committee consisted of the Earl of Camperdown, Vice-Admiral Fitzgerald, Professor Biles, representing the Institute of Naval Architects, and representatives of the Treasury and of the Post Office. Its business was, in the first place, to take evidence and to report in what manner and at what cost mercantile vessels could be secured for the purposes of cruisers in time of war—vessels which should combine greater speed than that hitherto regarded as the maximum, with a large radius of action. The limitation as to speed expressly given in the order of reference was 20 knots. Of the 18 vessels belonging to different companies, which have been in receipt of the annual subvention from the Admiralty as being equipped to act as cruisers in time of war, the speed ranged from 18 to 21 knots. So here the committee was brought at once to a difficult position. Either it should recommend the withdrawal of the subsidy from steamers whose speed is less than 20 knots, or it should show that such steamers are adequate so far as speed is concerned for the discharge of the duties for which they are subsidised. But the terms of the reference admitted a third interpretation, and it was of this that the committee availed itself. It construed the specification of a minimum speed of 20 knots to apply, not to a vessel running at that speed on the measured mile, or for a short distance, but to "a vessel which averages 20 knots, and which is capable of maintaining that speed for a considerable distance, say, for about 3000 nautical miles." This reading of the reference means practically the exclusion of all vessels which trade by the Suez Canal route, inasmuch as the speed thus indicated means vessels of great size, length, and draught. It is not surprising in the circumstances to find that the evidence of steamship proprietors and other witnesses was of little value to guide the committee on this point, and meanwhile it is to be noted that a regulation which will rule out from the list of subsidised steamers the vessels which go through the Suez Canal—that valuable adjunct of the Empire—will assuredly not be in the interests of the maintenance of British naval supremacy. Speed apart, there is no difficulty in the matter referred to the committee. Nearly all large mercantile vessels of high speed are strong enough structurally to carry and fight the 4·7in. guns recommended by the Admiralty; they are subdivided up to present Admiralty requirements, and they can without difficulty, and at an expense of between £500 and £1000 per annum, be fitted with steering gear below the water, this expense covering interest on excess of first cost, depreciation, and upkeep, and so forth.

The important matter which yet remained for the decision of the committee was the cost at which merchantmen of the kind desired by the Admiralty could be secured for use as cruisers in time of war. There were several points to be considered here. First there was the initial cost of vessels of the size and speed desiderated by the Admiralty. Mercantile companies build and run their steamers mainly in view of the return received by way of payment for the carriage of passengers and goods. If they have to build large and speedier steamships for the sake of complying with Admiralty regulations as to the use of these vessels in time of war, they will, naturally enough, expect to have some substantial assistance from the national funds in return for their holding fit ships in readiness for the duties which must devolve upon them when the time for action comes. In times of peace vessels of ordinary tonnage are amply adequate for the requirements of traffic, and it is only fair that the companies should be recouped for building vessels of larger tonnage than commercial exigencies require. Furthermore there is the loss which would be incurred if the vessels were withdrawn from trade and converted, if only for a short period, to ships of war. There are, it appears, only three ways in which the cost of subsidising merchant vessels of the required size and speed may be estimated. The first of these, and the best so far as can be seen, is that the Admiralty should guarantee a sum representing the first cost of each ship qualifying for membership of the subsidised mercantile marine. This would mean that the shipowner would be in a position to obtain the money necessary for the construction of the ship in question at 3 per cent., instead of 5 per cent., which he would otherwise have to pay, and besides this, it would probably mean that the Admiralty would have a commanding voice in the construction of the ship, so far as its possible warlike engagements were concerned. Another way considered by the committee was the contribution of a lump sum by the Admiralty towards the first cost of the ship. This would of course reduce the outlay on the part of the shipowner, and it would probably be conditioned by the reservation of a right to a commanding voice in the construction of the ship. And then we have the system of an annual payment extending over a period of years. It now remains for the Admiralty to decide which, if any, of these suggestions it will accept. As to the danger of subsidised vessels being transferred to a foreign flag without the consent of the Admiralty, the committee evidently thinks that it is overestimated, and none of the British owners whose evidence was taken contemplated this course. The possibility can, however, be easily guarded against by the adoption of the committee's suggestion that during the term over which the subsidy extends, the Admiralty should be the registered owner of more than half the vessel, whilst all the commercial business—the management of the ship, its profits or its losses—should be left to the control of the shipowner. The report contains several valuable suggestions which should place this matter of subsidising merchantmen for use in time of war on a business footing, satisfactory to all parties concerned.

"Life in London."—Mr. Henry W. Lucy, in his weekly letter, describes the bargaining which took place between Cabinet Ministers and the Bishops in respect of the Education Bill. The session just brought to a close, in the opinion of Mr. Lucy, beat the record alike in the matter of working days and of dulness. A hint is given of the possibility of penny postage being soon extended to Australia. The crisis though which South Africa passed at the end of the year 1899 is indicated. Other subjects are also dealt with. "Life in London" will be found on page 5.

Premier's Visit to Kiama.—The Premier (Sir John See), together with his colleague, Mr. T. Waddell, Treasurer, and several Ministerial supporters, will proceed to Kiama to-day by the 8.30 a.m. train. The object of the Premier's visit is to keep a promise he made some time ago that he would officially open the next display of the Kiama Agricultural and Horticultural Society. Sir John See will take advantage of the public banquet to which he has been invited by the council of the Agricultural Society to reply to some of the criticisms which have recently been passed in public upon the financial operations of the Government.

Income Tax Returns.—It is notified that income tax returns must be lodged with the Commissioners of Taxation by February 7. In case of firms who may have some difficulty because of stocktaking in arriving at a final result as to the year's transactions the Commissioners state that they will accept returns based on taxpayers' financial year. It is unnecessary, therefore, for firms to again take stock or estimate same as at December 31 last. The Commissioners state that in such cases a reasonable extension of time for furnishing returns will be allowed upon written application being made.

The Japanese Delegation.—The Japanese Consul (Mr. H. Eitaki) yesterday introduced to the Minister for Agriculture the members of the delegation which has arrived from Japan, entrusted with the duty of making inquiries into the system of agriculture in force here as well as the method adopted of placing people on the land. The members of the delegation consist of Z. Koyura (Trade Commissioner), Naokichi Takaoka (Director of the Colonial Department of the Government of Hokkaido), and Z. J. Audo (Commissioner of Communication and Commerce in the Government of Hokkaido. They asked for information with regard to the stock, wheat, and experimental farms of New South Wales. The Minister gave instructions for the fullest statistical information on the subject to be given, and suggested that the members of the delegation could obtain a large amount of valuable information by visiting some of the farming districts of the State, as well as inspecting the experimental farms. The visitors thanked the Minister for his courtesy, and said they would take advantage of their presence in the State to visit some of the farms in question.

Day Labourers' Picnic.—The Minister for Education, who is discharging the duties of the Minister for Works during Mr. O'Sullivan's absence in Western Australia, received a deputation yesterday from a committee appointed by the day-labourers employed by the Works Department. The committee in question was empowered to arrange for a holiday on February 21 in connection with their annual picnic and demonstration. It was explained by the deputation that the preliminary steps towards arranging the picnic and demonstration had been taken in consequence of a promise by the Minister for Works that a holiday would be granted. The Minister for Education said he was bound to fulfil the promise given by his colleague, but added, that if such a promise had not been given, he would have refused the request.

Proposed Railway from Eden to Bega.—Within the next week or 10 days a sectional committee of the Public Works Committee will leave Sydney for the purpose of inspecting the route of the railway proposed to be constructed from Eden to Bega, and also inquiring into a proposal to erect a breakwater at Bermagui.

Public Works Committee.—The members of the Public Works Committee met yesterday to consider their report based upon the evidence collated when inquiring into the best means to be adopted to mitigate the evils caused by floods in the Hunter River. The committee had not come to a final conclusion when it adjourned till next Tuesday. The consideration of the report will then be again considered, and it is expected that a decision will be arrived at.

Fitzroy Dock Royal Commission.—The members of the Royal Commission appointed to inquire into several matters connected with the working of the Fitzroy Dock, sat again yesterday at the works, and took further evidence in the matter. The president and secretary of the Painters' Union, together with three workmen at the dock, were examined, and gave details respecting several grievances. The Commission then adjourned till Tuesday next. The members are hopeful of being able to complete their labours next week, and to submit their report to his Excellency the Governor.

Naval News.—H.M.S. Phœbe, which has been on a brief visit to Tasmania, sailed yesterday from Hobart for Sydney, and is expected to arrive here on the 26th instant.

The Sailing of the R.M.S. Rome.—The P. and O. Company's R.M.S. Rome will be despatched from the Circular Quay at noon to-day for London via the usual ports of call. She has a large list of passengers both for home and inter-State ports, and the principal lines of her cargo are:—300 bales of wool, 500 tons of lead, 50 tons of copper, 50 tons of tin, and 150 boxes of butter.

The Manly Tramway.—In a very short time the many visitors to Manly will be in a position to enjoy a tramway excursion along the foreshore for a distance of over a mile. The line now being constructed from the popular watering place to Manly Lagoon is almost finished. Its ultimate destination is Narrabeen and Pittwater. The line will be worked with steam motors which have been withdrawn from the suburban tramway system in consequence of the conversion from steam to electric traction.

Bust of Lord Hopetoun.—Before leaving Australia Governor-General Lord Hopetoun (now Marquis of Linlithgow) gave sittings to Mr. Nelson Illingworth. This sculptor has now completed a life-size bust in clay of the first Governor-General, whom he represents in private dress. The new marquis is in many respects a difficult subject, but Mr. Illingworth has done well in showing the fine breadth of the forehead and in accentuating the melancholy look of the eyes. The Federal Premier and others who knew our former Governor-General intimately pronounce the likeness a good one. The bust will now be on view for a time to visitors at Mr. Illingworth's studio.

Straw Hat Trade.—The inactivity which at present exists in the Sydney straw hat making industry is a remarkable example of the way in which country depression affects all classes in the city. Less than two years ago there was not a skilled straw hat maker in Sydney idle; indeed many of the men were working overtime. The manufacturers had often more orders than they could satisfy, and the industry promised to rapidly develop. Owing, however, to the great shrinkage which has taken place in the country demand there has been a marked decline in the output, and employers and employees have alike suffered. Of the 70 men who comprise the Straw Hat Makers' Union, over 33 per cent. are reported to be out of employment, whilst of those still engaged many are unable to secure anything like full time. When the trade is brisk competent workmen earn about £3 per week.

M. Hamilton, barrister-at-law, to act as Judge of District Courts and chairman of Courts of Quarter Sessions within the limits of south-western district from the 29th instant; and his Honor Judge Rodgers, K.C., Judge of south-western district, to act as Judge of District Courts and chairman of Courts of Quarter Sessions within the limits of the metropolitan district from the 20th instant.

Band Performance in Wynyard-square.—During the recent band contest the use of the Town Hall was granted to the association free of charge, and in return for the privilege the association decided to hold a number of concerts in the city parks. The first of the series was given last night by the Sydney Military Band, and judging by the number of people who were present, the entertainments give promise of being highly successful. The bandstand was brilliantly lighted with acetylene gas, and the band, which consisted of 30 performers, rendered a programme of popular music under the direction of Bandmaster J. Palmer, which was greatly appreciated. The programme was a follows:—March, "Constellation;" overture, "Caliph of Bagdad;" waltz, "Les Adieux;" selection, "Runaway Girl;" solo, "I Dreamed a Dream;" selection, "William Tell;" cake walk, "Alabama Dream;" selection, "La Poupée." The performances will be continued on Tuesday evening next, when the Newtown Band will render a programme, and on Friday night the Irish Rifles Band will perform in Prince Alfred Park.

An Unfounded Rumour.—During the last few days a rumour has been current in commercial circles that the Government had completed arrangements with certain banking institutions in Sydney to purchase £1,000,000 of Treasury Bills. When seen yesterday on the matter by a "Herald" representative, the Treasurer (Mr. T. Waddell) said, "You will do me a favour if you publish a brief statement that the rumour is absolutely untrue."

The Mails.—The mails by the R.M.S. Omrah, dated London, December 26, are expected to reach Sydney in time for delivery at about 1.30 p.m. on Wednesday next, and the continental mails by the F.M.S. Australien will, it is anticipated, arrive here in time for the midday delivery on Thursday next.

Arrival of a New Steamer.—The new steamship Hobart, the latest addition to the fleet of the Melbourne Steamship Company, Limited, arrived at Sydney yesterday on her maiden voyage from Cardiff, via South Africa and inter-State ports. She is a cargo steamer of 2463 tons gross, and is 317ft. in length. Accommodation has been provided for a limited number of passengers. The new vessel, which was successfully brought out by Captain M'Grath, will be employed in the trade between Australia and South Africa.

Sailing of the Afric.—At noon to-day the 12,000-ton steamship Afric, of the White Star line, will be despatched from Woolloomooloo Bay for London, via Capetown and ports. Messrs. Dalgety and Co., Limited, the agents of the line, have booked a good list of passengers for the Cape and London, besides a large cargo, which includes 7000 bales of wool. Other notable lines of cargo are 3800 bars of bullion, 150 tons of alunite, 100 tons of tin clippings, 3800 sacks of copra, 2400 casks of oil and tallow, 5985 bags of copper matte, 2019 bags of copper ore, 300 bales of tow, 2069 bars of lead, and 3100 hides. The Afric calls at Melbourne to complete loading, and will there be joined by a large number of passengers. The three White Star steamers following will call at Hobart on the homeward voyage.

The Queen's Statue.—A few days ago it was stated that the City Council had decided to remove the grass mound which surrounds the Queen's statue. It will be remembered that a wooden obelisk was erected and the mound built on the occasion of the Royal visit. The obelisk was removed some months ago. Early yesterday morning a staff of men with drays commenced the work of removing the grass mound, and by night time the greater part of it had been carted away. In future the statue will be surrounded by asphalt instead of a grass lawn.

The Railway Commissioners notify that commencing on Monday next slight alterations will be made in the midday trams on the Zetland line, the 1.2 and 2.2 p.m. trips being altered to leave Circular Quay at 12.58 and 2.6, the trams returning from Zetland at 12.32 and 1.40, instead of 12.36 and 1.46 p.m.

Lady Barton will open the Auburn Hospital Fair in the Town Hall, Auburn, this afternoon at 3.15.

In connection with the Randwick races to-day the Railway Commissioners notify that a special service of trams will be run to the racecourse from Bent-street and the railway subway, commencing at 11.20 a.m. The first-class tram will leave Bridge-street at 12.15 p.m. A frequent service will also be run to the cricket ground in connection with the cricket match Victoria v. New South Wales.

Reference will be made to-morrow evening at Wesley Church by the Rev. F. Colwell to the recent statements of Cardinal Moran in regard to Protestant missionaries and the British navy in Samoa.

In Mr. J. Cassidy's letter headed "The Meat Supply of South Africa" a slight transposition of the lines took place. It should read thus: "Fifty years ago meat could be had at 1d per lb., and why? Because the supply of cattle far outstripped the needs of the scant population. The cattle that were brought here by the early settlers and the Government multiplied in thousands, and spread over the rich pastures of the country," &c.

An announcement appears in our advertising columns to the effect that the distributing agent for the illustrated monograph, "His Eminence," a souvenir of Cardinal Moran's sacerdotal golden jubilee, is Mr. A. J. Way, of Castlereagh-street. In the announcement are embodied press and other criticisms of the work.

A rumour was in circulation in the city yesterday to the effect that in respect of the Dardanelles strained relations had arisen between Great Britain and the Powers, and in consequence Great Britain had taken extreme action against a certain Power. We learnt from Admiralty House, however, that there was no foundation for the rumour.

From Anthony Hordern's, the Haymarket, we have received a catalogue of the three weeks' sale to commence on Tuesday next. The publication is more bulky than books of the kind usually are, owing to the magnitude and variety of the stocks dealt with. The catalogue has evidently had much care bestowed upon it, both by the compiler and the printer, the result being that the seeking of items regarding which information may be desired is rendered comparatively easy.

The fifth edition of "The New Zealand Tourists' Vade Mecum," which we receive from the Union Steamship Company of New Zealand, will be found of much use by pleasure-seekers, containing as it does information as to methods of transit and particulars about the places that ought to be visited.

MOVEMENT TO AFFILIATE WITH THE TRADES' HALL.

THE SUGGESTION FOR AN INTER-STATE COUNCIL.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A special meeting of the Daily-paid Railway Employees' Society was held in camera last night. The meeting lasted till late. The employees present freely expressed their determination to uphold their right to be affiliated with the Trades' Hall, which they contended was not a political body. It was decided to suggest to other societies, viz., the Locomotive Engine-drivers and Firemen's Association, the Amalgamated Society of Railway Employees, the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, and the Loco. Institute of Engineers, Fitters, &c., the holding of a conference with delegates from the Daily-paid Employees' Society to consider the whole controversy with regard to affiliation, with the object of deciding what action should be taken, the decision of that conference to be then submitted to a grand council of the railway employees from the various States' services.

I trust that at the termination of your leave you may receive the pension which you have so justly earned, and that you may live long to enjoy it."

Mr. Webb replied in the following terms:—"Dear Sir John,—I have received with much satisfaction and gratitude the kind and flattering expression of your opinion of my public services, and in reply I beg leave to assure you that I highly prize the letter which you have been so good as to send me, and that I shall always regard it as a valued testimonial and permanent record of your appreciation of my work. Permit me to present to you my best thanks for the uniform kindness and consideration which you and your colleagues have always extended so generously towards me in the performance of my duties, and of which I shall always entertain a grateful recollection."

Mr. George Woodward, of Wentworthville, died at his residence on Thursday last, after an illness extending over a couple of weeks. Mr. Woodward, who was only 38 years of age, occupied for some years a seat in the Prospect and Sherwood Municipal Council.

We have to record the death of Mr. Richard Duke Allen, of North Cuerindi station, Manilla, which took place early on Tuesday morning at his residence. The funeral was largely attended. The burial service was read by the Ven. Archdeacon Abbott, of Tamworth, a brother-in-law of the deceased. The late Mr. Allen was for many years engaged in pastoral pursuits.

On Thursday night the Goulburn troop of the First Australian Horse presented Regimental Quartermaster-Sergeant Dowson, who is about to rejoin his regiment in England, his term of five years as instructor in this State having expired, with a salver. He also received a photographic souvenir from the band. Sergeant Dowson said he hoped the troop would remain the Australian Horse, and not be transformed into Mounted Infantry. They might exchange the carbine for the rifle, but he hoped they would still retain the sword. The band presented Troop Sergeant-Major Webb with a photographic souvenir.

He then removed to Rutherglen, where he remained until the time of his death. The remains will be taken to London for interment.

Professor Mitchell, of the Adelaide University, left Adelaide for Melbourne by the express on Thursday.

DEATH OF MR. JOHN ILIFFE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The death is announced of Mr. John Iliffe, a resident of the Albury district. Mr. Iliffe was to all appearance hale and hearty until quite recently and bore the burden of his 70 years very lightly. A few weeks ago a serious internal malady presented itself and Mr. Iliffe retired to the private hospital of Dr. W. Moore, Melbourne, where he died on Thursday evening. His name is bound up with a splendid service rendered in May, 1890, to the Melbourne Hospital, when disaster appeared inevitable. The hospital was over £18,000 in debt, and the committee of management, looking the matter in the face, could see no other way of making ends meet than that of closing some of the wards. The idea was repellant in the extreme to every one who realised the suffering such a step must entail. This prompted Mr. Iliffe, in the quietest and most informal manner to donate £1000 to the hospital fund if 19 others would follow his example; failing that, 38 subscriptions of £500 each would suffice. His promise was ratified next day when he forwarded his cheque. Accompanying it was a letter in which he wrote: "I think it would be almost a calamity if any of the wards of Melbourne Hospital had to be closed for want of funds. There are a good many wealthy men in Victoria who could give £500 or £1000 and not feel it, except in the way that they had done a generous action to assist a good cause." The truth of his words was borne out by an immediate response, and when he further announced his offer to allow any subscriptions to be received the required amount was completed in an incredibly short space of time. It was a lasting memorial of the generosity of the community, and of Mr. Iliffe's tact and discernment.

WOLLONGONG WATER WORKS.

PROPOSED TRANSFERENCE TO THE WATER AND SEWERAGE BOARD.

LOCAL OPPOSITION.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

In connection with the proposal of the Government to hand over the Wollongong water works to the Sydney Water and Sewerage Board, the matter was advanced another step to-day, when Colonel Holmes, secretary of the board of water supply and sewerage, Mr. Small (chief engineer), and Mr. Roseby (assessor), arrived by this morning's train with the object of inspecting the scheme and gaining other particulars in connection with the proposed new order of things. Mr. J. A. Beatson, secretary to the Wollongong A. H. and I. Association, made a request for water to be laid on to the show ground for the show on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday next. Colonel Holmes readily consented to the work being carried out. Mr. Wiseman subsequently interviewed the officers in connection with matters affecting Stuart Park. A visit was paid to the reservoir at Cross-roads this afternoon. To-morrow the officers will pay a visit of inspection to the storage dam at Cordeaux.

Public opinion is strong against the handing over of the works to the Water and Sewerage Board, and the borough council backed up by the ratepayers will make a determined fight against what is considered a distinct breach of faith on the part of the Government.

THE FEDERAL PREMIER.

RESTING IN THE COUNTRY.

OBSERVATIONS ON FEDERAL TOPICS.

(BY OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

BOWRAL, Friday.

Sir Edmund Barton left Sydney on Monday for Melbourne, where he attended a Cabinet meeting on Tuesday. It is learned by telegram from Melbourne that there was only a meagre attendance of Ministers and no business of public importance was transacted. The Prime Minister left Melbourne on Tuesday, and on reaching Bowral on Wednesday stayed on a few days at Riversdale, the charmingly-situated home of Mrs. Gadsden. Here Sir Edmund obtained a few days' respite from the cares of government and relief from the discomfits inseparable from life in the metropolis in summer time. The Prime Minister, who is accompanied by Lady Barton, has had a pleasant holiday, though a short one, and both have enjoyed the change.

It is practically impossible for a Minister of the Crown to cut himself absolutely free from public affairs, at any rate within the bounds of the Commonwealth. Still Sir Edmund managed to leave nearly all official business behind him in his office. The newspapers, however, followed him, and therein he found several items that seemed to call for a few observations.

TELEGRAMS TO WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

"First of all, I will read you copies of telegrams I sent to the Premier of Western Australia and Sir John Forrest in connection with the opening of the waterworks to the goldfields. The first is to the State Premier as follows:—'The Government of the Commonwealth sends hearty congratulations on the completion and inauguration of the great work of supplying water to your golden lands. All Australia wishes your State and people Godspeed in development and prosperity. My colleagues and I highly appreciate the honour conferred upon Sir John Forrest in asking him to open the works.'

"The second is for Sir John Forrest, and is in the following terms: 'You have reason for pride in having originated the bold and brilliant project without which the development of the mines could only have been slow and partial, to the detriment of the owners and miners alike. Accept warm congratulations on the honour conferred on you in asking you to commemorate your beneficial policy and action by opening the works. I trust you, with our colleagues, may be enabled to attack successfully the barriers which obstruct intercourse and co-operation, and bring into political unity all parts of this continent.'

MR. REID'S TOUR.

"Yes," said the Prime Minister, "I have seen the report of Mr. Reid's speech at Fremantle. It will doubtless be new to the people over there, but I fancy we on this side have heard all that before. A collection of Mr. Reid's speeches would make interesting reading," added the Prime Minister reflectively.

THE FEDERAL CAPITAL AND THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

The attention of the Prime Minister was directed to the remarks made by Sir John See on Thursday with reference to the occupation of Sydney Government House.

"If Sir John See understood the questions which the Federal Government has to deal with in the way that the Federal Ministers are bound to understand these questions themselves he would never suggest that the Federal Government should be carried on for national purposes in the very hotbeds of provincial influence. Before the Constitution was carried I expressed my view that no one of the State capitals should be made at the same time the federal capital. It is difficult for me to say how much my opinion on that point has been strengthened by my experiences since the acceptance of office.

"As to Sir John See's remarks on the Governor-General's residence, it is only fair to Lord Tennyson to say that he was anxious to spend some time in Sydney soon after the prorogation of Parliament, and up to the end of November indulged the hope that his health would be sufficiently restored to enable him to spend some time in Sydney. However, he was about that time advised that he had better not undertake any journey either to Sydney or elsewhere for some weeks. He was well enough to travel about the middle of December, and therefore intended paying a visit to Marble Hill in the hill country near Adelaide during the extremely warm weather, and he determined to pay that visit and to go to Sydney in March and stay some time. The Governor-General will consequently visit Sydney in March, and reside at Government House at least until May. If during his residence in Sydney he decides to open Parliament in person he will visit Melbourne for that purpose."

THE BEGINNING OF NEXT SESSION.

It was pointed out to Sir Edmund Barton that his remarks did not throw much light on the probable date of the beginning of next session.

"No, I cannot do that," was the reply. "Even if the date were fixed no one can say what complication might arise that would necessitate calling Parliament together earlier. It is the practice in Great Britain and in some of the State Legislatures to give about three weeks' notice of the summoning of Parliament for the despatch of business. In our case, owing to the larger extent of the constituencies, probably longer notice will be given." The Prime Minister dismissed the subject with the assurance that the date would be announced in good time.

PAYMENT OF SUGAR AND EXCISE REBATE TO CHINESE.

"I notice," said Sir Edmund "a paragraph in one of the papers stating that the Federal Government will not recognise in any case what they choose to term 'black labour.' It goes on to give a definition, allegedly from the Constitution, of British subjects, aliens, and then makes the statement that Chinamen can lease land and employ white labour to cultivate their cane, and claim the rebate. The paragraph is a clever interweaving of fact, and faction. The definitions of British subjects and aliens given in the Constitution are purely inventive. Moreover, the giving of rebate for white grown sugar can have no reference whatever to the question whether the employers are British subjects. It is clear that if the course dear to the heart of the pargraphist were followed the Federal Government would grant rebate to farmers for cane grown by coloured people also dear to the heart of the writer who is evidently one of the philanthropists believing in the double charity of walloping his own kanaka and pocketing his kanaka's earnings. For the rest, if Chinamen have leased land under the law of the State, and are employing labour upon it to grow sugarcane, the question between the writer of the paragraph and every Australian is merely this: The writer would have the Chinaman enriched by employing other Chinamen and all sorts of coloured aliens, and the Australian says that the Chinaman, under the law of the State, having made use of the land, then had no right to use black labour after the time specified by law. Which is right—the paragraphist kanakaphile or the Australian?"

THE SENATE ELECTION.

Sir Edmund Barton was not prepared to give a direct opinion on the point that has been raised as to the validity of the election of Mr. Robert Reid as senator, because he had not at hand either the Constitution Act or the Federal Electoral Act. He was inclined to think, from perusal of so much of the law as was quoted in the "Herald," that the Federal Act was not intended to apply to such cases as Mr. Reid's, and that the election was perfectly constitutional. At the same time he pointed out that the word "choose" in the Constitution meant "elect." It was employed by the draftsmen of the Constitution because it was simple. It was Saxon in its origin, and was prescribed by constitutional usage. To use the word "choose" as different in meaning to "elect" might, it appeared from the Prime Minister's remarks, be regarded, in the light of this explanation, as quibbling.

CAUCUS OF THE LABOUR PARTY.

RUMOURED LIVELY INTERCHANGES.

A caucus of the members of the labour party was held yesterday at Parliament House. It assembled at 11.30 a.m., and as it had not concluded the business under discussion at 1 p.m. an adjournment for luncheon took place. Resuming at 2 p.m., the members of the party continued their discussion of the business under review.

It is understood there was a representative number of the members present, and that Mr. M'Gowen, the leader of the party, was in the chair. The business chiefly under discussion related to the business-paper to be presented at the inauguration of the annual conference of the Political Labour League on Monday next.

The various clauses of the business-paper were fully and freely discussed, and at times the discussion, it was learned, was rather heated in character. It was freely stated outside the room in which the caucus was held that at one portion of the proceedings two members came into violent conflict. One member, it is asserted, called the other a liar, with the result that the gentleman so addressed jumped forward and knocked the other down. Naturally enough the other members of the caucus rushed in between the two disputants and put an end to the struggle.

From this out, the electrical character of the atmosphere having been cleared, the deliberations of the party were, it is stated, conducted in a more decorous manner, with the result that a large number of clauses in the business paper of the Political Labour League were agreed to. The proceedings then terminated.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN.

VISIT TO KRUGERSDORP AND POTCHEFSTROOM.

SPLENDID RECEPTION.

THEIR WORST ENEMY.

LONDON, Jan. 23.

Mr. Chamberlain, accompanied by Lord Milner (Governor of the Transvaal), Sir Arthur Lawley (Lieutenant-Governor of the Transvaal), Lieutenant-General the Hon. N. G. Lyttleton (commanding the forces in the Transvaal and the Orange River Colony), Major-General Baden Powell (commanding the South African Constabulary), and their staffs, proceeded to Krugersdorp, where he was welcomed, and was presented with an address signed by all classes in the district.

Mr. Chamberlain, in returning thanks, said that the losses on both sides had been aggregated by the prolongation of the war when the issue was beyond doubt. A new nation was arising from the ashes of the old. He hoped that those who had been great in war would prove great in peace.

Mr. Chamberlain, continuing, said that he trusted that they would now understand each other. Their worst enemy was the man who was attempting to divide them. He urged them to show their sympathy in a practical form by repairing the Boer memorial at Paardekraal, so as to make it a joint tribute to the fallen on both sides.

Mr. Chamberlain and his party afterwards proceeded to Potchefstroom, where he had a splendid reception. Mr. Andreas Cronje, brother of General Cronje, and many Dutch citizens were amongst those who welcomed the Colonial Secretary.

In responding to the address of welcome, Mr. Chamberlain said that he was grateful for the welcome he had received in the old capital of the Transvaal. The people would find that they have a just and sympathetic Government, and that prosperity would follow the union with Great Britain.

MR. REID AT PERTH.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION.

DISAPPROVAL OF THE TARIFF.

DOMINATION OF THE LABOUR PARTY.

NEW SOUTH WALES AND VICTORIA COMPARED.

"DARK DUNGEON OF FISCAL SUPERSTITION."

PERTH, Friday.

Mr. G. H. Reid addressed nearly 2000 persons in the Queen's Hall yesterday. He received a tremendous ovation, and created a splendid impression. He spoke for three hours. The audience showed marked disapproval of the tariff, and declared unequivocally for Mr. Reid's policy.

With reference to the great vital question of railway communication between Western Australia and the rest of the continent, Mr. Reid said it might perhaps have been well if those who represented them had done a little of the business he did. He never said "Yes" till he had got all he wanted put down in the document. He hoped the honourable spirit of the Federal Parliament would attach just as much weight to what was an honourable understanding as if it had been expressed in black and white. After condemning the Government for having dishonoured most if not all the promises contained in the Maitland manifesto, Mr. Reid said regarding the management of Parliament by the Ministry that the expert, experienced Parliamentarians managed matters with dignity and firmness. In the history of the Parliamentary institutions of Australia there was never a Government with any pretensions to ability and experience which had cut such a ludicrous figure. The moment the slightest whiff of disapproval came from the labour party they were anxious to shift their Ministerial programme. Personally, he had always had most friendly relations with the labour party in New South Wales, and for the five years he was in office they were practically able whenever they chose to turn him out of office, but he was happy to say that never had they attempted the slightest indication of pressure. (Applause.) No man should hold office unless he was prepared to throw it aside the moment he ceased to occupy it with dignity and credit. The shortest cut to office was to lose office honourably. He had managed to get on with the labour party for five years on honourable terms; but the Melbourne press would tell them that the Government throughout its career had been painfully under the domination of the labour party. The Government had brought in a bill to provide for a bonus for establishing the iron industry in Australia. The labour party had taken the view that this should be in the hands of the States. The Government's view was to devote it to a private company, which was ready to start at once. Well, on the second reading the vote of the Speaker alone had saved the Government from defeat. He would not say that the Government should have resigned, but they should either have resigned or dropped the bill in regard to which they had been so humiliated. Mr. Kingston could fight like a tiger, except when the labour party was about. This time he took his defeat like a lamb, and went into committee with the bill. Then the labour party carried its motion, and the Government had gone on as if nothing had happened. Mr. Watson came down, took charge of the House, and moved to refer the matter to a select committee. No greater insult to the Government could be conceived. The motion was carried by a two-to-one majority, but Mr. Kingston followed the bill down to the vaults, and the committee appointed him chairman of his own funeral. Referring to the tariff Mr. Reid said the cry of the protectionists was "we want to provide more openings for the rising generation." Unfortunately after 30 years' sacrifice in Victoria to bring about that result her sons had come away to Western Australia, and they had had to begin here the very same work that their fathers began in Victoria 30 years ago. It was the gentleman in the town who got the position in the factory for his son, and not the people in the country. When he (Mr. Reid) came into power in New South Wales he put those principles of his into practice. During the last 40 years the population of New South Wales had increased more than that of Victoria, South Australia, and Queensland combined. During that period Victoria alone had lost no less than 109,000 population, for the young men of Victoria had been driven out of their native land. Instead of the boys getting into factories poor little girls were forced in. In 1891 20 per cent. of the hands of Victorian factories were females. Last year 29 per cent. of Victorian hands were females. Was that because they got higher wages? Though the value of the material turned out from Victorian factories was £22,000,000 in 1890, it was £5,000,000 less in 1900. That was not progress. In 1891 the value of materials turned out was £16,800,000, while in 1901 it was £24,000,000. In 1901 Victorian trade had increased by £4,500,000, while that of New South Wales had increased by £20,000,000. They could not feel surprised therefore that having led the people of New South Wales out of that dark dungeon of fiscal superstition into the light of day, he could go anywhere in his country to-day with safety. He had only dealt with Australia, and if there was any country where liberty and equality were possible it was in a new country where the great strength of the nation lay in the soil. If they developed the wonderful natural resources lying in their great continent they would find in that broad track that they would keep up wages by keeping prosperity going, and if they kept their great primary industries progressive they could leave their towns to grow up by themselves. He besought his hearers to study their own State's interest, and encourage the great natural resources of Australia. (Applause.) He referred to the pastoral industry. Australian wool was sought for all over the world, millions being paid for it. There was no magic about that. There was no magic about their timber. All countries in the world got it, and paid for it. He referred also to their meat and their farming; but farmers would be protectionists as a rule. Now that there had been a drought farmers found that they had to pay 1s 6d per cental for their seed-wheat or go without it. Half a million sterling would have to be paid as duty by the farmers in drought-stricken areas. In America when Boston was burned down the American protectionists took off the duties for the benefit of that stricken city, and the other day the duty on coal in the United States had been recommended to be suspended owing to the distress of the people. If in America they could listen to the voice of humanity surely the first Australian Government could do the same. (Applause.)

MOTOR-PACED CYCLE RACING.

There was a good attendance at the Exhibition oval to-night to see a four-event match between the visiting cyclists, Robl and Dickentmann. In the first two events, 1 mile and 3 miles, the men started on even terms, and splendid finishing dashes gave Robl the victory. He won the mile race in 2m. 2 3-5s., and the 3 mile race in 5m. 38 2-5s. The 5 mile race was most exciting, and after a series of amazing dashes Robl won in 9m. 20s. In the 25 mile race Robl conceded Dickentmann one lap start. At the end of 8 miles Dickentmann's lead was reduced to half a lap, and with 10 miles reeled off Dickentmann was leading by a quarter of a lap. Then his tyre blew out, and though he changed swiftly to another machine Robl secured the lead, and retained it to the finish, winning by a few yards in 45m. 10 2-5s.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

TOUR OF EASTERN VISITORS.

BUNBURY'S TRADE.

COLLIE COAL FIELD.

PERTH, Friday.

The federal visitors inspected the Collie coal mines on Wednesday, and were entertained at luncheon in the Wallsend mine. The extent of the coal deposit and development were far beyond anticipations.

One member remarked that the idea prevailed in the eastern States that the coal mines of Collie were mere holes in the earth. What he had seen had come as a revelation.

Sir William Lyne said he was very favourably impressed with the enormous body of mineral in sight, and the apparent easy conditions under which the mine could be worked.

Mr. Crouch said that the mine was of much greater extent than any of those of the Outtrim-Jumbunna in Victoria.

Mr. A. Chapman compared the mine favourably with the largest mines of New South Wales. The absence of gases and remarkable freedom of the seam from faults were important factors in the cheap production of coal. If the quality was of a fair standard there must be a great future for the industry.

The party was driven round Bunbury, and inspected the harbour, where 11 sailing vessels, of an aggregate capacity of 18,000 tons, were lying. The increase which has occurred in the shipping of Bunbury is of such proportions that, although the pier was extended by 400ft. about 18 months ago, a further extension of 450ft. is being made. The briquette factory was visited. This industry has been established by the Collie Proprietary Company at a cost of £10,000. The plant is capable of turning out 100 tons of briquettes in eight hours.

COMMONWEALTH NOTES.

THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

VISIT TO THE NORTHERN DISTRICTS.

BALLINA, Friday.

Senator J. G. Drake (Postmaster-General, accompanied by Mr. Thallon (Queensland Commissioner for Railways), Mr. Vernon (colonial architect), and Mr. Ewing, M.P., arrived here at noon to-day. The party was met on the wharf by the Mayor and members of the municipal council and a large number of townspeople, and were taken for a trip round the harbour. Senator Drake received several deputations respecting local matters connected with his department.

The members of the party were afterwards entertained at luncheon at the Australian Hotel, when Senator Drake referred to the difficulties the Federal Government had encountered in the first session. One benefit to the district was the removal of the Customs barrier, which made the present growing trade between Brisbane and the northern rivers possible.

Mr. Thallon, in the course of some remarks, referred to the delay of the New South Wales Government in not completing the railway connection from Murwillumbah to Tweed Heads to meet the line now being constructed from Brisbane. He also said it was disgraceful that the seaport of Ballina was not connected with the railway system in view of the few miles of line required to complete the connection.

The party left this afternoon for Brisbane, via Bangalow and the Tweed.

THE WEATHER.

Fine and cool weather conditions were experienced yesterday throughout the State, and the winds generally were light. A heavy sea was running last night at Tweed Heads, but at all other coastal stations the seas were smooth to moderate. Cloudy conditions prevailed along the northern portion of the seaboard, but the weather was clear in the south. Light north-easterly winds were blowing last night south of Barranjoey, but north of that point the winds were from the south-east.

Light rains fell along the coast and over part of the northern highlands during the course of Thursday night, but by 9 a.m. yesterday the weather was fine everywhere. The quantities of rain measured were small, the principal registrations being:—

Sheets of roofing iron were carried fully a quarter of a mile, and lie scattered about the field. The Anglican Church was also damaged.

THE COOLGARDIE WATER SUPPLY SCHEME.

WATER TURNED ON AT MUNDARING.

PERTH, Friday.

The first portion of the ceremony in connection with the opening of the goldfield water scheme was performed on Thursday by Lady Forrest, who, in the presence of the eastern visitors and a representative gathering, formally turned on the water at Mundaring. The party was subsequently entertained by Messrs. J. Simpson and Co., contractors for the pumping machinery, and returned here in the evening, when Sir John and Lady Forrest held an "at home" in honour of the visitors.

At the conclusion of the ceremony of the turning on of the water at Mundaring Lady Forrest was presented with a gold key and Sir John Forrest with an album illustrative of the complete scheme.

The principal toast at the luncheon, "Success to the Goldfields Water Scheme," was proposed by Mr. Hackett. Sir John Forrest responded. Other toasts included "Sister States," to which Sir William Lyne, Sir Philip Fysh, and Messrs. O'Sullivan, Jenkins, Murray, and Higgins responded.

Sir William Lyne, in replying to the toast of "Our State Visitors," said that the Coolgardie water scheme had proved to the people of the eastern States the possibility of pumping water great distances. There was an extent of rich land in Australia which required water to bring it into use. Years ago he studied this question, and had a Royal Commission appointed in New South Wales to deal with irrigation. There people had been fighting against great odds. A scheme was required to conserve the waters which fell from the heavens so that they could be used to turn the country into a verdant green. The Coolgardie water scheme was the first project to prove that water could be conserved on an extensive scale and pumped a great distance. The scheme was an object lesson to other States, and unless Mr. O'Sullivan worked vigorously Western Australia would be supplying Broken Hill with water. The future success of the Commonwealth and the States and their development depended on the assistance one could give the other. No federation was ever commenced with so few powerful States as there were in the Commonwealth, and it was to be expected that in the new order of things there would be a little friction, but all must try to weld the States together by sympathy. There was no desire on the part of the Commonwealth to take from the States one single power. A union had been started that was not going to be dissolved. As far back as 1885 he considered the question of the trans-continental railway. His sympathies were absolutely in favour of connection between the East and West by the iron horse, but it was a question for the Federal Parliament and the States to decide, for the Federal Government could not enter a State to construct a line without the consent of that State. When the question was thoroughly investigated he thought it would be brought home to all that the line should be built, even if it did not pay right away.

GUESTS LEAVE FOR COOLGARDIE.

TO-DAY'S GREAT EVENT.

Two special trains conveying visitors and local politicians left the central station for the Eastern goldfields this afternoon. The guests numbered about 200. To-morrow (Saturday) they will breakfast at Coolgardie, and after a welcome by the municipal council the new School of Mines will be declared open by Sir John Forrest. Tours of the mines of the Coolgardie district will then be undertaken. Early in the afternoon the party will leave Coolgardie for Kalgoorlie. The Mayor and the council will receive the guests at the railway station, and at half-past 3 the big event of the celebrations will take place. This will consist of Sir John Forrest turning on the water at Mount Charlotte Reservoir and declaring the scheme open for the use of the public. On Saturday evening the guests from the Eastern States and the local State guests will be entertained by the councils of Kalgoorlie and Boulder at a banquet at the former place. Monday will be devoted to visiting the mines along the Golden Mile. The party will leave on Monday night for the city.

RELIEF TO DISTRESSED SETTLERS.

MEETING IN THE TOWN HALL.

INITIATION OF A LORD MAYOR'S FUND.

AN AUSPICIOUS START.

A public meeting was held in the vestibule of the Sydney Town Hall last evening for the purpose of taking steps to establish a fund for the relief of sufferers by the prolonged drought in New South Wales. There was an attendance of about 200 people, including a number of ladies. The Lord Mayor (Alderman Thomas Hughes) presided. Amongst those on the platform were:—The Archbishop of Sydney, the Revs. J. E. Carruthers and F. J. Colwell, Messrs. T. H. Nesbitt (town clerk), F. Aengenheyster (representing the French Chamber of Commerce), T. W. Kelly, J. J. Miller, G. Maiden, and W. N. Willis, A. Collins, and and J. G. Carroll, Ms.L.A.

The chairman, in opening the proceedings, said that it was quite impossible for city people, living as they did in comparative luxury and comfort, to understand what the hardy pioneers in the far West had gone through, and were still going through. They knew that in Victoria a very large fund was being raised for the relief of the mallee settlers, and which now amounted to about £15,000. (Hear, hear.) It was to be sincerely hoped that in this State the movement would be equally successful. He was glad to say that, thanks to the generosity of their friends in the other States, he was in a position to hand over a sum, as a commencement, of nearly £300. The money came from New Zealand and Tasmania. (Applause.) That was practical sympathy, and of the kind that they could appreciate, and he trusted that the people of New South Wales would not be behind their brethren of the other States. (Hear, hear.)

Apologies for absence were read from the following, amongst others:—The Hon. M. H. Stephen (Acting Chief Justice), Mr. J. H. Carruthers, M.L.A., the Bishop of Riverina, Revs. W. I. Carr Smith, George Lane, and W. W. Rutledge, Messrs. Thomas Brown, M.P., William Affleck, M.L.A., F. E. Winchcombe, M.L.A., O. C. Beale (president Chamber of Manufactures), and George Horton (secretary Farmers and Settlers' Association).

Mr. A. G. Humby, who was the principal organiser of the meeting, explained the reasons which led to the inauguration of the movement. Those present had come to hear about the troubles and afflictions of the people stricken by the drought, and he felt that the audience would be a sympathetic one. He came from a place called Bolero, near Temora, and some 40 miles from the railway, and as the outcome of two small meetings held in the district, he had come to Sydney in the interests of the ruined settlers. When the people of the country saw that the Government were about to start the relief works authorised by Parliament they were jubilant, and several of them came to him and asked him to send their congratulations to the Government for the assistance they were going to render distressed settlers. He was subsequently asked when the works were going to commence, but upon that point he was unable to give them equally satisfactory information. (Hear, hear.) In 1891 he went to the Riverina district, from which he had just come, and he had to leave owing to the disastrous and prolonged drought. He had heard people say "What a pity you ever went out to such a God-forsaken country and got yourself into such trouble." In answer to that remark he wished to point out that in 1891 when he went to Riverina the place was a perfect Garden of Eden. The grass was higher than the sheep, and the country looked very much like a place where any man would like to make his home. Since the year mentioned, however, they had not seen a really good season, and the result was that the genuine farmers and settlers were in such a hopeless condition that they were justified in asking the Government to assist them. This was not an appeal from the ordinary unemployed, but from the genuine farmers on the land, many of whom were 50 miles from a railway and were unable to get anything out of the land owing to the continued drought. If the Government could not help these people they must go elsewhere for relief. The men in the Riverina district were practical farmers, many of whom came from Victoria and South Australia, and when they came into the country and took it up they considered it to be as good as the Goulburn Valley in Victoria. They were not men who were in the habit of making a great outcry about their own wants, and they had quietly persevered and suffered for years in the face of great difficulties, but they now confessed that they were beaten, and they hoped the Government would relieve their pressing necessities until the season improved and no further help was needed. The country was in such a state that it was impossible even to keep fowls, because there was nothing to be picked up, and the majority of the farmers were unable to purchase food for them. A great many farmers, he was sorry to say, had gone, and in his district they would find abandoned homesteads everywhere. These men were not asking for charity, but that the Government give them the work which was promised them. Things had been dilly-dallied, and were in such a state that he did not know how many of the settlers would be able to carry out the work given to them owing to the loss of their stock; nor would they have the means to put their crops in again. If the man on the land was allowed to go down the city must follow—(hear, hear)—and therefore he asked the public to extend their sympathy with these people in a practical way. He hoped those present would not allow the movement to stop at that meeting, but would endeavour to promote some good scheme for the relief of these people, so that he might send some cheering news as to how they were going to help them. (Applause.)

The Archbishop of Sydney moved the first resolution as follows,—"That this meeting views with sympathetic regret the dire distress in which many settlers are placed through the effects of the disastrous and prolonged drought, and is of opinion that an organisation should be established to help those in distress, and to strengthen the hands of the Government in extending help." When Mr. Humby mentioned to him the serious position of the people in the back country he determined to be present and offer his sympathy. At Mr. Humby's request special prayers for the distressed settlers had been offered in the Anglican churches. He would like to refer to some mocking remarks published in a section of the press about their day of thanksgiving. He would like to say distinctly that it was perfectly absurd for people to say that we ought not to thank God for rain, because the rain had not gone over the whole country. Because we had not got all we wanted that was all the more reason why we should continue to pray to God for relief. There had been distress and disappointment, and the delay of hope deferred, and now we had put before us a plea for support and sympathy, and he hoped the people would respond. (Applause).

Mr. George Maiden seconded the resolution. He had months ago foreseen what the effect would be upon the Sydney people. Unless this movement was liberally and bountifully subscribed to the people on the land would be in a state of destitution. As an outcome of this meeting every politician in the country should force the Government at this particular time to hurry on its schemes of water conservation. (Applause.) They were only conduit pipes living on the people of the land—(hear, hear)—and the policy of the Sydney people had apparently been to kill the people on the land and by doing so to kill themselves. (Cheers.) There was drought all over the State, and Parliament ought to be alive to the situation and rise to the occasion. The poor settlers had already been knocked out and the wealthier people on the land would soon be in the same straits, if this dreadful ghastly drought did not soon break. He himself would give £50 towards the fund. (Applause).

Mr. T. W. Kelly (of Bourke) supported the resolution. He said he himself was one of the sufferers by the drought, and he could therefore cordially sympathise with others who were suffering in the same way. They could put up with one or two bad seasons, but when it came to six or seven years of drought no man could possibly exist under it. During the last six or seven years he had lost 40,000 sheep, and he did not think he had more than 3000 sheep now running upon his property in New South Wales and Queensland. More than that, he would be unable to obtain sheep to restock the country. This was not a begging matter at all, for all that the settlers wanted was money to assist them in tiding over their present difficulties, and he need not tell them that they were quite prepared to pay what was advanced to them as they had always done. (Hear, hear). These men were the pioneers of the country, and Parliament, as far as he could see, had done nothing for them. (Hear, hear). They were asked to give relief to men who had fought the battle of the land; if they left the land it would be found difficult to replace them. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. J. G. Carroll, M.L.A., supported the resolution, and said that reproductive works should be started at once, which would enable these people to work until the drought had broken. He hoped the Government would take up the matter seriously. He regretted to see that the Premier at a recent meeting in connection with the Savings Bank said that the country was not in such a state as some people appeared to think. In making that statement the Premier, he thought, was either intentionally blind or he could not see the state of things as it existed. (Hear, hear.) He believed that the Government had not done its duty to the distressed settlers, and they ought to proceed to the assistance of these unfortunate people without further delay. (Hear, hear.)

The resolution was put and carried unanimously.

Mr. Frank Grimley moved, "That a relief fund be established to provide means for extending immediate relief to distressed settlers in urgent cases, to be known as the Lord Mayor's Fund, and that a committee be formed of the following gentlemen, with power to add to their number, to carry out the objects of this meeting:—The Archbishop of Sydney, Messrs. George Maiden, J. S. Brunton, James Inglis, A. G. Humby, F. E. Winchcombe, M.L.A., Thomas Fitzpatrick, M.L.A., J. H. Carruthers, M.L.A., J. G. Carroll, M.L.A., J. J. Miller, J. W. Gray, T. W. Kelly (Bourke), P. F. Madden (Dubbo), T. J. Campbell (Farmers and Settlers' Association), W. Miller, E. Roach (Narrandera), G. Golding (Forbes), and the Rev. J. E. Carruthers, with the Lord Mayor and Mr. Frank Grimley as hon. treasurers pro tem." Some fund was necessary, he said, to relieve the acute distress, independent of the Government aid, particularly because great bodies moved slowly, and probably many of these people would be beyond the reach of relief unless they received it at an early date. On the grounds of humanity and self-interest he thought a strong claim had been made out for the Sydney people to support the fund.

Mr. W. N. Willis, M.L.A., deplored the paucity of the meeting, which he regarded as a slight to the people suffering in the back country. They found on Monday night last 25,000 people at the cycling carnival, and when Madame Melba was in Sydney hundreds paid their guineas to listen to her, but when the people on the land cried out for help the public of Sydney did not turn up to respond to the cry for sympathy. Where were the public men that night? (Applause.) Where were the representatives of the Ministry, the Opposition, and the labour party? (Renewed applause.) They would be present, he stated, if it were some great gathering to do honour to a great cyclist or rowing man, but when it was to hear of the misery and the distress of settlers they were conspicuous by their absence. (Hear, hear.) The people of Sydney were sitting on the edge of a volcano, but did not appear to realise it. The country was bankrupt. It was terrible to contemplate that women and children had to go and cut scrub to try and keep the last few stock alive, and go miles for a bucket of water. It was shameful that the city people were so apathetic, so careless, and so heartless, and that they could not come and show their practical sympathy with the drought-stricken settlers. There were places where the bailiff would not go for fear of starvation. (Laughter.) The only thing that was practicable was to give the settlers, large or small, in the drought-stricken areas a rebate of three years' rent as a public contribution. (Applause.) The Government should do this even if it meant cutting down the public expenditure.

Mr. N. Collins, M.L.A., and the Rev. J. E. Carruthers supported the resolution, which was carried.

Mr. P. F. Madden (Dubbo) moved the next resolution:—"That this meeting is of opinion that the Government should take immediate and prompt steps to supply seed wheat and horse feed to the distressed settlers unable to procure same for themselves."

The resolution was seconded by Mr. T. I. Campbell (Farmers and Settlers) and supported by Mr. T. Fitzpatrick, M.L.A., and carried.

Mr. J. J. Miller (Chamber of Agriculture) moved,—"(a) That the Government be strongly urged to commence in real earnest the relief works sanctioned by Parliament, such as water conservation works and railway lines in the country; (b) that the Government be urged to expedite the dealing with applications for advances under the Advances to Settlers Act by appointing special inspectors to make immediate and prompt reports upon the applications, and also the necessity of extending the margin of advance beyond 50 per cent. on the value of securities."

Mr. V. R. Gosche seconded and Mr. H. A. Hough (Mount Ida) supported the resolution, which was carried unanimously.

The chairman announced that the total amount received was £430, including the sum forwarded to the Lord Mayor (as stated in his speech). The other contributors included:—Mr. George Maiden, £50; Mr. Frank Grimley, £25; the Acting Chief Justice, £10; the Lord Mayor, £10; Mr. W. N. Willis, M.L.A., £10 10s; Mr. W. Affleck, M.L.A., £10; Mr. N. Collins, M.L.A., £10; W. T. Wright, £5 5s; Mons. F. Aengenheyster, £5 5s; and Rev. J. E. Carruthers, £2 2s.

A motion was carried unanimously protesting against the Mayor endorsing Mr. Humby's action. It was stated that the collecting of funds for distressed farmers was ill-advised, and that the farmers refuse to be pauperised by any attempt to collect charity money, knowing that the Government will advance any assistance required. The secretary was instructed to wire a protest by the farmers of the Wyalong district to the Lord Mayor of Sydney.

At a meeting of farmers requiring seed wheat an order was given in a few minutes for 2000 bushels. Most of the farmers intend paying cash on delivery. All the district orders will be despatched on January 30.

A WATER WHIRLWIND.

On Wednesday afternoon an interesting phenomenon in the shape of a water whirlwind was seen off Nalpa, on the shores of Lake Alexandrina, near the mouth of the River Murray. THE VICTORIAN PARLIAMENT.

THE PROBATE BILL.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Legislative Assembly met this morning at 11. The Premier denounced the action of the Council in laying aside the Probate Bill, and expressed the view that members of the Upper House did not realise the magnitude of the issue involved, and the fact that the measure was an essential portion of the financial proposals of the Government. With a view of affording members of another place an opportunity of further considering the matter, he proposed to reintroduce an identical bill. Mr. Duffy expressed approval of the course proposed by the Government. The bill was then re-introduced and read the first time.

The Budget debate was continued by Mr. Swinburne (Government) and Mr. M'Kinnon (Opposition), who were both unfriendly critics of the Government proposals. The Premier, replying to criticisms, defended the proposal to use material in stock with which to effect belated railway repairs, contending that was the course which would be adopted by a prudent business man. Regarding old-age pensions, he believed that the present expenditure was far too heavy for the community, and if the Government remained in office it would be their endeavour to substitute a system based on practical, logical lines, in which the principle of thrift would be recognised. To show that the Government was endeavouring to carry out permanent economies he stated that it had reduced the Public Service by 359 hands and the railways by 556. He regarded proposals for a uniform income tax and levy based on municipal valuation as impracticable, submitting that the practical method was to employ the existing taxing machinery to meet the extraordinary emergency. The debate was adjourned, and the House rose at 4.7 p.m.

About 2 o'clock the brother heard a noise outside the room as if some one was choking, and deceased staggered into the room and kneeled alongside the bed. Shortly after the arrival of the doctor, death took place. It was found that deceased must have gone to the wood heap, sat on a log and gashed his throat, for a quantity of blood was found there. About a fortnight ago deceased withdrew £200 from the bank and placed it to his father's account. The work of opening the Carore Creek cutting on the northern side of the Big River commenced on Monday. There are 33 local men employed and ploughs and drays are used. The overseer, Mr. Jackson, states that over 100 men applied for work. All the timber in the creek for a mile and three-quarters has already been cut. The Carore Creek runs for some miles back into station country, and if the timber were cleared from its bed for four or five miles the water could run back that distance. More work is required for the unemployed.

MURWILLUMBAH, Friday.

The annual meeting of the Tweed and Brunswick Agricultural Society was held yesterday. The credit balance is £270.

PICTON, Friday.

At the Picton Court to-day, before Mr. Wilshire, P.M., Frederick Mitchell was committed for trial on a charge of attempted assault on Mrs. Isabel Schmarr at the Oaks in August last. This case has been three times before the Court. On the first occasion it was heard by the honorary magistrates, and dismissed. On the second occasion the police magistrate dismissed the case, declining to sit in judgment on his brother magistrates unless forced to do so. Counsel for the prosecutrix applied to the Attorney-General, who instructed the police magistrate to hear the case.

The septic tank system of sanitation has been adopted at the local postal premises and at the George Hotel premises. In both instances the Board of Health insisted on some such system being adopted in order to prevent refuse finding its way to the creek, which feeds the metropolitan water supply.

PORTLAND, Friday.

The public water supply has been completed.

An official post-office was opened on Monday, 19th. Mr. Windeyer, late of Cudgen, Tweed River, is in charge.

THE BOER DELEGATES.

GRAFTON, Friday.

The Boer delegates to-day visited the experimental farm six miles from Grafton; also the aborigines' home, the Fresh Food and Ice Company's works, and the Susan Island Recreation Reserve. They were much impressed with what they saw, more particularly with the virgin brush growing on the island and the experimental farm. They leave for the Richmond River to-morrow. Their trip has been made most enjoyable by the citizens.

ANNIVERSARY DAY ARRANGEMENTS.

Particulars of the arrangements made by the Postal and Telegraphic and Railway Departments for Monday next, Anniversary Day, were published in our columns yesterday.

There are, however, a number of fixtures for the day. The main engagement for the day is, of course, the Anniversary Regatta.

The flagship will be the R.M.S. Arcadia, and the contests will last all day. There are 16 sailing races, the first of which begins at 10.15 a.m., and 11 rowing events, beginning at 10.30 a.m. Several members of the Ministry are expected to be present at the luncheon.

There are also excursions. That to Manly is always popular, and steamers will run thither every few minutes. Balmoral Beach and the head of Middle Harbour also are favoured by the public, and Nelson's line of steamers is advertised to run at half-hour intervals beginning at 9 a.m., calling at the pleasure resorts on the harbour shores.

For Lane's Gardens steamers will leave Macquarie Wharf every half-hour.

On the Parramatta River steamers will ply at the usual intervals carrying passengers for all wharfs. Correy's Gardens is a recognised pleasure resort, and the proprietary announce in our business columns that all the conveniences for picnic parties will be available on Monday.

Double-decked steamers will leave the foot of Erskine-street every half-hour for Lane Cove River waterside scenic reserves.

Steamers will leave Fort Macquarie ever half-hour for Clifton Gardens, where the usual holiday attractions are provided.

Additional attractions have been provided at the Abbotsford pleasure grounds, on the Parramatta River, by the lessee, Mr. St. George. Summer houses have been built, and other improvements made. In addition to its water frontage, Abbotsford comprises miniature bays, sandy beaches, and rocky foreshores. Means are provided for holiday sports, and there are also amusements for children. Visitors can be conveyed by steamers or trams.

The steamer Namoi, 1414 tons, will, weather permitting, leave the Newcastle and Hunter River Steamship Company's wharf, foot of Market-street, at 10 a.m., for Cowan Bay, meeting the Newcastle at Cowan with excursionists from Newcastle that day. The fare is only 3s. Luncheon and refreshments can be obtained on board. Excursionists will arrive in Sydney on the return about 6 p.m.

At the Zoo and the Cyclorama the customary holiday attractions are provided.

CASUALTIES.

A CYCLIST INJURED.

Ernest Leseberg, a Moree cyclist, was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital yesterday suffering from the effects of a fall which he sustained in a race on Wednesday night. Leseberg did not appear to have received any serious injury at the time, and was able to proceed to his home. Yesterday morning, however, serious symptoms set in. On examination at the hospital the base of his skull was found to have been fractured, and it was decided to perform the operation of trepanning. This was successfully carried out, but the latest news stated that the injured man was still in a serious condition.

ACCIDENT TO A CARPENTER.

William Bye, 56, a carpenter, living at Rydalmere, while working at the abattoirs, Glebe Island, yesterday, fell from a scaffold, a distance of 12ft. He was conveyed by the Civil Ambulance to the Balmain Cottage Hospital, and admitted suffering from severe injuries to the back and loins.

TWO MEN INJURED.

Two men, named George Anderson, residing in Fitzroy-street, Alexandria, and Duncan Aitken, living at Allen-street, Ultimo, were working on the roof of the Congregational Church, Queen and Ocean streets, Woollahra, yesterday, when the ropes holding the platform on which they were standing gave way. Both men were precipitated to the ground a distance of 40ft. They were taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, where Aitken was found to have fractured his right wrist. Duncan's injuries consisted of a dislocated shoulder and severe cuts and bruises.

FEDERAL POLITICS.

INDICTMENT OF THE GOVERNMENT.

THE SHIPWRECKED HOPES OF FEDERALISTS.

AN APPEAL TO COMMERCIAL MEN.

INTERVIEW WITH SIR W. M'MILLAN.

As Sir William M'Millan will be leaving on a brief business trip to England in a few days' time, he was interviewed yesterday by a "Herald" reporter, and asked to make a statement regarding the present position of federal politics.

"One of the most interesting phases of the present stage of our political development," said Sir William, "is the attitude of the several State Governments to the Federal Government. Already a conference of Premiers is announced, ostensibly of course to talk over matters of general interest, in a friendly way, but in reality to take measures to defend the States from the encroachments of the Commonwealth. This conference will probably grow into a regular piece of machinery, with practically Parliamentary sanction, in the years to come. All this reminds one of the hopes and aspirations of those who, while quite as anxious as others to maintain the proper authority of the States for essentially local affairs, were still of opinion that as the years rolled on, as strength and ability and patriotism became the essential qualities of the national Government, the Commonwealth would draw more and more to itself the administration of all matters affecting the people of Australia as a whole, and especially matters which tended to develop the resources of the entire continent.

WHAT WAS EXPECTED.

"At the time when the federation fight took place it was felt that if its advocates loaded the scheme with too many powers previously held by the States the project would break down through the clash of views on debatable questions. It was, however, hoped that union once accomplished, with a Parliament and Government attracting the best intellect of the continent, with the wisdom of experienced statesmen, and the higher plane of national action, such a sense of security would be engendered that a passion for union and for a strong central Government would in a short time follow; also that with a body of men speaking for all Australia, instead of through six discordant throats, our railways, the management of the public debt, the control of isolated territories, and other truly federal and national undertakings would be cheerfully handed over by a grateful and admiring people.

A BLUNDERING AND DISASTROUS ADMINISTRATION.

"But is not all this illusion gone? Is there anything in the principle of federation or in the scheme of the Constitution to warrant its disappearance? Certainly not. All the hopes of federation's friends have been shipwrecked, and all the prophetic sneers of its enemies have been realised wholly and solely by two years of blundering and disastrous administration.

"By the opening of the next Parliament, if not sooner, the time would have come for the Commonwealth Government to propose certain concrete measures by which, apart from the debating-club eloquence on theoretical nonsense in which certain Australian politicians love to indulge, the people of Australia would have witnessed the achievement of great national enterprises immensely increasing the comforts of life and doubling the great natural resources of the continent.

THE AMALGAMATION OF THE RAILWAYS.

"Take, for instance, the amalgamation of the railways and the securing, at any rate between the various capitals, a uniform gauge. What an immense step that would be, together with the construction of new lines on a distinctly national basis, bringing the people of Australia from the remotest and most isolated regions into closer contact, increasing tenfold the power and influence of the central Government, and consummating by all the ties of close proximity and free intercommunication a real living, national union instead of a parchment treaty, which up to the present time has caused by its administration, and by several acts of puerile legislation, widespread dissatisfaction among our own people, and considerable contempt in many parts of the Empire. To illustrate what I mean: How would a proposal be met in New South Wales which had for its object the amalgamation of all the railways of Australia? Would it not be scouted?

THE LACK OF COMMON SENSE.

"Wherever a service or a department requiring common sense and business ability has been taken over by the Commonwealth, what have we found? Ignorance, arrogance, and incapacity. Witness the Customs and the Post Office. I have dealt sufficiently with the Customs previously. Let me take an example from the Post Office—in one way almost too small to mention, but still illustrative of that petty kind of annoyance which people feel much more than larger matters. A person finds out that a parcel has been sent from England to Sydney. It has not apparently arrived, at any rate it has not been delivered. The Post Office is written to. A few days afterwards the postman calls at the house of the inquiring citizen. The latter is informed that the inquiry cannot be made until the citizen pays 2½d for the service rendered. Surely this is childish and ridiculous. Is the Post Office not a business, although a State business? Fancy any business firm telling a customer that his complaint could not be inquired into unless he sent a certain amount of cash to cover the possible expenses of inquiry. Surely nothing but a wretchedly managed monopoly could dare to so outrage all common sense.

THE BLOCKING OF PRIVATE ENTERPRISE.

"We may, therefore, take for granted," continued Sir William M'Millan, "that for many years to come, until we have had continuously able and patriotic Commonwealth government, the people and the Legislatures of the various States will look with great suspicion on every movement of the Federal Government to enlarge its powers, and the last two years' administration will probably postpone for an indefinite period the carrying out of great national enterprises which would inevitably develop the resources of the country, induce capital to come from abroad, and place Australia in her proper place with a commanding influence in the Eastern world.

THE CURSE OF MINORITY RULE.

"Unfortunately, the encouragement of independent enterprise, the opening out of fresh channels for the surplus capital of England, and the still higher ambition to preserve unimpaired in this eastern part of the world the pluck and resource which we inherited from our fathers, is about the last aim of a Parliament led by the views of a small minority, distinctly socialistic and retrograde, and, curious to say, entirely out of harmony with the views of the great body of the people.

THE DUTY OF BUSINESS PEOPLE.

"As regards the present state of parties, and the 'minority' rule so much referred to of late, I really believe that a spirit healthier and more persistent than we have known for years is beginning to take definite shape among our people, both in State and federal affairs. I know the difficulty of men who are absorbed in business, often not their own masters, to come out into public life and take a part in the active management of public affairs. In most cases they would be fools if they attempted it. The absorbing character of politics has wrecked thousands of private businesses, and brought ruin and penury into numberless homes. But this does not preclude men from taking an active, intelligent interest in public affairs. They can at least take an interest in the selection of candidates, they can attend meetings, and by their presence encourage the candidate, they can urge upon all their fellow citizens in the same electorate the sacred duty of recording their vote, and as educated men and with the reasonable leisure which most men now have, they can watch the progress of affairs, try to understand the trend of legislation and the action of the Executive, instead of almost taking a pride as some do in their absolute ignorance of all Australian politics local or federal.

THE POLITICAL POWER OF WOMEN.

"I hope, too, that the women of Australia will through their own intelligent organisation shame the thousands of listless and indifferent men, who seem to care nothing except for their own immediate interests, and whose unpatriotic apathy, with occasional flashes of white-heat energy when their pockets are in danger has done more than anything else to create political elements highly dangerous to a community whose industrial life is based on the sacredness of private property, individual freedom, and the due reward of thrift, conduct, and ability.

REFERENCE TO STATE POLITICS.

"As regards State politics," observed Sir William M'Millan, "I do not at present care to say much, as I think federal members have abstained from interfering, although, of course, they do not in any way lose their rights as citizens of the State. But one thing I do hope, whatever may be the fate of my own or any other party, State or federal, and that is this, when the next electoral campaign takes place, each side should make an enormous effort to obtain a majority that will make it independent of any small section which by stepping in between the two large contending forces might so influence the triumphant party, and so degrade Parliamentary proceedings that the will of the people would cease to exist. I am not now pleading for any party principle; I am simply asserting the true principles of representative and democratic government.

"If the Freetrade party in the Federal Parliament cannot at the next general election obtain such a substantial majority, at any rate in the House of Representatives, which will enable the Government to carry out fearlessly its own well-matured policy, and at the same time enable the Executive to have that strength which is so doubly necessary under a federal system, and without which it can never win the respect of the people, then the victory is not worth having, and the possession of the Treasury Benches can only lead to endless embarrassments, a futile struggle for principle, and an ignominious end. It remains to see whether the people of Australia will respond all along the line. It is this impotence of Parliament which has given rise in many countries to the cry for a referendum, a step which might be rendered necessary under exceptional circumstances, but which to my mind is destructive of the true principles of representative government.

THE EVILS OF EXCESSIVE BORROWING.

"I have only one word to say in the friendliest way with regard to the condition of things in my own State. We cannot go on as we are doing. Loans are indispensable in a young and growing country where the State is the landlord of a large portion of the territory, and where many services of a national character are undertaken by the State. If these loans are contracted for not merely reproductive works, but for interest-bearing works, where the rate of interest from the service equals or exceeds the national rate of borrowing, there can be no objection if the loans each year are of moderate dimensions, and do not unduly disturb the labour market. Other loans ought to be contracted with great caution. All this of course is commonplace. But unfortunately our public men of late years have admitted a theory which is absolutely unsound in principle, and the result only shows how dangerous it is to break away from sound principles.

FINDING WORK FOR THE PEOPLE.

"It has frequently been stated by Ministers and members of Parliament that the Executive Government is bound to find employment for the people. Nothing could be more vicious. Parliament is bound to pass laws which will help to develop the natural resources of the State, to brush aside all wooden-headed regulations and antiquated statutes which block the channels of industry, and the Executive is bound to so conduct the affairs of the country that capital will feel security, and is also bound to resist all backstairs influence, all attempts of class favour, and establish a reputation for fearless honesty and equitable administration. But it has no right to squander the money of the whole people either to placate followers or to divert labour from natural channels to Governmental employment on unnecessary work.

"This has not been the sin of any one Government, and I only speak now as a citizen of New South Wales in hopes that a better state of things will soon eventuate. In times of great and phenomenal distress all ordinary principles must be set aside. Men cannot be allowed to starve. But Government should emphatically declare that the natural employment of men should be in private channels, not Government service, and that men can only be paid, if Government must pay them, for value received. Our whole future credit in the financial world, on which we so much depend, will ultimately be assessed by our creditors' knowledge of the principles on which we act in the future development of our industrial life."

Sir William M'Millan expects to be in Melbourne on May 18, which should be very soon after the opening of the Federal Parliament.

PASTORALISTS FEDERAL COUNCIL.

THE FOURTEENTH CONVENTION.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The fourteenth convention of the Pastoralists Federal Council of Australia commenced its sittings on Thursday morning and continued them to-day. The following were representatives who attended the convention:—

Pastoralists' Union of New South Wales: Messrs. W. E. Abbott, Samuel Clift, and W. F. Jaques, with Mr. John Mair secretary.

United Pastoralists' Association of Queensland: Mr. John Cameron, M.L.A., the Hon. D. B. Morehead, M.L.C., and Mr. E. Bowen Buchanan, with Mr. F. Ranson, secretary.

The Pastoralists' Association of South Australia and West Darling: Messrs. M. S. Hawker, Peter Waite, and the Hon. John Warren, M.L.C., with Mr. F. J. Nixon secretary.

The Pastoralists' Association of Victoria and Southern Riverina: Messrs. J. A. Campbell, R. O. Blackwood, T. Beggs, with Mr. R. E. N. Twopenny acting-secretary.

Mr. J. A. Campbell was elected president, and Mr. W. E. Abbott vice-president of the convention. The secretaries of the various unions or associations were elected secretaries to the convention. Mr. John Mair being table secretary and Mr. F. J. Nixon minute secretary. The accounts in connection with the recent shearing disputes in New South Wales, Victoria, and South Australia were presented, adjusted, and passed for payment. The rates for shearing and shed hands' wages in the territories of the federated bodies were considered, and the decisions arrived at by the convention will be announced publicly as soon as they are finally adjusted. The present boundaries of the territories of the federated bodies were considered, and it was decided they be not altered. Some verbal alterations were made in the station employee's certificate of discharge. Several other matters of business relating to the internal affairs of the federated bodies were also dealt with. Votes of thanks having been accorded the proceedings terminated.

ENCOUNTER WITH BURGLARS.

A CONSTABLE USES HIS REVOLVER.

ONE MAN WOUNDED.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Constable Barnard while on duty in Carlton had an encounter early to-day with burglars, and found it necessary to use his revolver. His suspicions were aroused by movements in a grocer's shop at the corner of Pelham and Cardigan streets, and obtaining the assistance of Constable Martin, an arrest was promptly made of a man who apparently was acting as sentry. As Constable Barnard entered the shop, a warning voice dared him to advance on pain of being shot. Barnard replied by sending a bullet in the direction of the voice, and the burglar fell to the ground with a bullet in the fleshy part of the thigh. Three arrests have been made, and the men were presented at the Carlton Court to-day, and remanded for a week.

THE AUBURN TRAGEDY.

THE LATE CONSTABLE LONG'S WILL.

The police have been actively searching for the perpetrators of the Auburn tragedy, but up to the present nothing of an important character has been discovered. In fact it is considered by many of the police that should the actual murderers be captured there is little possibility of collecting sufficient evidence for the conviction of the men. Besides the staff prosecuting inquiries in the city, Sub-inspector Roche, Detectives Jones and Bradley, and Constable Eddie, are investigating the case at Auburn.

The effects of the late constable's rooms have been opened in the presence of the police, and a brief will has been found, wherein he bequeathes his property and personal effects to a young lady to whom he was engaged to be married. The will makes deceased's cousin, Mr. S. A. Long, school teacher, of Casino, the sole executor.

PROPOSED LAND EXCHANGE.

WAGGA, Friday.

The local land board yesterday concluded six days' sittings at Coolamon. Two important cases were dealt with. The Scottish Australian Investment Company proposed to exchange scattered blocks on their Ganmain run aggregating some 4500 acres for a block of like area adjoining some of their land on that run. The inspecting surveyor reported favourably on the proposal, and deposed that the land and improvements offered in surrender were worth in the aggregate £2300 more than those sought in exchange, and that owing to their being ringbarked and supplied with tanks, dams, and fencing the former were ready for immediate occupation by farmers, while the latter would require three or four years to sweeten. These considerations outweighed, in his opinion, the advantages the exchanged lands had in being about four miles nearer to railway stations. The board took the opposite view, and reported adversely on the proposal.

THE MESSAGERIES STEAMERS.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

In view of the proposal that the Messageries Maritimes steamers should at no distant date alter their route from the ports of southern Australia, and proceed from Colombo, via Torres Straits, to New Caledonia, Mr. J. Bradshaw, of the Northern Territory, has urged on the company the advantages of making Port Darwin a port of call. The company considers that at present the proposal is premature.

WESTERN MINERS' DISPUTE

LITHGOW, Friday.

Nothing is yet available for publication in regard to the results of the late mining conference. It is stated, however, that a reply has been received from the owners, but that it is of an unsatisfactory character. Mr. Thirlwell (miners' secretary), is unable to give any information on the point. There seems to be a belief that a settlement is unlikely, and that the case will go to arbitration. Miners generally say that they are ready for this. Mr. T. Wilton, of Lithgow Valley Colliery, who was not represented at the conference, urges that the establishment of a holiday on pay Saturdays, which was one of the men's claims, would mean the destruction of the chance of establishing a reliable shipping trade.

STOCK MOVEMENTS.

COROWA, Friday.

Stock movements:—1400 wethers, Corowa to Aberdeen, J. King; 1100 wethers, Kilyana to Moss Vale, M'Geoch Brothers; 3040 ewes and 60 rams, Mahonga to Tinamba, Mahonga Company; 1022 fat sheep, Kentucky to Sydney, J. G. THE FIRE BRIGADES' BOARD LEVY.

CONFERENCE OF MUNICIPALITIES.

A COMMITTEE APPOINTED.

The proposal by the Fire Brigades Board to levy an increased contribution from the municipalities was considered last night at a conference convened by the Mayor of Randwick of representatives of the various municipal bodies in the metropolitan area, and held in the Municipal Association rooms. Alderman George Gale, Mayor of Randwick, was voted to the chair. About 60 representatives were present.

The chairman said that the size of the meeting demonstrated the earnestness exhibited in connection with the matter they had met to discuss. Owing to the inroads that were being made upon their resources it appeared to him that if some steps were not taken they would soon have no money for purposes of road making, pure and simple. He did not know what the next move of the Fire Brigades' Board would be, but it was high time they took steps to counteract what had already been done. There was no body of men who did more to conserve the interests of the public than the aldermen of the different municipalities. They had met to face the difficulty that had been raised and perhaps even to fight the Government over a matter into which they ought never to have been led. He failed to see that the municipality he represented got any benefit either directly or indirectly from the fire brigade levy. If the Government were not in a position to indemnify them, the insurance companies were well able to pay. He hoped that the meeting would formulate certain resolutions and go to the Premier and show him that the municipalities were being robbed of the money collected for road making purposes in order to support the Fire Brigades' Board.

Alderman A. T. D'Arcy Irvine, of Randwick, was called on by the chairman, and said they all knew how the present situation arose. An overdraft was run up by the board, and as a consequence the municipalities were called on at one fell swoop to raise their contributions by 50 per cent. It was for the conference to consider whether the municipalities should be called on to collect funds to be used by another body. It had been a question whether their funds should not be used directly upon their own roads. As far as the Randwick Council was concerned none of the annual cheques had been paid for the Fire Brigades' Board without a great deal of grumbling. The powers of the Fire Brigades' Board were practically unlimited, because it had a stringent penal clause which rendered it practically impossible for the municipalities to get out of payment. The disproportion between the increase now went beyond all sources of income of the municipalities, and the expenditure of the Fire Brigades' Board was too great. In Randwick they had paid in five years no less than £829, and had had no quid pro quo for it. The fires in Randwick had been very insignificant ones. It seemed to him that the insurance companies had probably grown rich at the expense of the municipalities. If a special rate were to be levied it would mean that the people, who were already sufficiently taxed, would have to pay more. There was another thing to be borne in mind—that if this increased levy were now paid it would be a recurring expenditure. Mr. Taylor said in his circular that the fire service was a progressive one, and the expenditure would increase with the establishment of every new fire station. The City Council had to pay a third of the municipal subsidy, but in his opinion that was not enough considering the wealth of the city as compared with the suburbs. He noticed that a suggestion had been made that the Government should pay the subsidy, but he would like to know how the Government was going to increase its expenditure when it had a depleted Treasury. All its available sources of means had been fully exploited. The municipal contribution must be much reduced, and any reform must be by Act of Parliament. He understood that the City Council had refused to contribute its quota, and was going to make a test case of it. He therefore thought the conference might wait until that case was decided.

A letter was read from the Glebe Council stating that at a special meeting a resolution had been passed to the effect that a test case be initiated, all municipalities refusing to pay until it was decided.

Alderman Treadgold (Leichhardt) said that the question of the fire brigades levy had been a vexed one for many years. He believed that they ought to follow out the general rule that there should be no taxation without representation. The municipalities found one-third of the money for the Fire Brigades Board, and the other bodies, who found the remaining two-thirds, had four representatives. The board itself found none of the cost, but had one representative. The municipal representative had no power to check the expenditure. They accumulated an overdraft of £7000, and then came down upon the municipalities to pay it. He did not object to pay for a fire brigade if they had the privilege of running it on their own lines. In the old country the municipalities had the fire brigades under their own control. The fire brigade must be supported, but it was for the meeting to decide what terms would be in consonance with the feelings of the municipalities. He thought that the Government should not be asked to pay in support of the brigade, but that payment should be made by the insurance companies and by all those people who benefited. He moved,—"That in the opinion of this conference the only remedy for the present difficulty is to make the Fire Brigades Board elective, that members should be elected by the municipalities concerned, that the municipalities take over the full and entire control of the brigade in the metropolitan area, and that the insurance companies be compelled to contribute a certain percentage hereafter to be struck on the premiums that they receive."

Alderman Pearson (Leichhardt) seconded the resolution. It would be useless for them to attempt to escape the payment of the present levy. (Dissent.) Their only remedy lay in the future, and could only be attained by Act of Parliament.

Alderman Henley (Drummoyne) said the Fire Brigades Board had, without consulting the councils, abolished the voluntary system in favour of paid firemen. The expense was increased but there was not a corresponding increase in the protection afforded. The Government should take over the expenditure, as it drew heavy revenues from municipalities in land tax but did not give anything in return. If the Government would remit the taxation it drew from the municipalities the latter would willingly pay the contribution for fire brigades. He believed that if all the municipalities refused to pay the Government would be compelled to suspend the Fire Brigades Act.

Alderman Brown (Paddington) said he doubted whether the municipalities could legally pay the levy in view of the 147th section of the Municipalities Act.

Alderman Young (Balmain) moved as an amendment,—"That a sub-committee of 12 from this conference be appointed to formulate some tangible proposal, and lay the same before an adjourned meeting of this conference."

Alderman Vernon (Redfern) seconded Alderman Young's amendment. They ought to be in the position of knowing exactly what they were discussing.

Alderman Creswell (North Sydney) said the most important question to his mind was the proportion that the municipalities were liable for. He believed that the board could not bring forward an overdraft of several years' standing and make them pay it. They were liable only for a certain proportion of the year's expenses.

Alderman Slater (Hurstville) said that the difficulty they had to face was the imposition of the present levy. The only way they could meet it was to go to the Government and ask them for assistance. They could point out that they had not got the special grant that had been promised to them.

Alderman Spackman (St. Peters) supported the amendment. He believed in small committees dealing with big things. The conference would have the opportunity of discussing the committee's report.

Alderman Taylor (representative of the municipalities on the Fire Brigades Board), said that in regard to the present levy he was quite in sympathy with the protest that had been raised. A good deal had been said about the overdraft. He thought he was partly responsible for its accumulation, as he had always fought against an increase in the levies, and the Estimates had been framed without any allowance for a margin. He thought it was not right that they should be asked to pay off the overdraft in one year. It had been impressed upon the public that the protection in the city against fire was insufficient. But the Act provided that an efficient brigade must be maintained. This necessitated an increase in the cost of maintenance. He had been working in the matter of an amendment of the Act for the last four or five years. He had seen this coming for these years, and had pointed out in every circular that he had sent out to the councils that an increase must be made in the levy on the councils. Mr. Taylor then gave an account of two conferences which were held in consequence of his circulars. A good deal of the blame for the increase of levy was, he said, thrown on his shoulders, but he contended that he was not in any way to blame, because he had endeavoured to wake up the councils, but without success. Something had been said about the change from the volunteer to the partially-paid system. That was partly true, but not wholly so, as the extra cost did not amount to more than £3000 a year. The purely volunteer system had proved a failure. He could tell the conference another thing: Out of the £7000 overdraft only £2000 odd was for new plant. As regarded a test case, he was of opinion that if one were made and went in favour of the municipalities, the Premier would introduce a validating bill, and then the whole trouble would have to be gone on over again. As regarded the relative expense of the city and the suburbs, he had obtained a return from the secretary of the board, and, approximately, the expenditure was £2 in the suburbs for every £1 in the city. In the city there were four stations, and in the suburbs there were 28, of which nine were wholly paid, and the rest partially paid.

The amendment was then put and carried, the original motion being lost. Nominations were then taken for members of the committee, and 17 were nominated. It was agreed that in all cases where more than one representative of a municipality was nominated the second man should retire. This brought the number down to 14, and a further agreement—to save a ballot—was come to that the number of the committee should be increased from 12 to 14, also that the chairman and Mr. Taylor, representative of the municipalities on the Fire Brigades' Board, should be ex officio members. The following are the members of the committee:—Aldermen Creswell (North Sydney), W. Taylor (Annandale), Slater (Hurstville), Walker (Paddington), Treadgold (Leichhardt), Henley (Drummoyne), A. T. D'Arcy Irvine (Randwick), Fanning (Redfern), Sparkes (Camperdown), O'Riordan (Alexandria), Barry (Petersham), Morgan (Newtown), and Young (Balmain). Mr. E. H. Strachan, council clerk at Randwick, was appointed secretary of the committee.

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

THE ANNUAL MEETING.

DEBATE UPON THE FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT.

ELECTION OF MEMBERS OF COUNCIL.

The annual meeting of the members of the Royal Agricultural Society of New South Wales was held at Tattersall's-chambers yesterday afternoon. There was a very large attendance of members, and keen interest was taken in the proceedings. Sir John See, the president of the society, occupied the chair.

The president formally moved the adoption of the report and balance-sheet. The report was as follows:—

"It gives me great pleasure to present to you the report and balance-sheet of the year ending October 31, 1902. In doing so I must congratulate you on the unqualified success of the last show, it being the consensus of opinion it was one of the finest ever held, especially as it was thought, with the drought and plague, the success of the exhibition was likely to be limited, but the exhibitors and public responded so liberally that all fears in this direction were dispelled, and had fine weather attended the first few days of the show a record year would have been attained. This all tends to show the established position and favour in which the society is held. Owing to the several buildings and improvements that it was found absolutely necessary to make for the accommodation of the increased attendance of the public, the debit balance for the past year is somewhat larger than usual, but this expenditure will cover all requirements for some years. Another expenditure which is larger than before is the maintenance account, owing to all the buildings having to be painted and repaired; this, also, will not be required for a considerable time. The buildings and improvements referred to and included in the balance-sheet are of a remunerative and permanent character, and will give a good return for the money spent, among those being the federal stand, £1450; wine kiosk, £1418; grandstand bar and retaining wall, £1024; post and telegraph office, £341; new seats, £129; secretary's residence, £985; new refreshment rooms, £165; new gates and turnstiles, £200; horse stalls, £400. From the abovementioned extensive works it will be seen that our grounds and appointments are up to date, and every provision made for holding the extensive exhibitions of the society. It is with regret that I have to record the death of Mr. R. Richards, a vice-president of the society and a much respected citizen of Sydney. The thanks of the society are due to the many gentlemen who so kindly acted as judges and stewards at the last show, also to the commercial community of Sydney and other gentlemen for the liberal support accorded by way of donations and special prizes. The prize schedule for the coming show, just issued, has been revised and several new features added which will tend to make it complete. In conclusion, I beg to thank, on behalf of the society, the metropolitan and country press for the very liberal assistance rendered at all times by notices and articles."

The balance-sheet showed the revenue for the year at £14,642 9s 2d, and the expenditure, including an overdraft of £9020 10s 8d, at £23,662 19s 10d. The revenue included the sums of £5767 19s 9d from admission fees, and £2180 9s 3d for entry fees and payments for space. The expenditure side of the balance-sheet showed that the year was commenced with a debit balance of £365 0s 4d; prizes to the amount of £3310 15s 10d had been given, and improvements had been made at a cost of £6897 16s.

Mr. E. Terry seconded the motion for the adoption of the report and balance-sheet in order that they might be brought forward for discussion. He said he had watched the progress of the association for the last 40 years, and had always taken a great interest in its welfare. He had looked forward to the time when the society should stand and be carried on upon its own bottom. Was such an association as that to be wet-nursed during the whole of its life, and were its officers continually to stand as sureties for the bank overdraft? If so it was a disgrace to the society. An honourable business man should always be able to keep his head above water, but this association, with its vast returns, did not show good business management when these gentlemen had to take up the position of sureties. He was sorry to have to say this, because he had heard the president state that this society was an example to all other similar associations (A voice: "So it is.") If that were so it should be able to go "on its own," and he for one would refuse to stand as a surety for the overdraft, for he held that a society which had existed for 50 years should be able to pay its way. He could understand young societies having to borrow money, but not such an old society as this was, and he had no hesitation in denouncing the principle. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. F. A. Wright said many gentlemen would agree with him that the overdraft of £9020 was far larger than it should be, and that there must be a stop put to everything in the way of reckless extravagance in new buildings. They had gone on year after year spending money in this way, and had spent the sum of £9074—almost exactly the same amount as the overdraft. If they went on in this way, and the council did not stop this expenditure, they would only get deeper and deeper into debt. But he desired to congratulate the secretary upon the balance-sheet he had produced, for it showed the exact position of the society. He did not agree with Mr. Terry that the council was not going "on its own." They had now larger and more valuable assets than ever before, and also the most beautiful showground in the Southern Hemisphere. As a matter of fact, their assets far exceeded their liabilities, and he knew of no similar society which could show more satisfactory results. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. A. Macarthur moved as an amendment—"That the report and balance-sheet be referred back to the council for reconsideration, as certain items were misleading." He complained that many of the works and improvements made on the ground were not revenue-producing, and it appeared to him that it was high time the society employed a paid treasurer, for the work was of too considerable a character to be undertaken by the secretary. He did not wish it to be inferred that he thought the society were bankrupt. That would be a ridiculous suggestion but things were not carried on as they ought to be, and the balance-sheet did not show several important items, both of revenue and expenditure, in the manner in which it should have shown them. He thought it was time they took a stand and made a real endeavour to strengthen the society, for the subscribers' roll only numbered some 1100 names, when it should be 11,000. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Henry Hudson pointed out that no money had been expended without the sanction of the council. (Voices: "No, no, entirely wrong.") He was right; for when any money had been asked for the applications had always been considered by the council, and authorised or rejected; and what better guarantee of the bona fides of the executive council could they have than the fact that the members of it had made themselves responsible for the money, and what better asset could the society have than the ground itself? (Applause.)

Mr. P. H. Morton asked who had signed the balance-sheet, and whether it had been presented to the council of the society.

Sir John See: I signed it on the vouchers of the auditors.

Mr. Morton: Yes; but this balance-sheet is not certified to by any member of the council.

Sir John See: I can only say that I would sign any balance-sheet, as the chairman or president of any institution, when so eminent a firm of accountants as the auditors in this case—Messrs. Miles and Vane—have given their approval of it. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Morton, continuing, said the report that had been submitted was a very fair one, but it referred in a very mild way to the debit balance of the society. It could not but be noticed that the public had handed to the society some £20,000 last year, and yet the balance-sheet showed that they were some £5000 worse off than during the previous year. He complained that the accounts were loosely and irregularly kept. He charged no suggestion of dishonesty against any of the society's officers, but maintained that the balance-sheet should give fuller details of the transactions of the society than appeared in it, and should be more carefully prepared.

A voice: What about the assets?

Mr. Morton said the society had no assets, and that was the weakness of its position, for it had no grounds of its own. If a fire occurred the following day the insurance money would only go to pay off their debts. They had only the surety of the honour of any Government in power not to turn them out. They were in a strong position, no doubt, in the eyes of the public, but in a weak position otherwise—

Mr. Wright: We have a statutory lease of 11 years.

Mr. Morton said that was so, but no loans could be obtained on their assets, because they might not be able to get a renewal of the lease after the expiration of that term. (Hear, hear.)

Captain A. T. Pringle, V.D., hon. treasurer of the society, said the sanction of the council had always been obtained before money was expended.

Mr. H. Pateson complained of various items of expenditure and made strong charges of mismanagement.

Mr. H. M. Hamilton said the subscribers to the society could congratulate themselves upon the fact that the council was a body of men fully alive to its interests. As to the question of extravagance, he held the view that they must spend money in improvements in order to make their grounds revenue producing. (Hear, hear.) As to the suggestion that they had no tenure, he was sure no Government which would ever hold office would allow that society to go down. (Cheers.)

Mr. J. G. Howard said he did not think all the money expended had been authorised by the council, but if it turned out to be so he should be very well pleased.

Mr. Vincent Dowling supported the amendment, as it seemed that the balance-sheet was one for which nobody was responsible. But he took no pessimistic view of the position of the society, for he held that it was well able to meet its engagements. They should, however, have a treasurer paid to fulfil the duties pertaining to that office.

Sir John See said the accounts placed before the meeting had been—as he had already stated—verified by Messrs. Mills and Vane. He understood that Mr. Morton had gone through them and found them correct, but that they had not been grouped in the right manner. But in balance-sheets full details were seldom set out. The results were presented to the meeting, and he understood that was the manner in which the accounts of the society had always been kept. If this question was one of detail then it was not one of principle, and if it was one of principle then it should be dealt with in a different manner, for of necessity there must be something wrong with the accounts. If it was decided to appoint a paid treasurer no doubt that would be satisfactory, but it would increase the expenditure, which so many members objected to. As a matter of fact, the indebtedness of the society had been incurred in order to produce revenue, for unless their grounds were made attractive the public and the exhibitors would not patronise them, and the result would be failure. (Hear, hear.) The grounds had cost the society £70,000, and he would admit that it was not worth that to anyone other than the society; but the buildings were insured for £17,000. Their bankers had been very generous, and they might depend upon it that they would not lose one penny that the society owed them, for there was enough spirit left in the community to prevent the society from "going bung." (Cheers.) There need be no apprehension in the mind of anybody, for the society was a public institution, and no Government would press hardly upon it—(cheers)—whilst many public men, including himself, would substantially assist it. (Continued cheering.) As to the question of the possession of the fee simple of the grounds their position would not be improved by that possession. The only difference would be that they would be enabled to mortgage, and then they would have to pay the interest, so it would make no difference to them. (Hear, hear.) But it was a matter for consideration whether the grounds as now improved were not sufficient for the society's requirements, and whether they should not devote the proceeds of next show to the liquidation of their liabilities. (Hear, hear.)

On a vote being taken the amendment was supported by only seven subscribers, and the motion for the adoption of the report and balance-sheet was carried by an overwhelming majority.

SAILING.

ROYAL SYDNEY YACHT SQUADRON.

OPENING OF THE NEW CLUBHOUSE.

The Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron will to-day officially open their new clubhouse, Carabella, Kirribilli Point. The function is to take the form of a garden party tendered to the commodore, Mr. T. A. Dibbs. His Excellency the Admiral will be present, and will, simultaneously with the hoisting of the club ensign, declare the house open. The arrangement as to the yachts is that they shall meet in Farm Cove at 2.30 p.m., from whence they will proceed, under the direction of the commodore, to Neutral Bay, where they will anchor off Carabella. The race which was set down for to-day has been postponed, in order to allow of an assemblage of the yachts at the opening ceremony.

SYDNEY FLYING SQUADRON.

The most important of the Sydney Flying Squadron's fixtures for the season, viz., the 18-footers' championship, is set down for decision this afternoon. The event is exciting considerable interest, and as no less than 11 entries, including the Newcastle crack, Federal, and the Botany representative, Ira, have been received, the contest should indeed be a capital one. With so many first-class boats nominated it is a difficult matter to forecast the winner with any degree of certainty. Australian's performances during the present season have been phenomenal, and her record would appear to establish her as the most likely winner. But in the more recent events Arawa has proved herself to be as fast, if not faster, than any of her opponents in light weather, and there are many who think that under other conditions she is as speedy as the best of the class. Though Donnelly, the present holder of the blue riband, is apparently not sailing as well as previously, her supporters are sanguine that she will give a good account of herself, and in anything like a "blow" her chance of success should be enhanced. Federal has proved herself a worthy opponent of the local cracks, and should do well, whilst, with good handling, and more particularly in light weather Elsie's chance should be second to none. The others can only be said to have outside chances, and as so much depends upon the prevailing conditions any of them may create a surprise.

The entries and skippers are:—Federal (W. E. Arnott), Ira (W. Duncan), Australian (Chris. Webb), Donnelly (George Holmes), Arawa (W. Bead), Elsie (P. Cowie), Mascotte (C. Dunn), Thalia (T. Cuneo), Amy (A. Farr), Wallami (H. Langford), and Waterwitch (W. H. Joyce, sen.).

The course is from Clark Island, round lightship, Sow and Pigs, Shark Island, starters' boat, flagbuoy in Taylor Bay, Shark Island, and finish over starting line. The prizes are: First, £12, and two trophies; second, £5; and third, £3.

Provision has been made for a large attendance of patrons, two steamers having been engaged to follow the race. The Lady Mary will call at the usual Balmain wharfs and Blue's Point as advertised, whilst the Lady Manning will leave Fort Macquarie only at 3.10.

SYDNEY CANOE CLUB.

A HARD EXPERIENCE IN THE BUSH.

MITTAGONG, Friday.

A man named James Cooper wandered into Hill Top yesterday afternoon, naked and almost insane. He stated that he left Sydney on the 9th instant, and walked to Picton. He lost the track and wandered through the bush for nearly a week without food or water. There is a terrible gash across his forehead. The unfortunate man is unable to account for the way in which he lost his clothes. He states that he had a bank book in a pocket of his coat, showing a credit of £16 in the Victorian Saving's Bank. Mr. Peter Bostock, of Hill Top, dressed the man's wound, and gave him nourishment. Police Constable Prowse brought him to Mittagong last night, and he was attended by Dr. Middleton, who ordered him to be taken to Berrima District Hospital.

LATE MINING.

ALLUVIAL GOLD IN SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

Recently the Government purchased the Woodhouse Estate, near Uraidla, 10 miles from Adelaide, for the purposes of closer settlement. During clearing operations indications of gold were found, and the Minister for Mines had some of the gullies prospected. The search has resulted in the discovery in one gully of alluvial gold in payable quantities. The Minister has two men engaged in further prospecting and it results continue the block in which the particular gully is situated will be withheld from allotment and made available for alluvial mining.

VICTORIAN GOLD COMPANIES.

GLENFINE SOUTH GOLD-MINING COMPANY.

The report of the directors of the Glenfine South Gold-mining Company, Pitfield, for the half-year ended December 31 last states that during the term 15,800 tons of stone were treated for a yield of 5680oz. of gold, an average of 7dwt. 12gr. per ton. This was a little higher than for the previous half-year, and the board were hopeful that the stone would maintain its present average during the ensuing term. The gold won to date was as follows:—Alluvial, 8557oz. 18dwt., £34,519 1s 11d; quartz, No. 1 battery, 6294oz. 7dwt. 12gr., £25,111 8s 4d; quartz, No. 2 battery, 30,414oz. 8dwt., £119,433 4s 4d. Concentrates—No. 1 battery, 848oz. 5dwt. 10gr.; No. 2 battery, 9985oz. 7dwt. 6gr., £10,833 17s 3d; total, £189,897 7s 10d. Dividends to the amount of 6s per share had been paid during the term, amounting to £10,500, making the total paid to date £63,875.

SPRING HILL AND CENTRAL LEADS.

The directors' report of the Spring Hill and Central Leads Gold-mining Company states that the income for the half-year has been—Calls, £6036 8s 4d; gold, £1705 17s 1d; deposits on contracts, £20; sundries, £8 10s 8d; making a total of £7771 16s 1d; and the expenditure, including a dr. balance of £2302 8s 2d brought forward from last half-year, £10,051 11s 5d; leaving a debtor balance of £2279 15s 4d. Taking into consideration the heavy expenditure in connection with progressive works the financial position is looked upon as satisfactory. The directors congratulate shareholders on the fact that the course of the main lead has now been proved, uninterruptedly, well into the extensive property, and they have close on 5000ft. to work to the northern boundary; they feel hopeful that the company will have a prosperous future. In addition to the main lead north there is a large area of country to develop, south and east.

KIDNEYS. LIVER.

THE CAUSE OF RHEUMATISM, GOUT, LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, NEURALGIA, BLOOD DISORDERS, GRAVEL, BLADDER DISORDERS, INDIGESTION, BILIOUSNESS, SICK HEADACHE, ANÆMIA.

HOW TO EFFECT A PERMANENT CURE.

THE KIDNEYS.—Blood is conveyed from the heart to the kidneys through arteries, and it is the function of the kidneys to filter the blood, and otherwise separate from it water and various impurities. These impurities are urea, uric acid, and mineral matter. When the kidneys have done their work of purification the blood enters the veins and traverses the body, accumulating in its course a fresh supply of effete matter produced by the wasting of the tissues. The heart again delivers the blood to the kidneys, and the process is repeated. Night and day the work of the kidneys goes on without ceasing.

When the kidneys, through weakness or disease, are unable to perform their duty efficiently the blood retains the uric acid and urea which would otherwise be removed, and becomes contaminated by these urinary poisons. Nature's method of letting us know that the kidneys are working indifferently is to make us conscious of the presence of these poisons by causing us to suffer from RHEUMATISM, GOUT, LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, NEURALGIA, BLOOD DISORDERS, GRAVEL, STONE or BLADDER TROUBLES. The commonest first symptom is a

PAIN IN THE BACK.

But it is not necessary to wait for this acute signal. If some urine, passed the first thing in the morning, is placed in a covered glass and allowed to stand for twenty-four hours and is then cloudy, shows a sediment like brickdust, is an unnatural colour, or has particles floating about in it, then the kidneys are weak or diseased, and immediate steps must be taken to restore them to health and activity.

THE LIVER.—The health of the liver and of the kidneys is closely connected. It is almost impossible for the kidneys to be affected and for the liver to remain healthy, or vice versa. The liver is an automatic chemical laboratory. In the liver various substances are actually made from the blood. Two or three pounds of bile are thus made by the liver every day. The liver takes sugar from the blood, converts it into another form, and stores it up so as to be able to again supply it to the blood, gradually, as the latter requires enrichment. The liver changes uric acid, which is insoluble, into urea, which is completely soluble, and the liver also deals with the blood corpuscles, which have lived their life, and are useful no longer.

When the liver is inactive or diseased, we suffer from INDIGESTION, BILIOUSNESS, ANÆMIA, SICK HEADACHE, and BLOOD DISORDERS, because the blood is laden with urinary and biliary poisons to such an extent that it cannot absorb nutriment from the food we eat, red corpuscles are no longer formed, and it is these red corpuscles which nourish the nerves. In other words the blood is vitiated and starved.

The importance of keeping the kidneys and liver in vigorous health will therefore be realised, and an explanation is afforded why possesses such wonderful power in curing so many seemingly different disorders as those mentioned. Warner's Safe Cure possesses the remarkable property of being able to restore the kidneys and liver to health and activity. All urinary and biliary poisons are then duly removed by the simple process of Nature, and all suffering due to the presence of these poisons in the system necessarily ceases.

Mr. R. H. Blackman, 29 Greek-street, Glebe, Sydney, says:—"About seven years ago I was suffering from Gout, and was suddenly seized by Sciatica, which attacked me as I was driving, and the pain became so bad that I had to be carried home. I was advised the next morning to take Warner's Safe Cure. After taking a few doses I felt relief, and after taking one or two bottles, was cured altogether."

Mr. A. Newcombe, of 53 Arden-street, North Melbourne, says:—"For several years I was a martyr to periodical attacks of Indigestion. Eating became almost a terror to me. The attacks became more frequent as time went on. I tried various remedies, but derived no benefit from any of them. Having heard a good deal about Warner's Safe Cure I took some of that medicine, together with Warner's Safe Pills, and was quite cured. I have not had an attack now for many months."

A treatise containing full particulars relating to Warner's Safe Cure, and accounts of many remarkable cures effected, will be sent free on application by H. H. Warner and Co., Limited, Australasian Branch, Melbourne, Vic.

The Sydney, Melbourne, and Adelaide Stock Exchanges will be closed on Monday next (Anniversary Day).

Our commercial cables to-night from London indicate a rather easier money market, the rate of discount for three months' bill having fallen to 3¼ per cent., a drop of ¼ per cent. during the week. The Bank of England position also has strengthened, the proportion of reserves to liabilities now standing at 46·05, against 44·14 a week ago. Consols have risen ⅛, there being scarcely any alterations in Australian securities. Copper has firmed a shade, tin being slightly easier forward and unaltered on spot. The Bradford market was quiet, but firm and unchanged.

Commenting on the shrinkage in orders for merchandise from Australia, a London financial journal writes:—"Our trade in both tissues and metals has been poorer with Australasia, speaking generally, and that is partly because the settlements out there have lately been less welcome to borrow money here. In proportion as their ability to raise loans declines, we may look for a further diminution in their orders executed with us." While this may be fairly correct as time goes on, it scarcely fully presents the case as it stands to-day. As a matter of fact, during the past 12 months, and it is on that period that the remarks are based, these States, and New South Wales in particular, have borrowed very heavily in London. Were there anything in the argument, therefore, we would have expected heavier and not reduced imports. In this connection there are other considerations that have to be weighed, the chief being the combined influence of the new tariff and the drought. Whatever may be said of the extravagance of the Government, this does not extend to the individual. As far as can be judged, and this can be done pretty accurately, the individual has curtailed his coat according to his cloth, as witnessed by the reduced orders being received from the country coupled with the financial stability of the mass of country traders. In the future, however, when our wholesale borrowing receives a check, a tendency that is now very evident, then doubtless this will have some influence on our imports, which will have more nearly to come in line with our reduced exports.

The seventy-eighth half-yearly meeting of the City Bank of Sydney was held to-day at the head office, Pitt-street, Mr. James Ewan presiding. In moving the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, particulars of which have already appeared, the chairman said: "The report speaks for itself, and the business continues to progress along the lines which we have followed for some years past. As compared with last year's figures, coin, bullion, and cash balances show a reduction from £326,647 to £288,748. This is set off by an increase in bills discounted and other debts due to the bank from £1,218,722 to £1,268,133. The position is still sufficiently strong in relation to deposits and other liabilities, which are now £1,138,730, as against £1,147,382 a year ago. Although not showing any great increase in profit, as a matter of fact the present has been the most profitable half-year for long time, and we have been enabled to carry a larger amount than usual to contingency account. Unfortunately the drought cannot yet be said to have broken, and until the seasons give promise of an assured alteration for the better, the policy of the bank must be guided by caution and circumspection, and no considerable growth of business or increase in profits need be immediately expected. I am quite sure the shareholders will believe that this policy is conceived in their best interests, and that the effect will be to place this bank in an even better position than it has hitherto held among kindred Australian institutions." Senator A. J. Gould and Mr. A. J. Sievers were re-elected directors, and Mr. Frederick Phillips was elected auditor in the place of Mr. John Waugh.

The forty-first half-yearly report of the New South Wales Mont de Piete and Investment Company, Limited, shows that the investments upon mortgages, pledges, and other securities aggregated £87,828. The gross profits amounted to £10,064. This, with £1401 from last account, less working expenses and interest on deposits and bank overdraft, left a net credit balance of £7314. The directors proposed to apportion this sum as follows:—To dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, £2973; to reserve fund (making a total of £2507), £2000; to special contingency fund £841; leaving £1500 to be carried forward to next account. The directors regretted the deaths of Mr. Samuel Payten, the late chairman, and Mr. William Gallagher, both of whom had held seats on the board for a considerable time.

In yesterday's issue were published the quarterly bank averages for this State. The "Insurance and Banking Record" just to hand gives similar returns for Victoria, which enable us to make the following comparison of the chief figures:—

The annual meeting of the New York and Brooklyn Tobacco Company, Limited, was held to-day at the registered office of the company, 90 Pitt-street. The directors' report showed gross earnings of £5304, the working expenses being £3449, leaving a net profit of £1856. This, together with £117 carried forward, made £1973 available. Of this £750 had been absorbed by the dividend for the half-year ended June 30, and a similar amount would go to pay the dividend for the past half-year, while £232 was set aside as a provision for bad debts, leaving £240 to be carried forward. A dividend of 10 per cent., free of income tax, was declared. The chairman, Mr. J. T. Tillock, J.P., presided. In presenting the annual report and accounts, the chairman laid before the shareholders a report as to the transactions of the company during the five years ended December 31, 1902, during which period an annual dividend of 10 per cent. had been paid on the share capital of the company. The business of the company had been steadily maintained, and after the payment of dividend an amount would be carried forward to the credit of profit and loss account of £240, in addition to which there was a general reserve of £1000. The report was unanimously adopted, and a dividend for the past half-year was made payable at the conclusion of the meeting. Mr. J. T. Tillock (who retired by rotation), was re-elected a director, and Mr. David Fell, C.A.A., was re-elected auditor. A vote of thanks to the directors and officers of the company was carried unanimously.

The hundred and thirty-fourth half-yearly report of the Australian Gaslight Company states that the profits, after making provision for bad and doubtful debts, deducting interest on borrowed money, repairs and renewals, depreciation of plant, working expenses, and other charges amounted to £65,013. The directors recommend a dividend of 9s per share free of income tax, absorbing £56,205, leaving £8808 to be carried forward. The gasholder in course of erection at Rushcutter Bay will be ready for use in March. The extension of the company's main to Pennant Hills has been completed. It is also intended to extend the pipes to Beecroft almost immediately. The Enfield Municipal Council having decided to discontinue lighting the borough with electricity arrangements have been made with the company to instal the incandescent system of gas-lighting. The Auburn Council has also decided to adopt the same system. For the purpose of the new railway station the Government has resumed portion of the company's property at the Haymarket. The report will be submitted to the shareholders on January 29.

The thirty-fourth half-yearly report of the Royal Bank of Queensland, Limited, shows net profits amounting to £8646, which together with £1404 carried forward made £10,050 available for distribution. The directors recommended the following appropriations:—To dividend at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum on the ordinary and 3½ per cent. on the preference shares, £6878; dividend duty on above, £344; to reserve fund, £2000; leaving £827 to be carried forward. The meeting of shareholders was held in Brisbane on Tuesday last, when the chairman, Mr. P. L. Cardew, said that notwithstanding the adverse circumstances of the past half-year the bank had maintained its position. Their liquid assets were equal to 36·62 per cent. of their total liabilities to the public. The report was agreed to.

IMPORT MARKET.

An increased volume of distributing business was done and a few merchants' parcels changed hands, but nothing to indicate that a worthy volume of business was coming. In the metal market there was inquiry for wire, and rates showed a strengthening tendency. Various lines of fish had call at steady prices, an exception to the latter condition being Trefavenne sardines, which hardened considerably.

Tea.—All interest centred in the auction sales and no private business was done.

Messrs. F. H. Dyer and Co. report:—"We offered, on account of Messrs. Dalgety and Co., a small catalogue of Ceylons and Indians; but, though the trade accorded their attention as usual they were not in the humour to operate, and the catalogues had practically to be withdrawn, only a few lines finding buyers."

Last year at this date there were 35,250 tons of sugar held in bond.

The "Sugar Journal and Tropical Cultivator" of January 15 reviews the past season's operations in Queensland. We extract the following:—

> The crushing season of 1902-3 is over, and the figures of production may be closely, but not quite accurately, estimated. The total output appears to be 83,750 tons. This is a poor figure, and speaks volumes for the terrible ravages of the drought during the past year. The quality of the juice during the year was on the whole good and when the central mill figures are published there should be a notable reduction in the quantity of cane taken to make a ton of sugar. The price paid for the sugars by the refiners was practically the same as in the previous year, though the figure was arrived at in a different manner. The refiners may be said to have paid £10 a ton for 94 per cent. sugar, giving a bonus, according to the prices of refined sugars in Melbourne, Sydney, and Brisbane. This bonus cannot actually be determined until the end of next June, but it may be regarded as reasonably certain that it will amount to £1, thus making the whole price of the crop of raws about £11 a ton. At this figure all those mills which had even a moderate supply of cane were able to make a fair profit, while where the cane supplies were ample there should be a very handsome margin to show for the year's work, the more northern mills there has been some advance in the price of cane. Very little white labour was employed cutting in the north. To the farmers in the Mackay district, and in the northern districts with the exception of the Burdekin the year has on the whole been a profitable one, but in Mackay this has only been possible by reason of the bonus which the Federal Government has paid to those who employed white labour in getting their cane harvested. In many cases by the use of their wives and families the farmers not only kept the money for harvesting in their own pockets, but also secured from the Federal Government an additional 4s 6d per ton for their cane. The desirability of employing white women and children in the cane fields is open to question, but it may be borne in mind that this result has frequently been pointed out by us as inevitable if a restrictive policy is adopted towards coloured people doing the work. In the following table we give the official outputs for the last two years with an estimate of that for the season just closed:—

	Year ending June 30, 1901. Tons.	Year ending June 30, 1902. Tons.	Estimate. Tons.

The prices for German 88 per cent. beet sugar f.o.b. Hamburg and for first marks German granulated as cabled to-night compare with the rates ruling in earlier years as follows:—

Groceries.—Sales of Gold Medal milk were heavy for the week, and to-day 2000 cases were booked for delivery on February 1 at previous ruling prices. Distributing parcels of the following lines sold:—Nestle's milk, 1500 cases, at 5s 10½d and 25 cases Viking unsweetened at 6s 1½d; 100 cases Morton's pickles at 8s 9d, 20 barrels salt salmon at 3½d, and 20 half-barrels at 4d, and two tons ling fish at 5½d to 5¾d. A merchant's parcel of ling sold at 5d, and five tons English whiting sold in a scarce and rising market at 70s. The agents for Robinson's cocoa reported good business during the week at list prices. The market in Trefavenne's sardines shows short supplies on spot and steadily rising rates. Of course, the operating factor is the loss of the French shoals just before the Lenten season. Efforts are being made by cable to buy stocks. Merchants' business was done to-day in quarters from 3s 10½d to 4s and halves 5s 7½d to 5s 9d to arrive. Other sardines sold freely at previous rates.

Eastern Goods.—Sagos, rice, and canary seed all moved in a strong market. £25 being got for the last-named, and rice sold up to between £22 and £22 10s.

Liquors.—The new agent for Revolver Ale reported sales of 100 hogsheads, 20 half-hogsheads, 10 barrels, and 100 cases quarts, ex steamers Wilcannia and Orestes, delivery to buyers direct from ship's side.

Metals.—There was some inquiry for wire, but sales were mostly of a distributing nature, the only merchants' parcel being one truck of assorted galvanised and black. Prices had an upward tendency.

The Customs revenue received at Sydney to-day amounted to £12,185. The principal items were:—Stimulants, £2944; narcotics, £517; sugar, £81; agricultural products and groceries, £1775; apparel and textiles, £1460; metals and machinery, £445; oils, paints and varnishes, £111; earthenware, cement, &c., £185; drugs and chemicals, £27; wood, wicker, and cane, £607; jewellery and fancy goods, £282; leather and rubber £221; paper and stationery, £187; musical instruments, £39; miscellaneous, £71; harbour and light dues, £95; pilotage, £97; harbour dues, £18; excise on spirits, £22; excise on tobacco, cigars, and cigarettes, £1000; excise on beer, £2071; excise on starch, £18.

BREADSTUFFS.

Cabled advices leave no doubt that the San Francisco market is decidedly stronger, and that the tendency is unquestionably upward. Our London cables to-night confirm this. On the other hand, we have it clearly shown that those who possess wheat in South Australia intend clinging to it to the last moment. Local flour remains at £12, and the Adelaide article is difficult to get. Manitoba is unchanged at from £12 15s to £14, but West Coast flour has begun its advance, Washington White Wings, for instance, being unprocurable in the exporting market under a 12s 6d advance on the price of the previous shipment. Californian choice milling wheat sold at 4s 5½d c.i.f. and e., February-March shipment.

A statement has been made by a Melbourne newspaper with reference to alleged importation of short-weight parcels of flour by Sydney merchants. The statement is a guarded one, full of conditions and provisoes, but the average reader takes the general sense of such paragraphs, and therefore might easily take it that the paper claims to state facts. The statement implies an aspersion on Sydney business men and Sydney methods of business. It is quite wrong in facts and deductions. We republish it along with an explanation of the trade practice, a knowledge of which would probably have shown the unreasonableness of the statement. It is as follows:—

> Some American firms are indenting hard-wheat flour for importers in Sydney, packing, we believe, 196lb. to the bag, the usual weight in certain shipping ports. But the bags are being marked 200lb., the said importer having only to pay on 196lb. This is, of course, barefaced robbery, and nothing else. Bakers and merchants buying flour made from hard red wheats—in fact, any imported flour—should buy per ton of 2000lb., and also use their scale to guard against fraud. The statement has been made to us that to charge for 40lb. in every ton, which buyers do not receive, is a very questionable way of doing business. That is stating the case mildly; it is an absolutely fraudulent practice, which should not be tolerated.

Now, the practice in Australia is to put up flour in sacks to weigh 200lb. gross; in New York flour is put up to weigh 196lb. gross. But under a special arrangement first-grade Manitoba flour destined for Australian trade are put up in 200lb. bags, and are legibly marked at that weight. To make doubly sure that the purchaser here gets fair play it is sold by the 200lb. gross ton. When bags get slack by spilling from damage to the jute they are put aside, and subsequently filled up. Californian flour is packed 196lb. to the sack, a fact which all the trade knows, and it is always sold by importers at "per ton, 10 sacks to the ton."

PRODUCE MARKETS.—Friday.

TRADE IN SUSSEX-STREET.

The markets were again rather quiet in tone, no particular item displaying any marked degree of buoyancy. Operations were on a somewhat restricted scale, the near approach of the end of the month being to a large extent responsible for the quiet state of trade. With one or two exceptions, stocks on hand were sufficient for requirements. The principal changes in prices were a rise in Northern river eggs, lucerne hay, choice local potatoes, and a decline in oaten hay. Local maize was scarce and in request at late rates. Argentine grain was plentiful and in steady demand up to 4s 6d for load lots. Oats moved off quietly, as did chickwheat. Both bran and pollard were in moderate request, the market for each being less active and stocks a trifle more plentiful. A fair turnover was noted in chaff, chiefly up to £6 5s for the bulk of best average varieties. Extra green samples made to £6 10s a ton. Lucerne hay commanded fairly ready sale at slightly advanced rates; 204 bales arrived by boat from the Hunter River, five truckloads coming forward by rail. Straw was scarce and prices, if anything, a trifle dearer. Under the hammer oaten hay sold moderately well prices being cheaper owing to the quality not being up to the usual standard. Inland potatoes had fairly ready sale, values being a trifle dearer for choice large sorts. Warrnambools were also a shade weaker. Hunter River potatoes are now almost finished. What few Circulars were left over from the late shipment had attention at the prices quoted. Onions had ready sale, the market now being dependent on deliveries from Victoria. In dairy produce a good extent of business was noted in most lines. Butter moved off freely, the market having a good tone on account of the fresh supplies not being forward. Eggs were less plentiful and in good demand, the only change being a rise in Northerns. Poultry had good sale at slightly lower rates. Bacon, cheese, lard, and honey had more or less attention at about late values.

Wholesale quotations were:—

REDFERN SALE.

At the Redfern railway terminus markets this morning a good supply of produce was forward for sale. There was a large attendance of buyers, competition being good for most lines. A rise in potatoes, lucerne hay, and a fall in oaten hay were the chief movements in prices. Owing to the smaller supply of lucerne to hand, the inquiry was brisk at firmer rates. Choice dry green in small bales fetched 5s 4d, ordinary prime in medium-sized bales going at 4s 10d. A very good sample in trusses found a purchaser at 5s a cwt. Oaten hay was more plentiful, sales being good at lower rates. Ordinary prime new realised 6s 4d to 6s 6d, good medium to 5s 8d, and inferior 5s 1d a cwt. Inferior hay chaff was offered without leading to business. Owing to the large quantity of watermelons forward sales were quiet despite the lower rates ruling. Choice large fetched 3s 9d to 4s 4d, good to 3s 4d, passable sorts to 2s 7d, and small and inferior from 1s to 1s 6d a dozen. A good demand was noted for pumpkins at from 2s 9d to 4s 10d a dozen, according to size and sample. Potatoes had good sale, especially choice large samples, which ruled dearer. MINING INTELLIGENCE.

There was very little movement in prices on the Mining market yesterday, and business was on a restricted scale. Barrier silver stocks were steady generally, although North Broken Hill at 10s 1½d and Broken Hill Junction at 3s 2d were a shade easier. Broken Hill South, paid, advanced to 24s 6d, 24s 9d, and Broken Hill Proprietary were again wanted at 33s, without response from holders. Western Australian ventures were firmer, in sympathy with London, but no transaction was recorded. Queensland companies were somewhat irregular. Vesuvius, after firming to 18s, sold back to 17s 9d during the afternoon. Victoria and Caledonia Block, contributing, were steady at 18s. Bonnie Dundee sold at 10s 6d, and Craven's Caledonia at 7s. In the Gympie division South Glanmire and Monkland weakened to 34s 6d, but afterwards recovered to previous day's figures of 35s, while No. 2 North Oriental again had business at 2s 8d. Tin and copper stocks were quiet. Cope's Creek Dredging advanced to 6s, and Girilambone Mining sold at 1s 7d.

A supplement to the "Government Gazette" of Monday, January 19, No. 34, contains particulars of gold and mineral leases in force in mining districts for the half-year ended December 31 last.

Included in the cargo of the Union Company's steamer Mararoa, which arrived in Sydney on Friday, January 16, were 20 bars of bullion, valued at £12,950, for transhipment to London, from the New Zealand Crown Mines, Waitekauri, and Woodstock Gold Mining Companies.

We have received a prospectus of the North Greta Colliery Syndicate which is being formed with a capital of £10,000, divided into 1000 shares of £10 each, to secure a lease of the coal seams in the Leconfield Estate, near Greta. The prospectus, which is advertised elsewhere, states that the coal seams on the property have been proved and a contract has been made for the sale of the whole output for 10 years. It is also pointed out that as there are no paid-up shares in the syndicate the whole of the profits will go to the investors.

The following corrected return from the Brilliant St. George United Company (C.T.) was posted on the Stock Exchange yesterday:—Crushed 1183 tons for 812oz., and cyanide bullion £1409.

Messrs. Souter and Hoare report the flotation of the Conrad Consolidated Mines, Limited, being the amalgamation of the Conrad Silver Lead Mine and the Conrad South Blocks adjoining, situated near Inverell, New South Wales. The property consists of 200 acres, of which 160 acres are on line of lode, and on which a large amount of development work has been done. The capital of the company is £125,000, in 125,000 shares of £1 each, 25,000 of which are held in reserve for future issue if required. The working capital of £10,000 required has been subscribed. Active operations, which were suspended pending amalgamation, have been resumed at the mine, and it has been decided that the erection of the metallurgical plant be proceeded with as quickly as possible.

The Broken Hill Proprietary Block 10 Company, Limited, advises that for the week ended January 21 the plant worked 91 hours, treating 1753 tons of crude ore, producing 287 tons of concentrates.

Mr. R. N. Kirk, Sydney agent for the Broken Hill Proprietary Company, Limited, advises the receipt of the following cable by the company:—"London, January 22. Silver, 1s 9 11-16d (official quotation); lead, £11 8s 9d (buyers' price); company's shares, £1 11s 6d (buyers)."

MINING IN NEW SOUTH WALES.

FORBES, Friday.

A quantity of stone brought into town to-day from Mary's Dream Mine disclosed under a glass splendid gold. The mine is being run by a local syndicate of 23 persons.

WEST WYALONG, Friday.

Howard, Goggins, and party, who had the Golden Fleece tribute for three years, are the successful tenderers for the tribute of the White Reef Company, which is supposed to contain a good lode.

DEVELOPMENTS AT TUCKER'S HILL.

HARGRAVES, Friday.

Developments on the various leases of Tucker's Hill continue satisfactory. Hogan and party are sinking the air shaft on the reef to connect with tunnel workings, and are down 70ft. The ore broken in sinking is of excellent quality and the completion of the air shaft will enable a large number of men to work in the stopes. The gold output for the current year from Hogan's mine will be of unprecedented value in this district. Hogan and party have won gold valued at £1172 in three crushings. The property recently acquired from Cassidy and party is being opened up under the management of Mr. Cosgrove. A large underlay shaft is being sunk on the western leg of Cassidy's reef to carry a double-truck road. The reef in sinking is larger in size, and good quality gold is plainly visible in the ore dump. Ensor and party's lease adjoins Cassidy's and Hogan's on the base line, and embraces Tucker's claim worked 40 years ago. On the same line south surface prospecting is being carried out on Mr. Hugh Dixson's leases, revealing a continuation of the line of saddle reefs, and payable prospects are being obtained. Scott and M'Gowan, on the crown of the hill, are breaking rich ore. The official yields are 21 tons for 77oz. Bond and party, south of M'Gowan, are down 50ft. on M'Gowan's reef. Good prospects were obtained yesterday. M'Cloughan and party, north of Hogan and Ensor, are also obtaining rich prospects on Tucker's line of reef. The Saddle Reef Syndicate has just cleaned up a parcel of 11 tons from the 185ft. level for a yield of over an ounce to the ton. Work has been commenced on the western leg of No. 1 Saddle, which is several feet in width. Preparations are in progress for sinking from the 100ft. level on the Florence line, also owned by this syndicate.

RICH ORE AT THE OROYA NORTH BLOCK.

KALGOORLIE, Friday.

At the Oroya-Brown Hill Company's Oroya North Block 5ft. of ore, assaying 34dwt. to the ton, have been struck in Stange's shaft at a depth of 480ft. from the surface. Stone similar in value has also been met with in the top of rise 12ft. from that point. This rise is being put up from the fifth level for ventilation purposes.

PERTH, Friday.

About 80oz. of alluvial gold was brought into Leonora on Wednesday from the Black Range, 100 miles from Lawler's: 300 men are already on the field. The cost of living is very high; butter is 6s lb., flour 17s 50lb. bag.

A telegram from Mount Magnet states that 40 tons of stuff are on the road from the prospectors' claim, Black Range, for treatment at Mount Magnet. Assays gave 7oz. to the ton.

A GOOD GOLD YIELD.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A splendid gold yield is reported from Taradale, in the Castlemaine district. Bolding and party, working at Baxter's-road, on the United Kingdom line of reef, crushed 13 tons, from which they obtained 84½oz. The stone was taken from a depth of 150ft. The ground had been unsuccessfully tried several times previously by Mr. Bolding, who was confident gold existed there.

GOLD YIELDS.

Brilliant (C.T.) crushed 426 tons for 446oz.
Brilliant St. George United, 1183 tons for 812oz and cyanide bullion valued at £1409.
Ruby, 270 tons for 210oz.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

THE TURF.

The Tucka Tucka draft of untried fillies and geldings to be sold by Mr. T. S. Clibborn at the Newmarket stables, Randwick, on Tuesday, are located at Payten's for inspection.

Matong was yesterday struck out of both hurdle races to be run at the S.T.C. Anniversary Meeting.

The well-known trainer Joe Burton is confined to his room with an attack of English cholera.

In consequence of Monday next being a public holiday Mr. Fleming, the Kensington measurer, will be in attendance at the measuring yard from 9 a.m. until noon, instead of from noon to 4 p.m. as is usual.

Our Wellington (N.Z.) correspondent telegraphs that negotiations are afoot to sell Advance to an Australian buyer for stud purposes. It is evident from the performance of Advance in winning the Wellington Cup that this fine horse has recovered his best form. His presence in Australia this autumn in the weight-for-age races would lend a deal of interest to them, especially as there is a need of good horses.

Entries close on Tuesday next with the secretary, Mr. John Jolly, for the events to be run at the Moorefield February meeting. The card will be found in the advertising columns.

SYDNEY TURF CLUB ANNIVERSARY MEETING.

FIRST DAY.

The Anniversary reunion of the Sydney Turf Club commences this afternoon at Randwick, and a very interesting bill of fare is down for discussion. The tracks and surroundings at headquarters are in splendid condition, and the class of horses engaged promises good racing. The customary means of transit will be in vogue, trams starting from Circular Quay and Bent-street, via Oxford-street, and from the railway station, via Cleveland-street, at short intervals, while 'buses and cabs will be at the service of those who prefer to travel by road. The sport commences at 1.15 p.m. with the Hurdle Race, in which Vocalist, Bonnie Boy, Wollogorang, and Saltoun seem to have the brightest prospects, and the numbers may go up for Wollogorang, Bonnie Boy, and Saltoun. The Amateur Plate promises to bring about a good battle, in which Yannawaa, Torchon, Ariana, and Soldene should play prominent parts, and the places may be occupied by Torchon, Yannawaa, and Soldene. Kelp, Cudgegong, Katoomba, and Amyas seem to have the settlement of the Nursery Handicap among them, and they may pass the judge's box in that order. Sir Leonard heads the list for the Challenge Stakes, for which there are 16 acceptors, and though he may not be quite ready just yet, he can be trusted to run a good horse. Milos, who has earned a 7lb. penalty for his success at Rosehill, is very well at present, and even with 9st 5lb he should run well forward. There is nothing attractive about Undaunted and Silver Ray, but Turquoise should have a good look-in under 7st 11lb, and on the same mark Clochette must be very handy at the end of the trip, while Chippy Norton should give a good account of himself with 5lb less to carry. Rose Petal should be well suited with 7st 4lb, and Fungus, with 1lb less, has none the worst of the fixtures. If Skein Dhu would take it into her head to race, 7st 2lb should not stop her, and Rewina must have a good chance with the handy burden of 6st 8lb. An interesting contest is promised, at the close of which the judge may declare for Clochette or Rose Petal, with Fungus and Rewina to escort the winner past the post. Purser, Bob, Araxes, and Idler read as well as anything in the Welter Handicap, and the situations may be occupied by Purser, Araxes, and Bob. The afternoon's sport will be brought to a close with the Turf Club Handicap, in which Wootton's pair, Redeemed and Steel Busk, have been fairly used, and his choice must be entitled to respect. Contest must have a good chance, and Devilment can be trusted to run a good horse, while Inkstand should be one of the hardest to beat. The race promises to be a good one, and the numbers may be hoisted for Inkstand, Devilment, and Contest. The programme is subjoined:—

At City Tattersall's Club last evening the card of the Challenge Stakes was read by Mr. R. Howarth. Among the wagers laid were:—500 to 50 v. Sir Leonard, 450 to 45 v. Milos, 200 to 24 v. Chippy Norton, 400 to 24 v. Rose Petal, 240 to 40 v. Fungus, 200 to 14 v. Skein Dhu.

MELBOURNE SPORTING NOTES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Victory was scratched this afternoon for the Australian Cup. The Melbourne Cup winner is doing well, but in view of the heavy weights he is now receiving in handicaps, the representative of the owners thinks it better to reserve him for weight-for-age races.

Fun has been struck out of the V.A.T.C. Alma Stakes.

Mr. J. Thompson and his party were, to-day, shown over the Flemington Course by the chairman and secretary of the V.R.C.

SUFFERINGS IN THE HEAD CURED BY VITADATIO.

26 Clark-street, North Williamstown, and steamship Gem, Town Pier, Port Melbourne, October 24, 1901.

Mr. S. A. PALMER.

Dear Sir,—Eleven years ago I was a fisherman at Sorrento, where I am well known. I suffered terrible pains in my head, and gradually got from bad to worse. I interviewed a leading doctor, and was under his treatment for three months, and failing to get any relief I then tried several kinds of patent medicines without any improvement. Again I interviewed another Melbourne doctor. He also failed to relieve me, so I gave him up, and in consequence of my not being able to get proper rest and sleep became much reduced and weak. This was about three years ago, and this time I was advised to give Vitadatio a trial. I was glad to try anything, so I did, and after taking two bottles the pains left me. Altogether, after all these years of suffering, I felt quite a new man and thought I was cured, and I can assure you it seemed quite a mystery to me—I could not understand it. I removed to Mornington, and in about twelve months the same pains came back to my head, and had I known as much then as I do now about Vitadatio, I would have continued taking a good course of it. Then I came to Williamstown and interviewed a local doctor; his treatment gave me no relief, so I went to Williamstown Hospital as an outpatient for six weeks without any beneficial results. I commenced taking Vitadatio again, and continued until I had taken the contents of over two dozen bottles, and I am completely cured. I have gained a stone in weight and I am in the best of health. I can, with confidence, recommend Vitadatio to anyone suffering as I did, and will give any further information required at my Williamstown address.

Yours faithfully,
JAMES NICHOLS.

We, the undersigned, can testify to the correctness of the above statement.

The Company includes in its name the word "EQUITABLE," and the Management is determined to justify the title by the equitable conduct of the Company's business.

FOR FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE apply to us, a Company with a large capital, formed especially to meet the requirements of Borrowers, and supply a long-felt want in Sydney, a medium between the Banks and Money-lenders, thus stamping out high rates of interest and vexatious expenses.

No preliminary fees for valuations are charged. We refuse no reasonable request, either before or after lending the money. Our rates of interest are far below those of any other Institution or Lender in the State, and the terms of repayment are so easy as almost not to be felt. Further, and perhaps more important still, we do not publish all our clients' business to the world, and any promise given will be strictly adhered to.

Our business is dealt with promptly and on the spot by the Managing Director. No delays or references to Board Meetings occur, and applicants are assured the money is available on the day the application is made.

We are at all times willing to advance money to settle loans existing elsewhere, and to relieve those suffering under any disability by taking over their business at our low rates.

THE MODEL AUSTENHAM ESTATE

is charmingly situated. Being very elevated, grand views are obtained from all points. For the last four years we have erected three magnificent cottages every month on our well-known Austenham Estate. Our customers being so pleased and satisfied with the manner we built their cottages that they have advised their friends and relatives to go in for one of cottages. The result is we have been simply swamped with orders, and we have doubled our working staff endeavouring to cope with the ever-increasing work. So please take notice that we have not got a cottage for sale, having sold them all. We can only take contracts to erect cottages on the Austenham Estate. You can choose one of our large allotments and inform us of your requirements and we will prepare plans free of cost. A profitable afternoon may be spent inspecting our Estate. You will see the solid stone foundations of the cottages that we are now building to order, some of the stones from our quarry being so large that it takes three strong draught horses to draw one stone. Therefore our reputation as practical, honest builders of many years' standing will never wane while stones such as these go into our foundations. The great success we have achieved is being able to sell cheap. This we can do on account of buying our material direct from European markets. The city sewerage is connected with all our buildings; streets are all kerbed and guttered. We accept £50 deposit, balance 15s per week, interest 5 per cent.

MARSTON was built and occupied by the late Mrs. Morisset, and all that taste, refinement, and money could do was expended to render complete what may be justly termed the "Finest Suburban Property in this City." There is no convenience absent, everything is exemplified in the fixtures and appointments. The situation is lovely in the extreme, and it would be impossible to realise a place so close to the city (1 mile) such a complete sense of retirement. The atmosphere is bracing and exhilarating—"such a contrast to Sydney." As a convalescent home it could not be equalled. Mr. Leahy, who purchased this property with a view to occupancy, found his large pastoral interest elsewhere commanded all his attention, and so Marston is brought into the market for positive sale.

The Auctioneers strongly urge an inspection. No one viewing the property will be disappointed. "Note the great area of land and accommodation," and further note the determination to sell regardless of cost.

ALL-ROUND BLAME.
ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN, but when WORSE THINGS HAPPEN AT SEA, when there is "ALL-ROUND BLAME" for the CALAMITY OF SHIPWRECK, human indignation should be roused, and the CRY of SHAME be heard from shore to shore.
Thank goodness CAPTAIN LOWE, of the good ship "HATTERY," has never had to alter his STRAIGHT COURSE, has always gone ahead WITHOUT A REVERSE, has always kept clear of GETTING IN A FOG, and has carried out his duties to the VERY LAST STRAW, and although captains of other ships carrying MIXED CARGOES are to blame in making the "STRAW PART" the very LAST of their duty it cannot be expected their sailors would have the sterling qualities of LOWE'S SAILORS, which are free from BLAME OR BLEMISH.
LOWE'S SAILOR HATS are perfection, and Ladies out on a HAT-SELECTING VOYAGE can put implicit confidence in them.
They're manufactured under COMPETENT CAPTAINCY, with every attention to DISCIPLINE and DETAIL.
That's why they're always TRIM and NEAT and different to the DRAPERS' SORT.
